Secret Data Plan Changed By President

28 Federal Agencies Stripped Of Power To Classify Matter

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—President Eisenhower revamped the government's policy on secret data today with an order asserting the public's right to "a maximum amount of information in keeping with security."

Repealing a controversial set of regulations former President Truman issued two years ago, the new order goes into effect Dec. 15.

It strips 28 federal agencies of authority to "classify" information—that is, withhold it from the public on security grounds. It limits this power to the chief administrative officers alone in 17 other agencies.

Throws Out "Restricted"

It throws out the "restricted" category for classifying government data, leaving only "top secret," "secret" and "confidential."

It also provides a system for receiving complaints from newsmen and others outside the government, and sets up machinery for constant review of the whole program.

At the 20th annual convention of the Associated Press Managing Editors Assn. in Chicago, editors from all parts of the country welcomed the changes, but some warned that vigilance will be required to see that the spirit of the executive order is carried out. The association was one of several editorial groups which demanded a freer flow of information.

The attorney general, in his Chicago remarks, advised the press, radio and television to continue fighting against any unnecessary secrecy surrounding government operations. "Seek out and oppose any operation of government which places a barrier in the way of free flow of information," he urged.

Newspaperman Complains

Taking him at his word, V. M. Newton of the Tampa (Fla.) Tribune, complained that he had been unable to get information from government sources on what former congressmen are receiving federal pensions.

Brownell told him the complaint would be investigated at once.

On another censorship front in Washington, Sen. Smathers (D-Fla) attacked the Army for what he called its "intolerable interference" with the efforts of reporters to report the news from Korea.

Acting on information contained in AP Correspondent John Randolph's dispatches from Korea, Smathers wrote Secretary of Defense Wilson that there should be an immediate crackdown on "putrefying" news censorship by the military. Some eager beaver censors are "more officious than efficient," the senator said. There was no immediate comment from the Pentagon.

Brownell said the new regulations contain safeguards to insure that information is not withheld improperly while security data is adequately protected.

Seal Returned To Sea

Not every seal can tell its grandchildren it had a ride in a station wagon—but this one can. It was found a mile or so from the ocean up a creek which normally is dry, unable to find its way back. Clyde Miles (left), Venice, Calif., SPCA officer and Officer Bill Barnard lassoed the bewildered seal and drove it back to the sea in the station wagon.

India Says Red POW Interviews Must Be Changed

PANMUNJOM, Saturday, Nov. 8 (AP)—India's chairman of the Repatriation Commission declared yesterday prolonged Communist interviews with war prisoners were useless and "inhuman" and may come to a sudden halt Monday unless Red tactics change.

"I am reluctant to order my guards to use the force required to hold these wretched men in front of the explainers," Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya told a news conference at which Communist correspondents also were present.

"It is inhuman. I can't stand any longer to go in the (explanation) tents and look at it myself. As long as India is responsible I cannot permit this to grow."

Thimayya also disclosed that two Indian officers had been held hostage in the pro-Communist prisoner camp by 22 Americans and a Briton until the commission heard their demands for censorship of mail from home.

The captives, described as refusing repatriation by the Reds, protested that letters were intended to "intimidate, slander, coerce and bribe them" into returning home, Thimayya said. Unwelcome mail was ordered halted.

While the prisoner explanation outlook grew bleaker, Allied-Communist efforts to set the time and place for the Korean peace conference unexpectedly made some progress.

The Communists agreed to permit lower-level staff advisers, meeting in secret sessions today, to take up the issues of time, place and composition of the peace conference.

The proposal was made by U. S. Envoy Arthur Dean, representing the Allied belligerents in order to break a deadlock in top-level negotiations. The Red reconsidered and accepted Dean's plan after first rejecting it.

Two Drown, 18 Are Rescued In North Sea Mishap

CUXHAVEN, Germany, Nov. 6 (AP)—Eighteen shipwrecked Swedish seamen were rescued tonight, two were drowned and five were missing after a collision in the North Sea between a chartered U. S. Army vessel and the Swedish ore freighter Bjoerkoe. The 2,258-ton Swedish ship sank.

No American casualties were reported. The American ship was identified as the Seawind owned by the Sea Traders Corp. of New York.

A tiny German pilot boat rescued the 18 unknown Swedish survivors. Two hours after the collision search continued for the five missing Swedes.

Italian Court Convicts Agents

NOVARRA, Italy, Nov. 6 (AP)—Two wartime American agents were convicted by the Novara court today of the cloak-and-dagger murder of their commanding officer. They were sentenced to prison terms they cannot be forced to serve.

Two judges and a six-man jury acquitted three Italians charged with participating in the slaying of the officer, Maj. William Holohan of New York City. Holohan, chief of an Office of Strategic Services (OSS) mission, was shot dead behind enemy lines in northern Italy in 1944.

Aldo Icardi of Pittsburgh, pictured by a string of witnesses during the three-week trial as a behind-the-lines playboy principally interested in lining his pockets with gold, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Carl Lo Dolce of Rochester, N.Y., who witnesses said actually fired the fatal shots on Icardi's orders, received a sentence of 17 years.

Icardi, a former lieutenant and Holohan's deputy, and Lo Dolce, an ex-sergeant, were tried in absentia. They will never serve the sentences unless they return to Italy.

Labor Experts Asked To Probe Strike Threats

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell today called together the Eisenhower administratiion's top labor experts to study how strikes and threatening strikes may hurt defense production.

Actually there have been relatively few big strikes during the past few months. But despite this general prevalence of industrial peace strikes are breaking out in the aircraft industry and threatening on the railroads.

Mitchell, the 52-year old former department store labor relations expert who became labor secretary less than a month ago, is showing signs of taking over as the administration's top labor man. In recent years many labor problems have been handled by White House aides or others outside the Labor Department.

Among those called in to Mitchell's office today were Defense Mobilizer Arthur S. Flemming, Chairman Francis O'Neill of the National Mediation Board in charge of rail labor troubles, Mediation Service Director Whitley P. McCoy, as well as top representatives of the Defense Department and National Labor Relations Board.

Mitchell's office said the purpose of the meeting was to exchange information on how potential labor troubles may affect defense production. It was indicated it may be the first in a regular series of such meetings and reporters were advised in advance there would be no announcements afterward.

About 30,000 employes represented by the CIO Auto Workers Union have been on strike for two weeks at a half dozen plants of the North American Aviation Co. in the Los Angeles area and in Columbus, Ohio.

Strikes are being threatened in a dozen or more plants of other principal military aircraft producers. The two major unions involved, the CIO Auto Workers and the AFL Machinists, have pledged to cooperate in a nationwide drive for wage increases.

Brownell Charges Spy Promoted By Truman

Ex-President Denies He Got The FBI Report

CHICAGO, Nov. 6 (AP)—Atty. Gen. Brownell accused former President Truman today of appointing the late Harry Dexter White to a high government post despite an FBI report that White was a Communist spy.

Truman promptly denied getting the report prior to the appointment.

The charge drew quick reaction from Truman, the White House, Henry Morgenthau Jr., former secretary of the Treasury; Brig. Gen. Harry Vaughan, Truman's military aide, and others. White is dead.

Administration "Desperate"

1. Truman said "as soon as we found out White was wrong we fired him" and that Brownell's charges were "political" because the Eisenhower administration is "scared" and "desperate" after failing in Tuesday's elections.

2. The White House countered that Truman's statement that White was fired was "not true" and that White had resigned. Press Secretary James Hagerty said he would produce "the facts" about the case. He read a letter from Truman dated April 7, 1947, nearly 18 months after the alleged first FBI report on White's activities was made and given for delivery to Truman. In the letter Truman accepted White's resignation as director of the International Monetary Fund.

3. The Senate Internal Security subcommittee said it has subpoenaed Brig. Gen. Harry Vaughan to appear before the group Nov. 12 for closed-door questioning about the report Brownell said Vaughan was given to deliver to Truman.

4. The Republican Congressional Campaign Committee said Brownell's statement "further vindicated" the position of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis).

5. Morgenthau, White's onetime chief, said he had had no "information to make me suspicious of White."

6. In Washington, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover's office said there would be no comment on Brownell's speech.

White Died In 1948

White, an economist and monetary expert, had held a number of high government positions from the time he entered the Roosevelt administration until he left it in 1947. He died in August, 1948.

This "incredible" action by the Truman administration, during which the "Communists were so strikingly successful," Brownell said, left the Eisenhower regime a "very difficult task" of weeding out subversive elements from the federal payroll.

Brownell said the FBI report on White was given to Brig. Gen. Vaughan for delivery to the President in December 1945 and February 1946.

White died in August, 1948. Just a week before his death, he denied to the House Un-American Activities Committee that he was a member of an "elite" group of Communists in Washington.

Began Career In 1934

White entered government service during the Roosevelt administration in 1934. He rose through employment on the Tariff Commission, the Treasury Department, Export-Import Bank, to the post of assistant secretary of the Treasury under Morgenthau in 1945.

In recent years, White's name had cropped up frequently in congressional investigations of subversive activities.

Despite White's high-echelon jobs, Brownell said, he was "a Russian spy."

"He smuggled secret documents to Russian agents for transmission to Moscow. Harry Dexter White was known to be a Communist spy by the very people who appointed him to the most sensitive and important position he ever held in government service."

Brownell said the FBI became aware of White's espionage work early in his government career "and from the beginning made reports on these activities to the appropriate officials in authority.

"But these reports did not impede White's advancement in the administration."

Allied POWs Ask Mail From Home 'Censored'

Captives Charge "Intimidation"

PANMUNJOM, Saturday, Nov. 7 (AP)—The strange spectacle of British and U. S. prisoners demanding and obtaining "censorship" of letters, magazines and newspapers from home was reported yesterday by the chairman of the Repatriation Commission.

Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya of India, the chairman, told a news conference two Indian officers were held hostage by Allied captives for 4 hours and 15 minutes in the north camp until the commission arrived and heard a long petition against "intimidation" by mail.

Officers Are Released

The Indians were released when Thimayya promised to screen future mail and to cut off the flow of publications.

The north camp is the compound where 22 Americans, a Briton and 332 South Koreans, who the Reds say have rejected repatriation, are held under Indian custody.

The petition signed by an 11-man committee,—one American, the Briton and nine South Koreans—purported to represent the feelings of all the prisoners.

The long, typewritten petition included such charges as:

1. The United Nations is conducting "explanations" in violation of the armistice agreement through the medium of postal and telegraph system.

2. The U.N. is trying to "intimidate, slander, coerce and bribe" the prisoners.

3. The Indians are guilty of "a grave error" in allowing such material to pass through their hands and "have not censored this mail."

Have No Knowledge

"This is a shocking use of news media and school children to do their dirty work," the petition said.

A spokesman for the U.N. Command said it "has no knowledge of what has been sent to the prisoners in the north camp through the U. S. mails . . . nor have we any knowledge of who has sent mail to the prisoners."

The Allied spokesman said the first batch of 279 pieces of mail was delivered Oct. 24 by an American postal officer to the Indians. Since then mail deliveries have been routine.

Russia Claims Asia Problems Most Paramount

MOSCOW, Nov. 6 (AP)—President Marshal Klementi Y. Voroshilov accused the United States tonight of preparing for a new world war and insisted world tension cannot be eased without a settlement of Asian questions.

"Our foreign policy has not changed," he said in a speech highlighting Soviet Russia's celebration of the 36th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution, and he called for strengthening of the Soviet armed forces.

"The imperialist camp headed by the U. S. A. is conducting a policy of preparing for war," the old Bolshevik told a rally in Moscow's Bolshoi Theater. He accused "the imperialists" of "intensifying the dirty slandering attacks on the Soviet Union and other people's democracies."

Voroshilov, speaking in very rapid style, devoted a large section of his address to the Soviet Union's internal program.

But his vehement denunciation of the United States and his insistence upon the participation of Asia in the easing of world tension once again indicated the temper of the Soviet government regarding prospective talks with the West.

"Without (Red) China, one cannot ease tension in Asia," he said.

Voroshilov not only accused the United States of preparing for war, but also of blocking the Korean round table conference, of having intended in Korea "to drown the Asian peoples in blood" and of stalling on Germany.

"The Soviet Union has repeatedly approached other countries to solve the German problem and to form a provisional all-German government," he said. "But the Western Powers have hypocritically put forward the question of all-German elections. However, one cannot put forward the question of all-German elections if you have no all-German government."

Six Persons Die As Police Battle Mobs

Diplomatic Moves Follow In Effort To Stop Bloodshed

TRIESTE, Saturday, Nov. 7 (AP)—A display of U. S. infantry with bayonets at the ready stilled the violence at least temporarily in Trieste's blood-spattered waterfront square last night. Six persons had been killed by Trieste police in three days of riotous demonstrations.

Diplomatic moves followed quickly overnight in efforts to stop bloodshed and settle the Trieste conflict between Italy and Yugoslavia.

The situation was still tense and grim early today. The 7,000 British and American occupation troops were at the alert. There was a possibility of martial law if disorder again breaks out.

Touched Off Wednesday

The rioting was touched off Wednesday when young Italians in defiance of a police ban marched to celebrate Italy's victory day of World War I, and clashed with the British-trained Trieste police.

The Allied military government blamed "irresponsible elements" for the rioting, but did not identify them.

The emotion stirred up here carried over to Rome and 14 other major Italian cities where demonstrations against the British and Americans erupted. Rome police said 30 police were injured in beating off a demonstration in front of the U. S. Embassy where the mob shouted: "Assassins, Assassins!"

The Italian government ordered its diplomats in London and Washington to register sharp protests against the bloody incidents, and called its London ambassador home for a conference.

Yugoslav Foreign Secretary Koca Popovic, calling in the British and American envoys in Belgrade, laid before them what was called a "concrete proposal" for the settlement of the dispute with Italy over Trieste. Details were not disclosed, but it was believed Yugoslavia denounced the latest violence and demanded an early convening of a five-power conference—of the United States, Britain, France Yugoslavia and Italy.

15-Year-Old Boys Slain

It listed four demonstrators killed and about 30 wounded today by the gunfire of British-trained Trieste police, and three police injured by a hand grenade. Two were killed and 15 wounded by police gunfire yesterday—a total of six killed and 48 wounded in this powder-keg city. Many of those in hospitals were in a serious condition.

Previous reports, which listed eight killed and 60 injured, were based on conflicting hospital and eyewitness accounts.

Three of those killed today were 15-year-old boys.

The official radio at Belgrade, Yugoslavia, denounced the Trieste violence as "bloodshed diplomacy" by the Italian government. It charged that special railroad fares were provided to shuttle demonstrators into the city, and declared the rioting was inspired to force the Western powers to turn Trieste's Zone A over to Italy.

Coal Operator Threatening To Dig Up National Forest

STEARNS, Ky., Nov. 6 (AP) — A Kentucky coal operator revealed today he is demanding the mineral rights he retained when he sold 47,000 acres of land now covered by the Cumberland National Forest.

He said he planned to strip-mine the area to recover coal reserves worth an estimated 15 to 30 million dollars.

An unnamed U. S. Forest official told the Louisville Times the decision in the case, expected to come eventually from the Supreme Court, would affect 150 to 200 million acres of forest preserves owned by the government.

"If it is held that this land can be strip-mined," he was quoted, "It will mean that no surface rights in any national forest in the country will be safe."

Strip-mining involves the recovery of coal or other minerals by using bulldozers and steamshovels to uncover deposits from the surface.

Robert Stearns, one of Kentucky's biggest coal and timber operators, said he retained the mineral rights when he sold the cut-over timber land to the government in 1937.

Now, he said, he wants to dig coal out of the ridges skirting the Cumberland River by strip-mining. He said he expected the U.S. Forest Service to grant his request but the forestry official forecast an eventual showdown in the courts.

"The question is simply whether one person who owns a mineral right can destroy a surface right owned by another, in order to claim the minerals," the official stated.

Tax Freedom Day Set May 17, 1954

ORLANDO, Fla., Nov. 6 (AP)—The Florida State Retailers Assn. today said that at the current rate of governmental expenditures, "tax freedom day" will come in 1954 on May 17.

This means, the association said, that the average American citizen will work from Jan. 1 until May 17 just to pay his taxes—federal, state and local.

Annual public spending now has passed the 100 billion dollar for a new record, the association declared.

Coal Industry Economy Bad

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 6 (AP)—The president of the Southern Coal Producers Assn. said today government interference and stiff contract demands by United Mine Workers have forced the coal industry into economic trouble.

Joseph E. Moody told a group of labor management representatives at a University of Tennessee law institute that high production costs, which he blamed chiefly on the government and the UMW, are causing the coal industry to lose its markets.

Moody also accused northern coal operators of forcing the southern bituminous industry to accept contracts which he said provide for the highest industrial wage rate in the country.

Wage contracts signed by northern operators have been shoved at the South on a "take-it-or-leave-it basis," and southern operators had to sign or close down and lose their markets, he declared.

Referring to government seizure of mines during labor disputes, Moody said it was time for the government to "withdraw insofar as possible from labor-management disputes" and to refrain from forcing contracts on management.

Vishinsky Lashes At U. S. Armament, Foreign Policy

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 6 (AP)—Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky charged bitterly today that the United States bases its foreign policy "on the number and quality of its battalions." He said the United States is preparing for a new war and the West expects to win it by using the most dangerous weapons of mass destruction.

The first deputy foreign minister of the Soviet Union, in a return to the Stalin-era language, lashed at American and Allied policies as the U.N. Assembly's Political Committee began debate on the disarmament issue.

Vishinsky's strong words were in line with fiery statements in Moscow at celebrations of the 36th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution. They were in sharp contrast to the often milder tone he took after Prime Minister Stalin died. U.N. delegates speculated this meant the Kremlin has gone back to its old-time tough talk.

Vishinsky called on the U.N. Disarmament Commission to work out proposals for the reduction of armaments and armed forces, to prohibit the atomic weapon unconditionally and to institute an international control organ. He said this must be done in line with the fundamental task of fostering international security. He declared this task calls for cessation of the armaments race, the reduction of armaments and the liquidation of military bases in foreign territories.

In short, he advanced once more the Stalinist program of peace which so often has been rejected by the West. Delegates indicated after the meeting that they were somewhat disillusioned and that, as in the past, the Soviet program would be batted down.

British Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd told the committee that the Russians were not interested in real negotiations. He said they do not take part in international conferences unless they can use them for propaganda and declared this attitude is "cynical, discouraging and indeed exasperating."

Strip-mining involves the recovery of coal or other minerals by using bulldozers and steamshovels to uncover deposits from the surface.

Robert Stearns, one of Kentucky's biggest coal and timber operators, said he retained the mineral rights when he sold the cut-over timber land to the government in 1937.

Now, he said, he wants to dig coal out of the ridges skirting the Cumberland River by strip-mining. He said he expected the U.S. Forest Service to grant his request but the forestry official forecast an eventual showdown in the courts.

"The question is simply whether one person who owns a mineral right can destroy a surface right owned by another, in order to claim the minerals," the official stated.

Tax Freedom Day Set May 17, 1954

ORLANDO, Fla., Nov. 6 (AP)—The Florida State Retailers Assn. today said that at the current rate of governmental expenditures, "tax freedom day" will come in 1954 on May 17.

This means, the association said, that the average American citizen will work from Jan. 1 until May 17 just to pay his taxes—federal, state and local.

Annual public spending now has passed the 100 billion dollar for a new record, the association declared.

Michigan's Smallest Baby Goes To Home

OWOSSO, Mich., Nov. 6 (AP)—Jeanne Phillips, the smallest baby ever to survive in Michigan, bid good-bye to her hospital incubator and went home to coo in a normal-size crib today.

Jeanne, who weighed only 18 ounces when she was born July 7, went home a plump young lady of 7 pounds, 2 ounces. She has switched, too, from an eye dropper to a normal nursing bottle for her milk.

LONDON, Nov. 6 (AP)—American, British and French diplomats meet in Paris tomorrow to draft new notes to Russia designed to leave the door open for future Big Four negotiations on German and Austrian settlements.

Brownell Charges Spy Promoted By Truman

Ex-President Denies He Got The FBI Report

CHICAGO, Nov. 6 (AP)—Atty. Gen. Brownell accused former President Truman today of appointing the late Harry Dexter White to a high government post despite an FBI report that White was a Communist spy.

Truman promptly denied getting the report prior to the appointment.

The charge drew quick reaction from Truman, the White House, Henry Morgenthau Jr., former secretary of the Treasury; Brig. Gen. Harry Vaughan, Truman's military aide, and others. White is dead.

Administration "Desperate"

1. Truman said "as soon as we found out White was wrong we fired him" and that Brownell's charges were "political" because the Eisenhower administration is "scared" and "desperate" after failing in Tuesday's elections.

2. The White House countered that Truman's statement that White was fired was "not true" and that White had resigned. Press Secretary James Hagerty said he would produce "the facts" about the case. He read a letter from Truman dated April 7, 1947, nearly 18 months after the alleged first FBI report on White's activities was made and given for delivery to Truman. In the letter Truman accepted White's resignation as director of the International Monetary Fund.

3. The Senate Internal Security subcommittee said it has subpoenaed Brig. Gen. Harry Vaughan to appear before the group Nov. 12 for closed-door questioning about the report Brownell said Vaughan was given to deliver to Truman.

4. The Republican Congressional Campaign Committee said Brownell's statement "further vindicated" the position of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis).

5. Morgenthau, White's onetime chief, said he had had no "information to make me suspicious of White."

6. In Washington, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover's office said there would be no comment on Brownell's speech.

White Died In 1948

White, an economist and monetary expert, had held a number of high government positions from the time he entered the Roosevelt administration until he left it in 1947. He died in August, 1948.

This "incredible" action by the Truman administration, during which the "Communists were so strikingly successful," Brownell said, left the Eisenhower regime a "very difficult task" of weeding out subversive elements from the federal payroll.

Brownell said the FBI report on White was given to Brig. Gen. Vaughan for delivery to the President in December 1945 and February 1946.

White died in August, 1948. Just a week before his death, he denied to the House Un-American Activities Committee that he was a member of an "elite" group of Communists in Washington.

Began Career In 1934

White entered government service during the Roosevelt administration in 1934. He rose through employment on the Tariff Commission, the Treasury Department, Export-Import Bank, to the post of assistant secretary of the Treasury under Morgenthau in 1945.

In recent years, White's name had cropped up frequently in congressional investigations of subversive activities.

Despite White's high-echelon jobs, Brownell said, he was "a Russian spy."

"He smuggled secret documents to Russian agents for transmission to Moscow. Harry Dexter White was known to be a Communist spy by the very people who appointed him to the most sensitive and important position he ever held in government service."

Brownell said the FBI became aware of White's espionage work early in his government career "and from the beginning made reports on these activities to the appropriate officials in authority.

"But these reports did not impede White's advancement in the administration."

Boat In Distress

CAPE MAY, N. J., Nov. 6 (AP)—The Coast Guard said tonight the 90-foot fishing vessel, the Helen M, is in distress 26 miles southeast of Barnegat Light Ship, in "very heavy seas" with seven persons aboard.

Allied POWs Ask Mail From Home 'Censored'

Captives Charge "Intimidation"

PANMUNJOM, Saturday, Nov. 7 (AP)—The strange spectacle of British and U. S. prisoners demanding and obtaining "censorship" of letters, magazines and newspapers from home was reported yesterday by the chairman of the Repatriation Commission.

Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya of India, the chairman, told a news conference two Indian officers were held hostage by Allied captives for 4 hours and 15 minutes in the north camp until the commission arrived and heard a long petition against "intimidation" by mail.

Officers Are Released

The Indians were released when Thimayya promised to screen future mail and to cut off the flow of publications.

The north camp is the compound where 22 Americans, a Briton and 332 South Koreans, who the Reds say have rejected repatriation, are held under Indian custody.

The petition signed by an 11-man committee,—one American, the Briton and nine South Koreans—purported to represent the feelings of all the prisoners.

The long, typewritten petition included such charges as:

1. The United Nations is conducting "explanations" in violation of the armistice agreement through the medium of postal and telegraph system.

2. The U.N. is trying to "intimidate, slander, coerce and bribe" the prisoners.

3. The Indians are guilty of "a grave error" in allowing such material to pass through their hands and "have not censored this mail."

Have No Knowledge

"This is a shocking use of news media and school children to do their dirty work," the petition said.

A spokesman for the U.N. Command said it "has no knowledge of what has been sent to the prisoners in the north camp through the U. S. mails . . . nor have we any knowledge of who has sent mail to the prisoners."

The Allied spokesman said the first batch of 279 pieces of mail was delivered Oct. 24 by an American postal officer to the Indians. Since then mail deliveries have been routine.

Coal Industry Economy Bad

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 6 (AP)—The president of the Southern Coal Producers Assn. said today government interference and stiff contract demands by United Mine Workers have forced the coal industry into economic trouble.

Joseph E. Moody told a group of labor management representatives at a University of Tennessee law institute that high production costs, which he blamed chiefly on the government and the UMW, are causing the coal industry to lose its markets.

Moody also accused northern coal operators of forcing the southern bituminous industry to accept contracts which he said provide for the highest industrial wage rate in the country.

Wage contracts signed by northern operators have been shoved at the South on a "take-it-or-leave-it basis," and southern operators had to sign or close down and lose their markets, he declared.

Referring to government seizure of mines during labor disputes, Moody said it was time for the government to "withdraw insofar as possible from labor-management disputes" and to refrain from forcing contracts on management.

Discharged Worker Is Ordered Rehired

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—Price Electric Corp. of Frederick, Md., has been ordered to reinstate a discharged employe, Mrs. Frances Elaine Jianeeny, and pay her back wages.

Mrs. Jaineeny had been active in support of the AFL International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. She was discharged May 25.

The National Labor Relations Board today made public the reinstatement order to Price Electric and directed the firm to post a notice in its plants at Frederick and Brunswick, saying it will not discourage its employes from joining a union.

Six Persons Die As Police Battle Mobs

Diplomatic Moves Follow In Effort To Stop Bloodshed

TRIESTE, Saturday, Nov. 7 (AP)—A display of U. S. infantry with bayonets at the ready stilled the violence at least temporarily in Trieste's blood-spattered waterfront square last night. Six persons had been killed by Trieste police in three days of riotous demonstrations.

Diplomatic moves followed quickly overnight in efforts to stop bloodshed and settle the Trieste conflict between Italy and Yugoslavia.

The situation was still tense and grim early today. The 7,000 British and American occupation troops were at the alert. There was a possibility of martial law if disorder again breaks out.

Touched Off Wednesday

The rioting was touched off Wednesday when young Italians in defiance of a police ban marched to celebrate Italy's victory day of World War I, and clashed with the British-trained Trieste police.

The Allied military government blamed "irresponsible elements" for the rioting, but did not identify them.

The emotion stirred up here carried over to Rome and 14 other major Italian cities where demonstrations against the British and Americans erupted. Rome police said 30 police were injured in beating off a demonstration in front of the U. S. Embassy where the mob shouted: "Assassins, Assassins!"

The Italian government ordered its diplomats in London and Washington to register sharp protests against the bloody incidents, and called its London ambassador home for a conference.

Yugoslav Foreign Secretary Koca Popovic, calling in the British and American envoys in Belgrade, laid before them what was called a "concrete proposal" for the settlement of the dispute with Italy over Trieste. Details were not disclosed, but it was believed Yugoslavia denounced the latest violence and demanded an early convening of a five-power conference—of the United States, Britain, France Yugoslavia and Italy.

15-Year-Old Boys Slain

It listed four demonstrators killed and about 30 wounded today by the gunfire of British-trained Trieste police, and three police injured by a hand grenade. Two were killed and 15 wounded by police gunfire yesterday—a total of six killed and 48 wounded in this powder-keg city. Many of those in hospitals were in a serious condition.

Previous reports, which listed eight killed and 60 injured, were based on conflicting hospital and eyewitness accounts.

Three of those killed today were 15-year-old boys.

The official radio at Belgrade, Yugoslavia, denounced the Trieste violence as "bloodshed diplomacy" by the Italian government. It charged that special railroad fares were provided to shuttle demonstrators into the city, and declared the rioting was inspired to force the Western powers to turn Trieste's Zone A over to Italy.

Russia Claims Asia Problems Most Paramount

MOSCOW, Nov. 6 (AP)—President Marshal Klementi Y. Voroshilov accused the United States tonight of preparing for a new world war and insisted world tension cannot be eased without a settlement of Asian questions.

"Our foreign policy has not changed," he said in a speech highlighting Soviet Russia's celebration of the 36th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution, and he called for strengthening of the Soviet armed forces.

"The imperialist camp headed by the U. S. A. is conducting a policy of preparing for war," the old Bolshevik told a rally in Moscow's Bolshoi Theater. He accused "the imperialists" of "intensifying the dirty slandering attacks on the Soviet Union and other people's democracies."

Voroshilov, speaking in very rapid style, devoted a large section of his address to the Soviet Union's internal program.

But his vehement denunciation of the United States and his insistence upon the participation of Asia in the easing of world tension once again indicated the temper of the Soviet government regarding prospective talks with the West.

"Without (Red) China, one cannot ease tension in Asia," he said.

Voroshilov not only accused the United States of preparing for war, but also of blocking the Korean round table conference, of having intended in Korea "to drown the Asian peoples in blood" and of stalling on Germany.

"The Soviet Union has repeatedly approached other countries to solve the German problem and to form a provisional all-German government," he said. "But the Western Powers have hypocritically put forward the question of all-German elections. However, one cannot put forward the question of all-German elections if you have no all-German government."

It Was Full Of Gas

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 6 (AP)—Charley Smith struck a match to see whether the bucket was full of siphoned gasoline.

Vishinsky Lashes At U. S. Armament, Foreign Policy

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 6 (AP)—Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky charged bitterly today that the United States bases its foreign policy "on the number and quality of its battalions." He said the United States is preparing for a new war and the West expects to win it by using the most dangerous weapons of mass destruction.

The first deputy foreign minister of the Soviet Union, in a return to the Stalin-era language, lashed at American and Allied policies as the U.N. Assembly's Political Committee began debate on the disarmament issue.

Vishinsky's strong words were in line with fiery statements in Moscow at celebrations of the 36th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution. They were in sharp contrast to the often milder tone he took after Prime Minister Stalin died. U.N. delegates speculated this meant the Kremlin has gone back to its old-time tough talk.

Vishinsky called on the U.N. Disarmament Commission to work out proposals for the reduction of armaments and armed forces, to prohibit the atomic weapon unconditionally and to institute an international control organ. He said this must be done in line with the fundamental task of fostering international security. He declared this task calls for cessation of the armaments race, the reduction of armaments and the liquidation of military bases in foreign territories.

In short, he advanced once more the Stalinist program of peace which so often has been rejected by the West. Delegates indicated after the meeting that they were somewhat disillusioned and that, as in the past, the Soviet program would be batted down.

British Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd told the committee that the Russians were not interested in real negotiations. He said they do not take part in international conferences unless they can use them for propaganda and declared this attitude is "cynical, discouraging and indeed exasperating."

Snowstorms Churn Up Eastern Coast Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Snowstorms, churned by high winds, hit the nation's East Coast and a broad area of the plains Friday, bringing the first taste of impending winter to both areas after prolonged mild weather.

The disturbances were born of a huge mass of cold air which overspread the country from the Rockies eastward, and from Canada to the Gulf.

Accumulations up to 8 inches were predicted for Kansas, where falling snow was stacked into drifts by the wind. The seaboard snow was expected to reach a maximum of about 5 inches on the eastern slopes of Pennsylvania's mountains. Amounts of more than 3½ inches were reported to have fallen in Piedmont areas, but melting kept the snow blanket thin.

The cold air brought night-time freezing temperatures into the tier of Gulf states, and chilled all except the southern tip of Florida. Tampa, Fla., reported a cool afternoon temperature of 59, but Miami remained near 80.

In the plains area, the effect most noted and welcomed was a contribution of soil moisture to the bone dry wheat farming lands.

For many merchants in the chill and snow-struck regions the weather change was a welcome indication of revival for lagging sales—in fall and winter apparel, home heating oil, and even Christmas cards—slow because of the long overflow of summer mildness.

The eastern storm began as a low pressure disturbance over the Atlantic off the Georgia coast. Deepening and spreading, it drew frigid air from the Great Lakes and New England southward, then, as it moved northeast, flung moist sea air against the cold front.

Snow fell generally over an area from the Carolina mountains to New York, whirling back into the slightly warmed coastal belt where much of it melted. It made slush in the streets of Washington, Baltimore, Richmond, Philadelphia and other middle seaboard cities. In New York City, the amount which fell was light, but the flurries looked furious in wind gusts up to 35 m.p.h.

At noon, Lexington, Neb., reported 7 inches of snow on the ground. North Platte and Imperial, Neb., and Goodland, Kan., had 4 inches of snow at noon, and more was falling.

The snow was drifted in this area, and in western South Dakota and central and western North Dakota by strong winds. Visibility was cut to a few score feet on the Nebraska-South Dakota border.

500 Students Besiege Court In Celebration

LONDON, Nov. 6 (AP)—Five hundred shouting, milling students besieged a midtown police court for three hours today in a riproaring hangover from London's rowdiest-ever Guy Fawkes Day.

Police reinforcements barricaded famed old Bow Street police court while three harassed judges, working in shifts dealt with the 189 persons arrested last night, most of them students.

Most of the arrests were made in the crowded heart of London as student revellers celebrated the 348th anniversary of the ill-fated attempt by Guy Fawkes to blow up the Houses of Parliament.

Fawkes, a Roman Catholic, was caught and hanged before touching off the ton of gunpowder he secreted beneath the House of Lords on the eve of the opening of Parliament by the Protestant ruler, King James I.

Girl, 8, Found Ill And Alone

BALTIMORE, Nov. 6 (AP)—Patrolman John Lusk stepped into a downtown doorway in the season's first snowfall today for a moment's warmth.

He found a little girl there who had the same idea. Her hair was wet and tussled, she wore tennis shoes, but no socks and she had on a light green dress and thin jacket. She looked very small and very young to be downtown alone.

"What are you doing here?" the officer asked.

"I feel sick," said the little girl.

Patrolman Lusk called an ambulance and sent the child to Mercy Hospital.

She was sick, all right. Doctors said it might be pneumonia.

Her name was Patricia Ann Bohlen, she was eight years old and she couldn't remember her mother's name or her father's.

And how in the world she got downtown on such a dismal, snowy day—well, nobody seems to know.

McCarthy To Probe Private Firm Files

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) said today that he will broaden his military security invesstigation to include private firms doing secret work for the armed services.

The chairman of the Senate investigations subcommittee made this announcement to reporters after he had spent three hours conferring with Secretary of the Army Stevens, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Army chief of staff, and other civilian and military Army officials.

Russians Seize 100 East Germans As Spy Suspects

BERLIN, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Russian zone secret police disclosed tonight at least 100 East Germans have been seized in a new, sweeping roundup of spy suspects.

The figure was made public by Erich Mielke, deputy chief of the force, who is currently making a round of speeches to whip up public sentiment against "Western agents, spies and saboteurs."

The latest roundup may have been touched off by the flight of five Czechs who shot their way westward from Prague. Three reached West Berlin. Their two companions were captured. The East German government has announced the two who were caught will be charged with the murder of four Communist policemen. The running gun fights turned loose a vast concentration of police which probably flushed scores of anti-Communists who might otherwise have gone undetected.

State Dept. Fires 484

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP) — The State Department declared yesterday it had dismissed 306 employes in this country and 178 alien employes abroad for security reasons in the past eight months.

Jury Foreman, Attorney Confer

BALTIMORE, Nov. 6 (AP)—State's Attorney Anselm Sodaro and Matthew C. Fenton, foreman of the grand jury considering a proposal to investigate the city administration, had a long conference today.

After the meeting, neither would discuss the next step to be taken.

Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro appeared before the body yesterday. He was the last of five top city officials to appear before the grand jury.

Hyman Pressman, local attorney whose criticisms touched the Off Street Parking Probe and resulted in criminal indictments being brought against two city officials and others, has demanded the full scale investigation of the administration.

New support for Pressman's proposal came today from Harry F. Kinefelter, insurance broker and onetime Republican candidate for mayor.

1954 Seen Boom Year

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—Reports by 138 leading economists show they expect 1954 to be the nation's second biggest business year with only a slight drop-off from 1953's boom levels, the F. W. Dodge Corp., construction news and marketing specialists, said yesterday.

Mother Writes To 22 U. S. POWs Refusing To Return

WEAVERVILLE, N. C., Nov. 6 (AP)—A mountain mother who sent two sons to war reported between sobs today that she had written the 22 American prisoners of war who allegedly chose communism, begging them to come home.

Told by newsmen that the 22 prisoners had protested against mail desig d to "intimidate, slander, coerce and bribe them," Mrs. Ernest M. Reagan said:

"I just wrote a one-page letter to each one of the boys and asked them if they would please come home." The letters to the "lonely boys" in Korea were like those "I would have written my own son," she added.

"Oh, I was so careful what I wrote so I wouldn't even displease the Communists. I tried to thank each one for all they had done for us in the war, and asked if they would please come home and make their relatives happy."

One of her sons was a Marine who went through some of the bitterest fighting in the Korean War. Another son fought in World War II.

She wrote her Marine son in Korea once a day and "the other boys envied him," Mrs. Reagan said.

Social Security Site Is Selected

TOWSON, Md., Nov. 6 (AP)—Baltimore County commissioners today said they think a new Social Security building will be located at Ingleside Avenue and the Baltimore National Pike in Catonsville, Md.

Rep. George H. Fallon (D-Md) said yesterday a Baltimore site had been selected for the building, which would house more than 5,000 workers, but he did not identify it. Catonsville is a suburb on Baltimore's southwest outskirts.

Niles Is Mentioned For Court Of Appeals

BALTIMORE, Nov. 6 (AP)—If Chief Judge Simon Sobeloff of the Court of Appeals should be named U. S. Solicitor general in the near future, Judge Emory H. Niles of the Baltimore Supreme Bench may be moved up to the Court of Appeals.

That was the way one prominent Republican official viewed the situation today. He declined use of his name.

The federal post which most observers feel will go to Sobeloff has been vacant since Philip B. Perlman, Baltimore Democrat, resigned last year.

Cost Of Living Scale Is In Will

TORONTO, Nov. 6 (AP)—Charles Zuckerman of Toronto left his widow an annual income of $5,000 and in his will told the trustees of his $86,688 estate to watch the fluctuating cost of living.

Her name was Patricia Ann Bohlen, she was eight years old and she couldn't remember her mother's name or her father's.

And how in the world she got downtown on such a dismal, snowy day—well, nobody seems to know.

McCarthy To Probe Private Firm Files

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) said today that he will broaden his military security investstigation to include private firms doing secret work for the armed services.

The chairman of the Senate investigations subcommittee made this announcement to reporters after he had spent three hours conferring with Secretary of the Army Stevens, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Army chief of staff, and other civilian and military Army officials.

Russians Seize 100 East Germans As Spy Suspects

BERLIN, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Russian zone secret police disclosed tonight at least 100 East Germans have been seized in a new, sweeping roundup of spy suspects.

The figure was made public by Erich Mielke, deputy chief of the force, who is currently making a round of speeches to whip up public sentiment against "Western agents, spies and saboteurs."

The latest roundup may have been touched off by the flight of five Czechs who shot their way westward from Prague. Three reached West Berlin. Their two companions were captured. The East German government has announced the two who were caught will be charged with the murder of four Communist policemen. The running gun fights turned loose a vast concentration of police which probably flushed scores of anti-Communists who might otherwise have gone undetected.

State Dept. Fires 484

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP) — The State Department declared yesterday it had dismissed 306 employes in this country and 178 alien employes abroad for security reasons in the past eight months.

Jury Foreman, Attorney Confer

BALTIMORE, Nov. 6 (AP)—State's Attorney Anselm Sodaro and Matthew C. Fenton, foreman of the grand jury considering a proposal to investigate the city administration, had a long conference today.

After the meeting, neither would discuss the next step to be taken.

Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro appeared before the body yesterday. He was the last of five top city officials to appear before the grand jury.

Hyman Pressman, local attorney whose criticisms touched the Off Street Parking Probe and resulted in criminal indictments being brought against two city officials and others, has demanded the full scale investigation of the administration.

New support for Pressman's proposal came today from Harry F. Kinefelter, insurance broker and onetime Republican candidate for mayor.

1954 Seen Boom Year

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—Reports by 138 leading economists show they expect 1954 to be the nation's second biggest business year with only a slight drop-off from 1953's boom levels, the F. W. Dodge Corp., construction news and marketing specialists, said yesterday.

Mother Writes To 22 U. S. POWs Refusing To Return

WEAVERVILLE, N. C., Nov. 6 (AP)—A mountain mother who sent two sons to war reported between sobs today that she had written the 22 American prisoners of war who allegedly chose communism, begging them to come home.

Told by newsmen that the 22 prisoners had protested against mail desig[illegible] to "intimidate, slander, coerce and bribe them," Mrs. Ernest M. Reagan said:

"I just wrote a one-page letter to each one of the boys and asked them if they would please come home." The letters to the "lonely boys" in Korea were like those "I would have written my own son," she added.

"Oh, I was so careful what I wrote so I wouldn't even displease the Communists. I tried to thank each one for all they had done for us in the war, and asked if they would please come home and make their relatives happy."

One of her sons was a Marine who went through some of the bitterest fighting in the Korean War. Another son fought in World War II.

She wrote her Marine son in Korea once a day and "the other boys envied him," Mrs. Reagan said.

Social Security Site Is Selected

TOWSON, Md., Nov. 6 (AP)—Baltimore County commissioners today said they think a new Social Security building will be located at Ingleside Avenue and the Baltimore National Pike in Catonsville, Md.

Rep. George H. Fallon (D-Md) said yesterday a Baltimore site had been selected for the building, which would house more than 5,000 workers, but he did not identify it. Catonsville is a suburb on Baltimore's southwest outskirts.

Washington's Ancestors Took Name Of Old Hall

COMPLETES COURSE — Pvt. Charles Whorton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Whorton, of Oldtown, has graduated from the Ordnance Specialist Course at Aberdeen Proving Ground as a track vehicle repairman.

After all these years it now appears that the principal Cumberland street along which the County Court House, the Cumberland Free Public Library and the Board of Education Building stand should be called Hertburne (pronounced Heartburn).

What's more Allegany County's neighbor to the east should be referred to as Hertburne County and the nation's capital should be known as Hertburne, D. C.

A dispatch from Washington, England, reports that George Washington's family got its name from Washington Old Hall in that village, situated in the English county of Durham.

It seems that this old hall, the home of the first American president's ancestors from 1183 to 1613, has just had a $21,000 facelifting. The hall is located in the center of unkept grounds just 300 yards from an unused slag heap, legacy of the nearby coal mines.

This hall was purchased 117 years after the Norman conquest of England by one William de Hertburne (pronounced Heartburn.) He adopted the name of his new manor, the Saxon Wyssington or Wessington. In time William de Wessington's descendants became Washingtons.

Washington Old Hall remained in the hands of descendants and relatives of the Washingtons until the family moved to the much better known Sulgrave Manor, in Northamptonshire, about a century before George Washington's great-grandfather left to go to Virginia.

Parents' Night Events Planned For Schools

Annual "Parents' Night" programs will be held Monday by Allegany and Fort Hill High Schools in conjunction with the observance of National Education Week.

Both institutions have scheduled visitation periods from 7 to 8 p. m. when teachers will meet with parents in the various classrooms, speakers for the occasion and entertainment.

Homer S. Higgins, personnel supervisor of the Board of Education, will talk at Allegany during the auditorium program beginning at 8:15 p. m. His topic will follow the general theme of "Good Schools Are Your Responsibility."

"Community Sing" Planned

Fort Hill will have three "brief" speakers: Victor D. Heisey, principal of the school; W. Earle Cobey, member of the Board of Education, and Mrs. Leah Hafer, chairman of the Civil Service Commission.

Entertainment at the two schools will feature instrumental and vocal groups. Students participating in the program at Allegany will join their parents in the audience for a "Community Sing" of patriotic and other songs.

During the week of November 8, public address systems in the schools will be used to convey the following daily themes: Monday, "Learning and Fundamentals;" Tuesday, "Building National Strength;" Wednesday (Armistice Day), "Preparing for Loyal Citizenship;" Thursday, "School Board in Action," and Friday, "Your Child's Teachers."

Committees Named

Other activities are planned, and "reminders" will be placed on bulletin boards.

In charge of arrangements for Monday night's program at Allegany are Miss Betsy Ross Rankin, dramatics; Miss Dorothy Willison, vocal, and S. Lua Syckes, instrumental.

The Fort Hill committee is composed of Frank R. Winsheimer, chairman, assisted by Rosalie C. Shobe, Karl G. Perry, Yola V. Hudson, Ozella Robertson and Alfred W. Fritz.

Celanese Plant Recalls 46 Workers

Forty-six workers were called back to the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation Thursday.

The group includes 26 spinners and 20 Textile Department workers. Most had been furloughed only a short time.

The present staff of the plant, which has been hard hit by a widespread slump in the textile market, is 2,785.

Hospital Is Visited By Health Group

Members of the Cresaptown and Potomac Park, Corriganville and Ellerslie lay health groups were taken on a supervised tour of Memorial Hospital Thursday afternoon.

The visit, arranged by Mrs. Leila Vandegrift, state health nurse, covered the maternity floor, operating room, pediatrics, dispensary, orthopedics and dining halls.

The tour ended with a talk on "Nursing As A Profession" by Mrs. Gladys Brooks, superintendent of nurses. She also took the groups through the hospital's nurses home.

In the hospital, a graduate nurse or supervisor spoke on procedure and answered questions.

Those making the tour were Miss Margaret Morrissey, state health nurse, Mrs. Cecil Dawson, Mrs. James Armstrong, Mrs. Brownlee Armstrong, Mrs. Ferman Helmstetter, Mrs. Edward Walker, Mrs. Dirk Vandenberg, Mrs. Edward Lewis, Mrs. Herbert Martz, Mrs. Frank Ferrone, Mrs. Charles Wendt, Mrs. Milton Moon, Mrs. Paul Orndorf.

Mrs. Merle Hendrickson, Mrs. Otis Chaney, Mrs. Nellie Holler, Mrs. Chester Crabtree, Mrs. Henrietta Robinette, Mrs. Maxine Dash, Mrs. William Barncord, Mrs. Paul Poorbaugh, Mrs. Harry Grimes, Mrs. Albert Snelson and Mrs. Lester McGill.

B & O Railroad Now Using New Tickets

A book-type interline ticket designed to better serve the passenger is in use at all ticket offices on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, J. F. Whittington, general passenger traffic manager, announced today.

The new ticket book corresponding closely to dollar-bill size, has been used experimentally at 16 test ticket offices since June 1, 1952, and at 18 additional offices since March of this year.

The favorable reaction of the traveling public to the utility and convenience of the new type ticket as well at its advantages to the railroad has dictated its general adoption for the system, Whittington said.

The new ticket replaces the old conventional fan-fold forms of interline strip tickets used for all trips requiring travel over one or more railroads in addition to the B & O. The simple card-type tickets will continue to be used for all trips between points on the B & O system.

Christmas Seal Sale Begins Nov. 13

Glenn K. Davis, chairman of the Allegany-Garrett County Tuberculosis Association's 1953 Christmas Seal Sale, is shown inspecting mail bags containing letters which will be mailed November 13. Approximately 26,000 letters will be sent to residents of the two counties the end of next week. In the center is a poster-size reproduction of the 1953 Christmas seal which will be used to decorate thousands of Christmas packages and greeting card envelopes. The seal is featured with a young child singing Christmas carols.

26,000 Residents To Receive Christmas Seals And Letters

By LARRY GRECO

The Allegany-Garrett County Tuberculosis Association's annual Christmas Seal Sale will get underway Friday, November 13, with the mailing of approximately 26,000 letters containing the Yule stamps.

Glenn K. Davis, 515 Dreyer Avenue, manager of the Tri-State Towel Service, will be chairman of the sale again this year. He has been named head of the annual drive for the past three years in Garrett and Allegany counties.

No goal has been set for the two counties, according to Miss Jean K. Reinhart, executive secretary of the association. A child singing Christmas carols will be the feature of this year's seal.

Miss Reinhart said that when the letters are mailed there will probably be some duplications and two letters may reach the same address.

In such a case, Miss Reinhart pointed out, the addressee should send in donations for only one letter. He may send back the extra seals or he may keep them and only send the extra address tag so that the duplication may be corrected for next year.

The association will accept any amount of donation, Miss Reinhart said.

The local association gives direct financial assistance to tuberculosis patients both at home or in hospitals when such help is needed by them. This includes clothing, monthly allowances, food orders and even cost of dentures.

In addition, Miss Reinhart added, the association locates cases of tuberculosis through its annual X-ray survey, and area residents may receive a free X-ray at any time at the clinic at the Health Department Office. These services are available through funds from the Seal Sale.

The association also takes care of tuberculosis cases before and after hospital treatment, and provides chest clinics every Friday from 9 a. m. to noon at the City Hall. The clinics are operated by the State Health Department.

Russia's European Satellites

Signs of unrest and disaffection in Russia's European satellites have appeared at frequent intervals since the death of Stalin in March, accompanied in some areas by mass protests and violence. And for the first time, local Communist regimes have been confessing past "mistakes," promising concessions, granting amnesties, and proclaiming new policies to improve the lot of the people.

Unlike previous shifts in the Communist party line, the recent changes from a "hard" to a "soft" policy have been announced for the most part by the same local leaders who had imposed the political and economic programs now being scrapped. While most of the captive governments have been reorganized in line with the Kremlin's new "collective leadership" principle, no violent purges on the pattern of the past have yet been staged in any of the satellite states.

Three major events in recent months have had wide repercussions throughout Russia's European empire. The first occurred in Czechoslovakia early in June when violent demonstrations against a government order revaluing the currency broke out in Pilsen, Prague, and other Czech cities. Popular resentment flared quickly into open defiance of Communist authority. Severe measures were used by the frightened government to stamp out the disorders, but there were later concessions to both workers and farmers.

The East Berlin workers' uprising of June 17—second of the three major events—was even more disturbing to Moscow and its captive regimes. For the first time since the war, Red Army tanks and machine guns had to be used to suppress a large-scale revolt which threatened—for 48 hours—to overwhelm the Soviet-sponsored government of Eastern Germany. Before the movement was crushed, thousands of angry workers had shouted their defiance of Communist rule, the Red flag had been torn down and trampled, and strikes and mass demonstrations had spread to some 75 towns in the Soviet zone of occupation. Despite subsequent concessions to the workers, reports of unrest and organized resistance continue to come from East Germany.

The third major event, in Hungary, followed a different pattern. Unlike East Berlin, there had been no riots before the reorganization of the Hungarian government early in June. The new government headed by Imre Nagy completely reversed almost every domestic policy of the previous regime. Acknowledging that grave errors had been committed in the past, Nagy promised a long list of reforms to improve the standard of living, increase production of consumer goods, and relax the collectivization of agriculture.

Since mid-summer 1953 similar concessions have been reported from other satellite states in Eastern Europe—and from the Soviet Union as well. The basic causes of unrest, most Western observers agree, have been economic. Forced expansion of heavy industry to meet Soviet rearmament programs, imposed during Stalin's regime without regard to local needs or desires, produced economic maladjustments throughout the satellite area and discontent inside the borders of the U.S.S.R. itself.

That the Malenkov regime is reversing Stalinist policies in Russia as well as in the satellites is evident from the changes announced in recent statements and decrees issued by the new Kremlin leadership. The latest decree calls for major revision of the current five-year plan and orders a 72 per cent increase in consumer goods production by the end of 1954.

Weighing the evidence from all sources, Washington and other Western capitals have found ample confirmation of widespread discontent and disaffection behind the Iron Curtain, but little evidence that the Red regimes can be overthrown by spontaneous uprisings unless there is also defection in the Soviet armed forces.

Butter To The Soviet

From Geneva comes a report that international trade experts are amusing themselves wondering what the Soviet Union is doing with all the fish and butter it has been importing. They are asking, specifically, whether these foods are going to the people of Russia or are being shipped elsewhere—to East Germany or China.

The only trouble with speculation of this kind is that it is likely to keep on being speculation. In Russia information on such matters is kept secret. That is true even though the press is permitted to report speeches like the one made recently by A. I. Mikoyan, minister of Domestic Trade, to trade organization commissars in Moscow. He said there is need to get more food to the people.

It would be of some value, though, to know where the fish and butter are going. If it is going abroad, the destination might indicate what trouble spot is most in need of treatment—and it would reflect an intention to stay there. If it is not going abroad, the conclusion might be that the Kremlin has made up its mind to make the regime solid with the people at home as rapidly as possible.

In any case, large imports of fish and butter indicate that the Soviet government is not sacrificing any guns to relieve food shortages in the satellites or at home— at least not enough to solve the immediate problem. The conclusion seems inescapable that a large share of Russian production has been going into arms.

Closing A Loophole

There are few American taxpayers who will not subscribe wholeheartedly to the principles of the pension bill which Senator Williams of Delaware will introduce in the next session of Congress.

By the provisions of this measure a federal pension will be denied to any public official who has been convicted by the courts of having unlawfully used his position to enrich himself or who wilfully betrays his country to a foreign power.

Senator Williams mentioned no names, but one of the men he had in mind must have been Alger Hiss, now in jail for perjury and who under present law will be entitled to a pension when he reaches the age of 62.

Others upon whom the axe would fall under the senator's proposal are two former members of Congress who were convicted of corrupt practices while in office and one of whom is already receiving retirement benefits at the expense of the people. A third group includes those numerous internal revenue officials under Truman convicted of bribery and embezzlement in the performance of their tax-collecting duties.

The idea that the taxpayers should help support men who were faithless to their trust or disloyal to the United States is repugnant. The Williams bill should commend itself to a majority of the members of Congress.

Unusual Pregnancies

Ectopic pregnancy is an abnormal condition in which the fertilized ovum becomes embedded outside the uterus. In most instances the egg fails to descend, on its way to the ovary, and lodges in one of the fallopian tubes. Now and then it takes root and grows in the abdominal cavity from which a normal child is delivered occasionally by caesarean section. Such cases are so unusual, however, they make headlines.

No one knows why one out of every 300 pregnancies is ectopic in nature. As a rule, there is a pelvic disturbance that arrests the progress of the ovum on its journey from ovary to uterus. In the majority, previous inflammation leaves the inside of the tube so distorted or irritable the egg finds it difficult to pass. In others, adhesions block the passageway and now and then pockets have developed which trap the tiny cell.

When the ovum takes root in a tube it starts to grow like any other pregnancy. Milady misses her period and, for practical purposes, is on her way to having a family. As the fetus enlarges the tube distends and she may notice pains in the lower abdomen on the affected side. This usually takes place after a few weeks and may be accompanied by a slight, irregular bloody discharge which leads every one to believe that a miscarriage or a normal period is in the making. But as the fetus grows, pain and bleeding increase and when the woman strains or is jarred, distress may be so severe that she feels faint and dizzy. Rupture of the tube at this stage leads to profuse hemorrhage which explains why ectopic pregnancy is so dangerous. When bleeding is all internal it may escape detection but usually a sufficient amount escapes to the outside to offer a clew that an emergency exists.

Rupture of the tube leads to sudden, excruciating pain, first on the affected side and then all over the lower abdomen. It is accompanied by nausea, vomiting, and diarrhea and, when large amounts of blood are lost, by shock. Occasionally the fetus ruptures from the tube and becomes attached to the intestine where it grows as an abdominal pregnancy. When this occurs the baby seldom lives because the circulation is inadequate and undue pressure is exerted by the other organs.

All of these cases are emergencies which demand skilled care. When pain and bleeding are profuse, operation is needed to stop the source of bleeding and to remove the "explosive body." All too often the tube is beyond repair and must be taken out but the other tube remains so that subsequent pregnancies are possible.

HOT COFFEE

M. C. writes: During heat waves I become exhausted but can keep going by drinking several cups of hot coffee a day. My friends think I would do better with iced drinks. What is your opinion?

REPLY

Many authorities believe that hot strong coffee gives more of a lift on hot, humid days than iced drinks, which tend to make thirst worse and may cause bowel spasm. In addition, hot coffee increases perspiration which aids the heat mechanism and makes the body feel more comfortable. More recently a combination of ergotamine tartrate and caffeine has been suggested as a stimulant in heat exhaustion.

GOLD LIMITED

Mrs. L. W. writes: How long can gold shots be taken?. Does a person become immune to gold after two years?

REPLY

If small doses of gold are used, more "shots" can be given. As a rule, however, there is a limit to the amount of gold the body will tolerate. Forget about immunity; if the drug has not worked after two years, it is time to change remedies.

CAUSATIVE GERMS

J. F. writes: Are diseases such as Rocky mountain spotted fever and typhus causes by viruses?

REPLY

The diseases mentioned are caused by riskettsial organisms. Formerly these germs were considered large viruses, but they now have their own classification (Rickettsia). In size and nature they lie between bacteria and viruses, and the diseases they produce can be combated by the antibiotics and other remedies, whereas viral diseases usually are resistant to drugs.

ALBUMIN

T. G. writes: Will penicillin cure albumin in the urine?

REPLY

Only if albumin stems from a kidney or bladder infection caused by an organism that penicillin affects. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on albumin in the urine.

LOST PADDING

T. Z. writes: Is it natural for people in their sixties to have sunken temples?

REPLY

This hollowness occurs with weight loss rather than with age. The condition is seen more often in older people because of their tendency to lose fat under the skin.

Republicans Could Have Elected Middle-Of-Road Governor In New Jersey; Congressman Clifford Case Retired From Congress

NEW YORK — There were two factors behind the Democratic election sweep in New York and New Jersey this week. One was the national drop in GOP-Eisenhower popularity. The other was pure accident. Here is how the accidents took place in New York and New Jersey:

Accident No. 1 — In New Jersey a clean-cut and highly revered Republican congressman, Clifford Case, wanted to run for governor. But when he went down to the White House, he could get neither White House nor top leader Republican blessing. Case had always been elected with strong Democratic-labor backing, could have carried New Jersey easily. But he wanted to run on a moderate, coalition platform, also wanted to attack McCarthyism.

Down at the White House they discouraged this. McCarthy, Case was told, would be needed to help various Republican candidates win in the 1954 election. He must not be attacked. Other GOP leaders in New Jersey didn't want a governor who had strong Democratic support. So Case, fed up with his own leaders, resigned from Congress to join the Ford Foundation. Now the GOP has lost not only the governorship but Case's own district in Congress. Had White House advisers been wiser, they could have had both.

Accident No. 2 — In New York the Democratic party accidentally experienced an internal blood-bath. For some years the Democratic party in New York had been dying on the vine. It had coasted along on Roosevelt popularity. Its leaders were old, inactive, getting reactionary. There was bitterness between the old Farley wing which had bolted FDR and the New Dealers partially led by young FDR. Nobody expected the Democrats to win this year.

Then, accidentally, Mayor Impellitteri got into a dog fight with Bob Wagner Jr., son of the late great senator who authored the old-age pension and labor legislation of New Deal days. This shook the Democratic party to its roots, forced a house-cleaning of old guard leaders, after which Charles Buckley, who stepped into the shoes of the late boss Ed Flynn of the Bronx, began building from the bottom.

Under the watchful eye of Senator Kefauver's Crime Committee, Carmine De Sapio, head of Tammany, began cleaning out the mobsters. Three reactionary Democratic leaders from Brooklyn, Staten Island and Long Island, Sutherland, Roe, and Sullivan — sometimes called the three palookas — were also pushed into right field.

Thanks to this blood-bath, there emerged a new streamlined Democratic organization which will probably elect the next governor of New York — either FDR Jr. or Averell Harriman — and is certain to send a liberal, New Deal delegation to the next Democratic convention.

Accident No. 3 — There was one other accident in both New York and New Jersey—revolving around a convict in Sing Sing prison. It enabled the Democrats to show the voters that the giant "clean up corruption" broom, which swept Ike into office, had been dropped by the Republicans. The Democrats picked up the broom.

In New York, some of the top Republican leaders closest to Tom Dewey, turned up as secret owners of race-track stock. Certain Democrats were mixed up in it too, but not men close to a governor who was elected as a crime-buster, such as Russell Sprague, a Dewey right-hand man and Republican national committeeman.

In addition to tremendous payoffs to labor racketeers at the race tracks, it also developed that acting Lt. Gov. Arthur Wicks had been a caller upon convicted labor-racketeer Joey Fay, a man sent to Sing Sing for a maximum 15 years for one of the worst shakedowns in New York history.

Race-Track Politics

The Joey Fay scandal became contagious. It jumped the Hudson River and spread to New Jersey. There it developed that Paul Troast, a contractor selected as GOP candidate for governor instead of liberal Congressman Clifford Case, had written a glowing letter to Governor Dewey asking that Fay be released from jail.

Though efforts were made to hush it up, this column also revealed that Fay, while still in jail, remained president of the International Excavating Corporation which got a subcontract for building the New Jersey Turnpike. Candidate Troast was head of the New Jersey Turnpike Authority.

On top of this, it developed that Eugene Mori, owner of the Garden State Race Track at Camden, N. J., and of the Tanforan Race Track in California, sold land to the New Jersey Turnpike for $6,000 an acre which he purchased three years before for $322 an acre. And Troast was head of the turnpike.

Meanwhile the Troast revelations in New Jersey were not helped by hesitation on the part of the new incumbent of the White House. At first Ike let it be known he wasn't going to enter New Jersey. He would play no part in Jersey politics. This looked like a slap at candidate Troast. But the White House called more attention to the slight by saying it wasn't meant as a slap at all.

Accident No. 4 — Occurred a long time ago, so long ago that Tom Dewey probably doesn't remember it. But in 1944 he made the mistake of asking that Warren Moscow, then covering Albany for the New York Times, be transferred. He didn't like Moscow. The request came to N. Y. Times publisher Arthur Sulzberger through Republican industrialist Roger Straus and at first Sulzberger was inclined to honor it.

But the late Jimmy James, editor of the Times, remonstrated, said Dewey didn't like Moscow merely because he asked penetrating press-conference questions.

In the end Moscow was not transferred. But his disregard for Dewey didn't diminish. And later, leaving precarious newspapering, he entered New York politics, became public works commissioner for Manhattan, got acquainted with young Bob Wagner, wrote his speeches, managed his primary campaign, was the biggest backstage brain-truster in this week's climactic election of the new mayor of New York.

More than any other one man except Wagner himself, Warren Moscow, the man Dewey tried to kick out, contributed to the defeat of Dewey's Republican candidate for mayor of New York.

Soil Conservation

It is not to be expected that any effort to eliminate an unnecessary cost to the taxpayer will meet with no opposition. In private industry, reorganizations constantly take place to reduce costs or to increase efficiency, or both. The obsolescent is abolished as rapidly as possible. When such measures are taken in government, the outcry is immediate and articulate, because officeholders hate to lose their jobs and always find friends to fight for them. The Hoover Commission has run upon the fact that jobs, once established for a good purpose, continue after their usefulness has totally disappeared. Nevertheless appointments are made, salaries and expense allowances are drawn. These men actually have nothing to do but to get their pay.

In the matter of the reorganization of the Department of Agriculture, which had been permitted to grow into a behemoth, President Eisenhower sent Plan No. 2 to Congress, which was accepted by Congress and is now the law. The department gave those who favored or opposed the reorganization plan until November 1 to state their views. This has been done and the plan has now been put into effect. The argument concerning it continues because there is nothing about which someone has not a better plan. That is human nature.

One of the phases of the reorganization plan of the department has to do with the Soil Conservation Service, an activity of the states in which the federal government participates in an advisory capacity. For about 18 years, the federal government has maintained regional offices which provided a supervisory service and administration of state programs. The idea was that the Department of Agriculture could do the job better than state soil conservation departments could.

Whether that was ever true is one of those arguments that can go on forever and prove nothing. That most states are now prepared to do their own jobs efficiently after 18 years of federal tutelage is generally admitted. Therefore the time has come to abolish the regional offices of the Soil Conservation Service because their utility has now diminished to a point where they are no longer needed. Their abolition will save some money without impairing any service.

Actually, as of March 1, 1953, farmers and ranchers had organized 2,481 soil conservation districts of their own. There are also 20 grass conservation districts. In a word, the job of soil conservation is being done as a cooperative voluntary enterprise, within each state.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson takes the position that ours is not a totalitarian government and that what the people or the states can do for themselves, the federal government ought not to duplicate at great expense.

He said of this:

"The conservation and improvement of our land and water resources is primarily the responsibility of the farmer, the rancher, and the custodians of forest land. It is important that farmers band together in local soil conservation districts and watershed associations, and that they take the initiative in protecting and developing our agricultural resources. Agriculture can go forward confidently in such locally directed soil conservation districts."

The opposition to this reorganization plan seems to be based on the argument that a government bureau once established should never be abolished. This is not a novel idea, as the Hoover Commission has discovered, finding many agencies of government which exist to duplicate and triplicate work done by other agencies and by the states.

If the objective of the reorganization of the executive branch of government is to eliminate the duplicative and the obsolescent, the supervisory offices of the Soil Conservation Service should be abolished and the state conservationists should be permitted to do their work with due regard to the maturity which they have achieved since 1935 when all this started as a phase of flood control.

Herbert Hoover, in a telegram to Secretary Benson, said:

". . . Your plans of reorganization are along the lines of the recommendations of the task force of agriculturists . . . They have been exhaustively debated since and favored by most of the substantial elements concerned . . . If displaced officials are to counteract reorganization for economy and efficiency in the government, all of us may as well throw up our hands . . ."

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — They have a White House rule that doesn't permit first-person quotation of everything a president says in a press conference—but it's most unfortunate because by all odds the most interesting piece of news about the election was what Mr. Eisenhower said about it to the press.

There were at least three opportunities for him to be devious—to avail himself of the tricks of the political game or to boom forth with a sweeping statement of confidence in the future of his party, as if nothing adverse had happened Tuesday. But he turned them all aside and talked frankly, earnestly and without guile.

For one thing the President declined to be drawn into an analysis or interpretation of the election results. He frankly said he didn't know any more about it than—if as much as—some of the newspapermen interrogating him. But he did recognize that in some places Republicans had lost and in some places they had won, and he didn't feel that he should say whether or not the election was a test of his policies because he frankly didn't know.

Getting Progressive Change

At one point in the conversation Mr. Eisenhower told the press that as most people know, he is a novice in politics and has never claimed to be a politician. But he does pin his faith to a belief in the common sense of the American people when they are informed. He thinks they have to be informed as to the basic facts — and some of these facts are rather stark and disagreeable—and the administration has the duty of putting forth and enacting a program that the mass of the American people will say is a good one. The job of the administration, he says, is to provide a dynamic and forward-looking program.

When the reporters asked him if perhaps some voters thought they hadn't yet gotten the change they voted for last autumn, the President said he thought the kind of change the people wanted was an orderly and progressive change and not just any other kind. He added they were going to get it and are getting it.

Throughout the press conference, the President handled himself with calmness and poise and didn't become entangled in the traps into which some of the questions might have led him. An effort was made to get him to weaken his recent statement that he would favor the election of Republicans everywhere. The inquiry was whether he would support a Republican with a record that was not in support of his administration. Previously the President had remarked that his idea of endorsing Republicanism generally the other day was not intended to say he supported every candidate, irrespective of individual character or integrity. But, even if this wasn't involved, he was then asked, would he suport anti-administration Republicans for re-election in Congress next year? The President declined to commit himself to what he would do about this, but he gave the impression he was not going to become involved in local contests with specific individuals in his party.

Thus the President tried also to convey the idea that, in saying he had "lost skirmishes before"—and he permitted direct quotation on that phrase—he wasn't commenting on individual races but, as titular leader of the party, on the fact that some Republican contests were lost.

Has Definite Ideas

The President didn't hesitate to answer another question as to whether, having lost skirmishes, he intended "to win the war." This obvious reference to future congressional elections drew from the President the earnest statement that he never went into a war to lose one.

The use of such words as progressive and forward-looking indicate that the President has definite ideas as to the kind of a legislative and executive program the country expects from him.

The advocacy of progressive measures will never wreck the Republican party — although it has split the Democrats of the North and South—if, in sponsoring them, the President takes all the members of his own party into his confidence ahead of time and gives each section or faction a chance to present its views.

vocacy of progressive measures will never wreck the Republican party—although it has split the Democrats of the North and South—if, in sponsoring them, the President takes all the members of his own party into his confidence ahead of time and gives each section or faction a chance to present its views.

Here And Now

Forgetting

Doctor James McCosh, when president of Princeton, used to preach occasionally for a neighboring pastor. Once a lady and gentleman came up after the service to greet him.

"You don't remember us, Dr. McCosh, but you married us 25 years ago, and in that time," she added, "we have never had a single disagreement."

"Ah," said the old educator, "I am sure that is very commendable, but I'm afraid it must have been awful dull."

It is not a dull moment, however, when a man forgets wife's birthday or their marriage anniversary;

Or husband forgets to post that special delivery letter meant to intercept a pending visit from some of the in-laws.

Forgetting is something to be ashamed of, especially if it cause injury or inconvenience to another. A lot of time is wasted when the committee has to wait for you—all because you forgot the hour.

All In Same Boat

The sexton forgot to ring the bell, and a hundred folks forgot to go to church. You forgot to lock the stable door and your horse was stolen. The only person who ever knew what electricity is forgot to note it down.

Tie a string around your finger if that helps, but remember to bring home the bacon, and that next Wednesday is Armistice Day, and don't forget to read this "colyum" in THE NEWS every Saturday. Then you can go to the head of the class.

Everybody has a yen to be remembered. Hence libraries, colleges and hospitals are endowed to perpetuate the name of the donor, who not only gives, but gets a deduction on his income tax, thus killing two birds with one stone.

Farmers are not forgotten in their quandary. The government issues a three-cent stamp with the picture of a "Future Farmer of America" thereon — reminding all consumers of our debt to the farmers of today, who, incidentally, are in the same boat with the rest of us.

In a watch night party a young lady of the company was observed to leave the room when the bells began to ring. It was told afterwards that she went to keep tryst with the memory of her fiance who had died five years before at the stroke of midnight. That is memory! — "dear as remembered kisses after death."

Stored For Reference

The recording angel, technically known as the unconscious self, gathers up all the impressions of our waking hours and carefully stores them in memory cells for future reference. So in the garden of memory we have "June roses in December."

Our instincts, it is said, are transmitted from a former existence. If the transmigrationists are correct, one specimen of a man I knew must at one time have been an insect.

In the Battle of the Pyramids, Napoleon said: "Soldiers, from the summit of yonder pyramids, 40 centuries look down upon you." Could that be literally true?

He may have spoken more wisely than he knew. In the language of metaphysics, time and space are not entities, but relativities. Page Einstein!

If we should sleep a thousand years and awake, we would not know that time had elapsed. We would only be aware of change.

We have no present positive light on the nature of death, save by Divine revelation. Having no further use for earthly categories, such as time and space, there is no apparent reason why the baby should be thrown out with the bath, but every reason to believe that self-consciousness will con-

Consciousness Will Last

How far that consciousness will last is speculation. Forty centuries at least, no doubt forever.

Science adds its testimony to faith.

A professor in the University of New Mexico, in addressing a national service organization in Albuquerque, said that we are on the verge of a more wonderful discovery and nuclear fission. Before too long we shall be able to hear the voices of Moses, Plato, Shakespeare, Luther and Christ.

I should like to be able to tune in on Moses when he broke the Tables of the Law, or hear Jesus say, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

"Cybernetics" applied to invention has already constructed machines that can do almost everything but think.

Extended to psychology, it may enable us to do our thinking by proxy, while we go off on a tangent, or a vacation.

But invention will never build a machine that will excuse us from repenting of our sins, and serving God and our fellowmen.

Russia's European Satellites

Signs of unrest and disaffection in Russia's European satellites have appeared at frequent intervals since the death of Stalin in March, accompanied in some areas by mass protests and violence. And for the first time, local Communist regimes have been confessing past "mistakes," promising concessions, granting amnesties, and proclaiming new policies to improve the lot of the people.

Unlike previous shifts in the Communist party line, the recent changes from a "hard" to a "soft" policy have been announced for the most part by the same local leaders who had imposed the political and economic programs now being scrapped. While most of the captive governments have been reorganized in line with the Kremlin's new "collective leadership" principle, no violent purges on the pattern of the past have yet been staged in any of the satellite states.

Three major events in recent months have had wide repercussions throughout Russia's European empire. The first occurred in Czechoslovakia early in June when violent demonstrations against a government order revaluing the currency broke out in Pilsen, Prague, and other Czech cities. Popular resentment flared quickly into open defiance of Communist authority. Severe measures were used by the frightened government to stamp out the disorders, but there were later concessions to both workers and farmers.

The East Berlin workers' uprising of June 17—second of the three major events—was even more disturbing to Moscow and its captive regimes. For the first time since the war, Red Army tanks and machine guns had to be used to suppress a large-scale revolt which threatened—for 48 hours—to overwhelm the Soviet-sponsored government of Eastern Germany. Before the movement was crushed, thousands of angry workers had shouted their defiance of Communist rule, the Red flag had been torn down and trampled, and strikes and mass demonstrations had spread to some 75 towns in the Soviet zone of occupation. Despite subsequent concessions to the workers, reports of unrest and organized resistance continue to come from East Germany.

The third major event, in Hungary, followed a different pattern. Unlike East Berlin, there had been no riots before the reorganization of the Hungarian government early in June. The new government headed by Imre Nagy completely reversed almost every domestic policy of the previous regime. Acknowledging that grave errors had been committed in the past, Nagy promised a long list of reforms to improve the standard of living, increase production of consumer goods, and relax the collectivization of agriculture.

Since mid-summer 1953 similar concessions have been reported from other satellite states in Eastern Europe—and from the Soviet Union as well. The basic causes of unrest, most Western observers agree, have been economic. Forced expansion of heavy industry to meet Soviet rearmament programs, imposed during Stalin's regime without regard to local needs or desires, produced economic maladjustments throughout the satellite area and discontent inside the borders of the U.S.S.R. itself.

That the Malenkov regime is reversing Stalinist policies in Russia as well as in the satellites is evident from the changes announced in recent statements and decrees issued by the new Kremlin leadership. The latest decree calls for major revision of the current five-year plan and orders a 72 per cent increase in consumer goods production by the end of 1954.

Weighing the evidence from all sources, Washington and other Western capitals have found ample confirmation of widespread discontent and disaffection behind the Iron Curtain, but little evidence that the Red regimes can be overthrown by spontaneous uprisings unless there is also defection in the Soviet armed forces.

Butter To The Soviet

From Geneva comes a report that international trade experts are amusing themselves wondering what the Soviet Union is doing with all the fish and butter it has been importing. They are asking, specifically, whether these foods are going to the people of Russia or are being shipped elsewhere—to East Germany or China.

The only trouble with speculation of this kind is that it is likely to keep on being speculation. In Russia information on such matters is kept secret. That is true even though the press is permitted to report speeches like the one made recently by A. I. Mikoyan, minister of Domestic Trade, to trade organization commissars in Moscow. He said there is need to get more food to the people.

It would be of some value, though, to know where the fish and butter are going. If it is going abroad, the destination might indicate what trouble spot is most in need of treatment—and it would reflect an intention to stay there. If it is not going abroad, the conclusion might be that the Kremlin has made up its mind to make the regime solid with the people at home as rapidly as possible.

In any case, large imports of fish and butter indicate that the Soviet government is not sacrificing any guns to relieve food shortages in the satellites or at home— at least not enough to solve the immediate problem. The conclusion seems inescapable that a large share of Russian production has been going into arms.

Closing A Loophole

There are few American taxpayers who will not subscribe wholeheartedly to the principles of the pension bill which Senator Williams of Delaware will introduce in the next session of Congress.

By the provisions of this measure a federal pension will be denied to any public official who has been convicted by the courts of having unlawfully used his position to enrich himself or who wilfully betrays his country to a foreign power.

Senator Williams mentioned no names, but one of the men he had in mind must have been Alger Hiss, now in jail for perjury and who under present law will be entitled to a pension when he reaches the age of 62.

Others upon whom the axe would fall under the senator's proposal are two former members of Congress who were convicted of corrupt practices while in office and one of whom is already receiving retirement benefits at the expense of the people. A third group includes those numerous internal revenue officials under Truman convicted of bribery and embezzlement in the performance of their tax-collecting duties.

The idea that the taxpayers should help support men who were faithless to their trust or disloyal to the United States is repugnant. The Williams bill should commend itself to a majority of the members of Congress.

How To Keep Well

Unusual Pregnancies

Ectopic pregnancy is an abnormal condition in which the fertilized ovum becomes embedded outside the uterus. In most instances the egg fails to descend, on its way to the ovary, and lodges in one of the fallopian tubes. Now and then it takes root and grows in the abdominal cavity from which a normal child is delivered occasionally by caesarean section. Such cases are so unusual, however, they make headlines.

No one knows why one out of every 300 pregnancies is ectopic in nature. As a rule, there is a pelvic disturbance that arrests the progress of the ovum on its journey from ovary to uterus. In the majority, previous inflammation leaves the inside of the tube so distorted or irritable the egg finds it difficult to pass. In others, adhesions block the passageway and now and then pockets have developed which trap the tiny cell.

When the ovum takes root in a tube it starts to grow like any other pregnancy. Milady misses her period and, for practical purposes, is on her way to having a family. As the fetus enlarges the tube distends and she may notice pains in the lower abdomen on the affected side. This usually takes place after a few weeks and may be accompanied by a slight, irregular bloody discharge which leads every one to believe that a miscarriage or a normal period is in the making. But as the fetus grows, pain and bleeding increase and when the woman strains or is jarred, distress may be so severe that she feels faint and dizzy. Rupture of the tube at this stage leads to profuse hemorrhage which explains why ectopic pregnancy is so dangerous. When bleeding is all internal it may escape detection but usually a sufficient amount escapes to the outside to offer a clew that an emergency exists.

Rupture of the tube leads to sudden, excruciating pain, first on the affected side and then all over the lower abdomen. It is accompanied by nausea, vomiting, and diarrhea and, when large amounts of blood are lost, by shock. Occasionally the fetus ruptures from the tube and becomes attached to the intestine where it grows as an abdominal pregnancy. When this occurs the baby seldom lives because the circulation is inadequate and undue pressure is exerted by the other organs.

All of these cases are emergencies which demand skilled care. When pain and bleeding are profuse, operation is needed to stop the source of bleeding and to remove the "explosive body." All too often the tube is beyond repair and must be taken out but the other tube remains so that subsequent pregnancies are possible.

HOT COFFEE

M. C. writes: During heat waves I become exhausted but can keep going by drinking several cups of hot coffee a day. My friends think I would do better with iced drinks. What is your opinion?

REPLY

Many authorities believe that hot strong coffee gives more of a lift on hot, humid days than iced drinks, which tend to make thirst worse and may cause bowel spasm. In addition, hot coffee increases perspiration which aids the heat mechanism and makes the body feel more comfortable. More recently a combination of ergotamine tartrate and caffeine has been suggested as a stimulant in heat exhaustion.

GOLD LIMITED

Mrs. L. W. writes: How long can gold shots be taken? Does a person become immune to gold after two years?

REPLY

If small doses of gold are used, more "shots" can be given. As a rule, however, there is a limit to the amount of gold the body will tolerate. Forget about immunity; if the drug has not worked after two years, it is time to change remedies.

CAUSATIVE GERMS

J. F. writes: Are diseases such as Rocky mountain spotted fever and typhus causes by viruses?

REPLY

The diseases mentioned are caused by riskettsial organisms. Formerly these germs were considered large viruses, but they now have their own classification (Rickettsia). In size and nature they lie between bacteria and viruses, and the diseases they produce can be combated by the antibiotics and other remedies, whereas viral diseases usually are resistant to drugs.

ALBUMIN

T. G. writes: Will penicillin cure albumin in the urine?

REPLY

Only if albumin stems from a kidney or bladder infection caused by an organism that penicillin affects. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on albumin in the urine.

LOST PADDING

T. Z. writes: Is it natural for people in their sixties to have sunken temples?

REPLY

This hollowness occurs with weight loss rather than with age. The condition is seen more often in older people because of their tendency to lose fat under the skin.

Republicans Could Have Elected Middle-Of-Road Governor In New Jersey; Congressman Clifford Case Retired From Congress

NEW YORK — There were two factors behind the Democratic election sweep in New York and New Jersey this week. One was the national drop in GOP-Eisenhower popularity. The other was pure accident. Here is how the accidents took place in New York and New Jersey:

Accident No. 1 — In New Jersey a clean-cut and highly revered Republican congressman, Clifford Case, wanted to run for governor. But when he went down to the White House, he could get neither White House nor top leader Republican blessing. Case had always been elected with strong Democratic-labor backing, could have carried New Jersey easily. But he wanted to run on a moderate, coalition platform, also wanted to attack McCarthyism.

Down at the White House they discouraged this. McCarthy, Case was told, would be needed to help various Republican candidates win in the 1954 election. He must not be attacked. Other GOP leaders in New Jersey didn't want a governor who had strong Democratic support. So Case, fed up with his own leaders, resigned from Congress to join the Ford Foundation. Now the GOP has lost not only the governorship but Case's own district in Congress. Had White House advisers been wiser, they could have had both.

Accident No. 2 — In New York the Democratic party accidentally experienced an internal blood-bath. For some years the Democratic party in New York had been dying on the vine. It had coasted along on Roosevelt popularity. Its leaders were old, inactive, getting reactionary. There was bitterness between the old Farley wing which had bolted FDR and the New Dealers partially led by young FDR. Nobody expected the Democrats to win this year.

Then, accidentally, Mayor Impellitteri got into a dog fight with Bob Wagner Jr., son of the late great senator who authored the old-age pension and labor legislation of New Deal days. This shook the Democratic party to its roots, forced a house-cleaning of old guard leaders, after which Charles Buckley, who stepped into the shoes of the late boss Ed Flynn of the Bronx, began building from the bottom.

Under the watchful eye of Senator Kefauver's Crime Committee, Carmine De Sapio, head of Tammany, began cleaning out the mobsters. Three reactionary Democratic leaders from Brooklyn, Staten Island and Long Island, Sutherland, Roe, and Sullivan — sometimes called the three palookas — were also pushed into right field.

Thanks to this blood-bath, there emerged a new streamlined Democratic organization which will probably elect the next governor of New York — either FDR Jr. or Averell Harriman — and is certain to send a liberal, New Deal delegation to the next Democratic convention.

Accident No. 3 — There was one other accident in both New York and New Jersey—revolving around a convict in Sing Sing prison. It enabled the Democrats to show the voters that the giant "clean up corruption" broom, which swept Ike into office, had been dropped by the Republicans. The Democrats picked up the broom.

In New York, some of the top Republican leaders closest to Tom Dewey, turned up as secret owners of race-track stock. Certain Democrats were mixed up in it too, but not men close to a governor who was elected as a crime-buster, such as Russell Sprague, a Dewey right-hand man and Republican national committeeman.

In addition to tremendous payoffs to labor racketeers at the race tracks, it also developed that acting Lt. Gov. Arthur Wicks had been a caller upon convicted labor-racketeer Joey Fay, a man sent to Sing Sing for a maximum 15 years for one of the worst shakedowns in New York history.

Race-Track Politics

The Joey Fay scandal became contagious. It jumped the Hudson River and spread to New Jersey. There it developed that Paul Troast, a contractor selected as GOP candidate for governor instead of liberal Congressman Clifford Case, had written a glowing letter to Governor Dewey asking that Fay be released from jail.

Though efforts were made to hush it up, this column also revealed that Fay, while still in jail, remained president of the International Excavating Corporation which got a subcontract for building the New Jersey Turnpike. Candidate Troast was head of the New Jersey Turnpike Authority.

On top of this, it developed that Eugene Mori, owner of the Garden State Race Track at Camden, N. J., and of the Tanforan Race Track in California, sold land to the New Jersey Turnpike for $6,000 an acre which he purchased three years before for $322 an acre. And Troast was head of the turnpike.

Meanwhile the Troast revelations in New Jersey were not helped by hesitation on the part of the new incumbent of the White House. At first Ike let it be known he wasn't going to enter New Jersey. He would play no part in Jersey politics. This looked like a slap at candidate Troast. But the White House called more attention to the slight by saying it wasn't meant as a slap at all.

Accident No. 4 — Occurred a long time ago, so long ago that Tom Dewey probably doesn't remember it. But in 1944 he made the mistake of asking that Warren Moscow, then covering Albany for the New York Times, be transferred. He didn't like Moscow. The request came to N. Y. Times publisher Arthur Sulzberger through Republican industrialist Roger Straus and at first Sulzberger was inclined to honor it.

But the late Jimmy James, editor of the Times, remonstrated, said Dewey didn't like Moscow merely because he asked penetrating press-conference questions.

In the end Moscow was not transferred. But his disregard for Dewey didn't diminish. And later, leaving precarious newspapering, he entered New York politics, became public works commissioner for Manhattan, got acquainted with young Bob Wagner, wrote his speeches, managed his primary campaign, was the biggest backstage brain-truster in this week's climactic election of the new mayor of New York.

More than any other one man except Wagner himself, Warren Moscow, the man Dewey tried to kick out, contributed to the defeat of Dewey's Republican candidate for mayor of New York.

Soil Conservation

It is not to be expected that any effort to eliminate an unnecessary cost to the taxpayer will meet with no opposition. In private industry, reorganizations constantly take place to reduce costs or to increase efficiency, or both. The obsolescent is abolished as rapidly as possible. When such measures are taken in government, the outcry is immediate and articulate, because officeholders hate to lose their jobs and always find friends to fight for them. The Hoover Commission has run upon the fact that jobs, once established for a good purpose, continue after their usefulness has totally disappeared. Nevertheless appointments are made, salaries and expense allowances are drawn. These men actually have nothing to do but to get their pay.

In the matter of the reorganization of the Department of Agriculture, which had been permitted to grow into a behemoth, President Eisenhower sent Plan No. 2 to Congress, which was accepted by Congress and is now the law. The department gave those who favored or opposed the reorganization plan until November 1 to state their views. This has been done and the plan has now been put into effect. The argument concerning it continues because there is nothing about which someone has not a better plan. That is human nature.

One of the phases of the reorganization plan of the department has to do with the Soil Conservation Service, an activity of the states in which the federal government participates in an advisory capacity. For about 18 years, the federal government has maintained regional offices which provided a supervisory service and administration of state programs. The idea was that the Department of Agriculture could do the job better than state soil conservation departments could.

Whether that was ever true is one of those arguments that can go on forever and prove nothing. That most states are now prepared to do their own jobs efficiently after 18 years of federal tutelage is generally admitted. Therefore the time has come to abolish the regional offices of the Soil Conservation Service because their utility has now diminished to a point where they are no longer needed. Their abolition will save some money without impairing any service.

Actually, as of March 1, 1953, farmers and ranchers had organized 2,481 soil conservation districts of their own. There are also 20 grass conservation districts. In a word, the job of soil conservation is being done as a cooperative voluntary enterprise, within each state.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson takes the position that ours is not a totalitarian government and that what the people or the states can do for themselves, the federal government ought not to duplicate at great expense.

He said of this:

"The conservation and improvement of our land and water resources is primarily the responsibility of the farmer, the rancher, and the custodians of forest land. It is important that farmers band together in local soil conservation districts and watershed associations, and that they take the initiative in protecting and developing our agricultural resources. Agriculture can go forward confidently in such locally directed soil conservation districts."

The opposition to this reorganization plan seems to be based on the argument that a government bureau once established should never be abolished. This is not a novel idea, as the Hoover Commission has discovered, finding man, agencies of government which exist to duplicate and triplicate work done by other agencies and by the states.

If the objective of the reorganization of the executive branch of government is to eliminate the duplicative and the obsolescent, the supervisory offices of the Soil Conservation Service should be abolished and the state conservationists should be permitted to do their work with due regard to the maturity which they have achieved since 1935 when all this started as a phase of flood control.

Herbert Hoover, in a telegram to Secretary Benson, said:

". . . Your plans of reorganization are along the lines of the recommendations of the task force of agriculturists . . . They have been exhaustively debated since and favored by most of the substantial elements concerned . . . If displaced officials are to counteract reorganization for economy and efficiency in the government, all of us may as well throw up our hands . . ."

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — They have a White House rule that doesn't permit first-person quotation of everything a president says in a press conference—but it's most unfortunate because by all odds the most interesting piece of news about the election was what Mr. Eisenhower said about it to the press.

There were at least three opportunities for him to be devious—to avail himself of the tricks of the political game or to boom forth with a sweeping statement of confidence in the future of his party, as if nothing adverse had happened Tuesday. But he turned them all aside and talked frankly, earnestly and without guile.

For one thing the President declined to be drawn into an analysis or interpretation of the election results. He frankly said he didn't know any more about it than—if as much as—some of the newspapermen interrogating him. But he did recognize that in some places Republicans had lost and in some places they had won, and he didn't feel that he should say whether or not the election was a test of his policies because he frankly didn't know.

Getting Progressive Change

At one point in the conversation Mr. Eisenhower told the press that as most people know, he is a novice in politics and has never claimed to be a politician. But he does pin his faith to a belief in the common sense of the American people when they are informed. He thinks they have to be informed as to the basic facts — and some of these facts are rather stark and disagreeable—and the administration has the duty of putting forth and enacting a program that the mass of the American people will say is a good one. The job of the administration, he says, is to provide a dynamic and forward-looking program.

When the reporters asked him if perhaps some voters thought they hadn't yet gotten the change they voted for last autumn, the President said he thought the kind of change the people wanted was an orderly and progressive change and not just any other kind. He added they were going to get it and are getting it.

Throughout the press conference, the President handled himself with calmness and poise and didn't become entangled in the traps into which some of the questions might have led him. An effort was made to get him to weaken his recent statement that he would favor the election of Republicans everywhere. The inquiry was whether he would support a Republican with a record that was not in support of his administration. Previously the President had remarked that his idea of endorsing Republicanism generally the other day was not intended to say he supported every candidate, irrespective of individual character or integrity. But, even if this wasn't involved, he was then asked, would he suport anti-administration Republicans for re-election in Congress next year? The President declined to commit himself to what he would do about this, but he gave the impression he was not going to become involved in local contests with specific individuals in his party.

Thus the President tried also to convey the idea that, in saying he had "lost skirmishes before"—and he permitted direct quotation on that phrase—he wasn't commenting on individual races but, as titular leader of the party, on the fact that some Republican contests were lost.

Has Definite Ideas

The President didn't hesitate to answer another question as to whether, having lost skirmishes, he intended "to win the war." This obvious reference to future congressional elections drew from the President the earnest statement that he never went into a war to lose one.

The use of such words as progressive and forward-looking indicate that the President has definite ideas as to the kind of a legislative and executive program the country expects from him.

The advocacy of progressive measures will never wreck the Republican party — although it has split the Democrats of the North and South—if, in sponsoring them, the President takes all the members of his own party into his confidence ahead of time and gives each section or faction a chance to present its views.

vocacy of progressive measures will never wreck the Republican party—although it has split the Democrats of the North and South—if, in sponsoring them, the President takes all the members of his own party into his confidence ahead of time and gives each section or faction a chance to present its views.

Here And Now

Forgetting

Doctor James McCosh, when president of Princeton, used to preach occasionally for a neighboring pastor. Once a lady and gentleman came up after the service to greet him.

"You don't remember us, Dr. McCosh, but you married us 25 years ago, and in that time," she added, "we have never had a single disagreement."

"Ah," said the old educator, "I am sure that is very commendable, but I'm afraid it must have been awful dull."

It is not a dull moment, however, when a man forgets wife's birthday or their marriage anniversary;

Or husband forgets to post that special delivery letter meant to intercept a pending visit from some of the in-laws.

Forgetting is something to be ashamed of, especially if it cause injury or inconvenience to another. A lot of time is wasted when the committee has to wait for you—all because you forgot the hour.

All In Same Boat

The sexton forgot to ring the bell, and a hundred folks forgot to go to church. You forgot to lock the stable door and your horse was stolen. The only person who ever knew what electricity is forgot to note it down.

Tie a string around your finger if that helps, but remember to bring home the bacon, and that next Wednesday is Armistice Day, and don't forget to read this "colyum" in THE NEWS every Saturday. Then you can go to the head of the class.

Everybody has a yen to be remembered. Hence libraries, colleges and hospitals are endowed to perpetuate the name of the donor, who not only gives, but gets a deduction on his income tax, thus killing two birds with one stone.

Farmers are not forgotten in their quandary. The government issues a three-cent stamp with the picture of a "Future Farmer of America" thereon — reminding all consumers of our debt to the farmers of today, who, incidentally, are in the same boat with the rest of us.

In a watch night party a young lady of the company was observed to leave the room when the bells began to ring. It was told afterwards that she went to keep tryst with the memory of her fiance who had died five years before at the stroke of midnight. That is memory! — "dear as remembered kisses after death."

Stored For Reference

The recording angel, technically known as the unconscious self, gathers up all the impressions of our waking hours and carefully stores them in memory cells for future reference. So in the garden of memory we have "June roses in December."

Our instincts, it is said, are transmitted from a former existence. If the transmigrationists are correct, one specimen of a man I knew must at one time have been an insect.

In the Battle of the Pyramids, Napoleon said: "Soldiers, from the summit of yonder pyramids, 40 centuries look down upon you." Could that be literally true?

He may have spoken more wisely than he knew. In the language of metaphysics, time and space are not entities, but relativities. Page Einstein!

If we should sleep a thousand years and awake, we would not know that time had elapsed. We would only be aware of change.

We have no present positive light on the nature of death, save by Divine revelation. Having no further use for earthly categories, such as time and space, there is no apparent reason why the baby should be thrown out with the bath, but every reason to believe that self-consciousness will conHERE AND NOW——Standing ... tinue as a part of that indestructible Consciousness when it emerged. I say this, not dogmatically, but interrogatively.

Consciousness Will Last

How far that consciousness will last is speculation. Forty centuries at least, no doubt forever.

Science adds its testimony to faith.

A professor in the University of New Mexico, in addressing a national service organization in Albuquerque, said that we are on the verge of a more wonderful discovery and nuclear fission. Before too long we shall be able to hear the voices of Moses, Plato, Shakespeare, Luther and Christ.

I should like to be able to tune in on Moses when he broke the Tables of the Law, or hear Jesus say, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

"Cybernetics" applied to invention has already constructed machines that can do almost everything but think.

Extended to psychology, it may enable us to do our thinking by proxy, while we go off on a tangent, or a vacation.

But invention will never build a machine that will excuse us from repenting of our sins, and serving God and our fellowmen.

Lest we forget, hopefully yours,

Court House Will Close For Armistice Day

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday decided to close the Court House for Armistice Day next Wednesday.

James G. Stevenson, clerk to the County Commissioners, posted a notice on the Court House door yesterday afternoon to remind citizens of the holiday.

Hagerstown Strike Now In Sixth Week

HAGERSTOWN, Nov. 6 (AP)—The strike of the CIO United Steelworkers Union against the New York Central Iron Works here rounded out its sixth week today.

Negotiations still were in progress. The opposing sides are meeting with C. B. Clevenger, from the U.S. Conciliation Service.

The workers went on strike for a wage increase of 8½ cents an hour, more liberal insurance coverage, and paid holidays.

Pickets still are marching at the fabricating plant, which normally employs about a hundred.

Woman Injured In Auto Crash

Mrs. Mary Friend, 42, of 130 Frederick Street, is reported in good condition at Sacred Heart Hospital where she was admitted early yesterday morning with injuries sustained in a car accident in Frostburg.

Attaches said she suffered two fractures of the right arm and a laceration of the lower lip.

State Trooper Linwood Clark, who investigated, said Mrs. Friend was a passenger in a car operated by Leroy Compbell, this city. Campbell apparently lost control of the car and struck a telephone pole on Bowery Street. The front end of the car was badly damaged, Trooper Clark said.

City police said Filbert Allison Rice, 27, of Midlothian, caused property damage estimated at $75 early yesterday morning when he fell asleep at the wheel of a tractor-trailer rig on Thomas Street. The mishap occurred near the intersection of Crawford Street, Officer John Chaney said, explaining that the tractor-trailer collided with two telephone poles, swerved across the street and knocked down a small tree.

Rice was not injured in the accident and Officer Chaney said no charges would be preferred.

UMW Protests

coal from four Garrett County mines and one in this county.

Webster promised to present the views of the UMW officials and Senator Kimble to the board at the November 17 meeting. However, in view of the fact all contracts already have been signed with all seven dealers it appears unlikely that any action can be taken this year. The board probably would be expected to take the opinion under consideration in awarding future contracts.

Receive Complaints

Senator Kimble said he arranged for the meeting Thursday after he received complaints that much of the coal contracted for by the Board of Education was to come from Garrett County.

He said he agrees Garrett County should sell its coal to the State of Maryland, but does not believe it should sell to Allegany County schools while this county has idle mines and miners.

The action, he said, shouldn't have happened and was not intentional."

Terming the letter of the contracts a "nasty situation", Senator Kimble said he is convinced the Board of Education did not realize part of the coal was to come from Garrett County.

Sponsors Coal Bill

He recalled that he sponsored a law in the 1951 General Assembly which required the use of Allegany and Garrett County coal by state institutions as a means of protecting the mines and miners of Garrett County.

The law was vetoed by Governor McKeldin, but in taking the action the governor said he would insist that Western Maryland coal be used in state institutions. At present, officials say, about 95 per cent of the coal used by the state comes from state mines.

The senator said it is possible that some of the coal to be supplied may come from strip mines and be of an inferior grade.

He concluded by saying that as much as he liked the people of Garrett County he did not agree they should sell their coal to Allegany County institutions while miners from this county are idle.

Check City Sources

Deaths

WILLIAM C. SHIELDS

William C. Shields, 69, of 714 Fayette Avenue, died yesterday evening at Memorial Hospital.

A native of Little Orleans, he was a son of the late Edward H. and Mary Ann (Fahey) Shields. Mr. Shields, was a former engineer for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and served for 35 years on the Connellsville Division.

He came to Cumberland 19 years ago and worked for eight years with the City Water Department. He retired after being injured.

Mr. Shields was a member of St. Mary's Catholic Church and the Holy Name Society. Surviving, besides his wife, Mrs. Susan (Albright) Shields are a son, Robert L. Shields, here; a sister, Mrs. Susan Spicer, here and three grandchildren.

The body will be taken to the residence today.

Man Hospitalized After Street Fight

Two local residents were arrested Thursday night on disorderly charges, with one man being held in City Jail pending the outcome of injuries to another who is a patient in Sacred Heart Hospital.

Police are holding Leonard Mattingly, 308½ Franklin Street, while the hospital patient has been identified as William Lafferty, 972 Maryland Avenue.

Attaches, who reported Lafferty in "fair" condition, said he was being held for observation after sustaining a puncture wound in the back of the scalp.

The two men were arrested by Officers C. W. Thompson and Warren G. Brehm while fighting in the downtown area.

Mayor Roy W. Eves said virtually all of the coal is secured from dealers, but that the city wants to be sure Maryland coal is being used.

The Maryland Bureau of Mines, he said, is being asked to provide analyses of coal from this area to make sure that specifications set up by any institution can be met.

Most Highways

rett County. But Garrett County reported even a milder snowfall than Allegany County had.

G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for the State Roads Commission, said his crews ran into only "minor" trouble.

The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission urged motorists who had to travel to dig out their chains, which were a necessity in some sections east of here. Chains, however, were not needed in Western Maryland.

As the heavier snowfall continued late last night, there were reports of serious traffic tieups east of Cumberland. In the Annapolis-Baltimore-Washington area, for instance, there were several minor accidents, and at least one serious three-car smashup.

Mercury Hits 12 Degrees

The nor'easter, rare in Maryland, caused some freakish behavior in the weather. The thermometer slipped down to 12 degrees above zero yesterday morning at Thomas, W. Va., and at Deal, Pa., while Cumberland, which lay directly in the path of the approaching storm, had an official 22-degree reading. At the State Police barracks in LaVale, the mercury stood at 16 degrees.

In many sections, including Cumberland, the thermometer didn't rise above freezing all day. In other places, the snow fell, began to pile up, then melted as the temperature rose late in the day. A new drop in the temperature caused the melting slush to freeze into ice.

The snow stuck and drifted on sideroads in the eastern part of the state, and two busloads of school children were stranded for more than four hours in Kent County on the Eastern Shore.

Sheriff Batus O. Vickers' office reported the buses bogged down on a snow-drifted secondary road between Kennedysville and Locust Grove. Farmers in the area finally got the children aboard farm wagons and took them to their homes for the night.

Motorists Stranded

Motorists were stranded and stalled all over the Eastern Shore, but here were no reports of impassable main highways anywhere in the state.

Pennsylvania State Police at Bedford and Somerset said the Pennsylvania Turnpike had some nasty spots, but that it was "not extremely hazardous" anywhere on the western end.

Other roads in Bedford and Somerset counties, as in Garrett and Allegany counties in Maryland, had some icy spots, but no serious accidents were reported.

Court House Will Close For Armistice Day

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday decided to close the Court House for Armistice Day next Wednesday.

James G. Stevenson, clerk to the County Commissioners, posted a notice on the Court House door yesterday afternoon to remind citizens of the holiday.

Hagerstown Strike Now In Sixth Week

HAGERSTOWN, Nov. 6 (AP)—The strike of the CIO United Steelworkers Union against the New York Central Iron Works here rounded out its sixth week today.

Negotiations still were in progress. The opposing sides are meeting with C. B. Clevenger, from the U.S. Conciliation Service.

The workers went on strike for a wage increase of 8½ cents an hour, more liberal insurance coverage, and paid holidays.

Pickets still are marching at the fabricating plant, which normally employs about a hundred.

Woman Injured In Auto Crash

Mrs. Mary Friend, 42, of 130 Frederick Street, is reported in good condition at Sacred Heart Hospital where she was admitted early yesterday morning with injuries sustained in a car accident in Frostburg.

Attaches said she suffered two fractures of the right arm and a laceration of the lower lip.

State Trooper Linwood Clark, who investigated, said Mrs. Friend was a passenger in a car operated by Leroy Compbell, this city. Campbell apparently lost control of the car and struck a telephone pole on Bowery Street. The front end of the car was badly damaged, Trooper Clark said.

City police said Filbert Allison Rice, 27, of Midlothian, caused property damage estimated at $75 early yesterday morning when he fell asleep at the wheel of a tractor-trailer rig on Thomas Street. The mishap occurred near the intersection of Crawford Street, Officer John Chaney said, explaining that the tractor-trailer collided with two telephone poles, swerved across the street and knocked down a small tree.

Rice was not injured in the accident and Officer Chaney said no charges would be preferred.

UMW Protests

coal from four Garrett County mines and one in this county.

Webster promised to present the views of the UMW officials and Senator Kimble to the board at the November 17 meeting. However, in view of the fact all contracts already have been signed with all seven dealers it appears unlikely that any action can be taken this year. The board probably would be expected to take the opinion under consideration in awarding future contracts.

Receive Complaints

Senator Kimble said he arranged for the meeting Thursday after he received complaints that much of the coal contracted for by the Board of Education was to come from Garrett County.

He said he agrees Garrett County should sell its coal to the State of Maryland, but does not believe it should sell to Allegany County schools while this county has idle mines and miners.

The action, he said, shouldn't have happened and was not intentional."

Terming the letter of the contracts a "nasty situation", Senator Kimble said he is convinced the Board of Education did not realize part of the coal was to come from Garrett County.

Sponsors Coal Bill

He recalled that he sponsored a law in the 1951 General Assembly which required the use of Allegany and Garrett County coal by state institutions as a means of protecting the mines and miners of Garrett County.

The law was vetoed by Governor McKeldin, but in taking the action the governor said he would insist that Western Maryland coal be used in state institutions. At present, officials say, about 95 per cent of the coal used by the state comes from state mines.

The senator said it is possible that some of the coal to be supplied may come from strip mines and be of an inferior grade.

He concluded by saying that as much as he liked the people of Garrett County he did not agree they should sell their coal to Allegany County institutions while miners from this county are idle.

Check City Sources

WILLIAM C. SHIELDS

William C. Shields, 69, of 714 Fayette Avenue, died yesterday evening at Memorial Hospital.

A native of Little Orleans, he was a son of the late Edward H. and Mary Ann (Fahey) Shields. Mr. Shields was a former engineer for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and served for 35 years on the Connellsville Division.

He came to Cumberland 19 years ago and worked for eight years with the City Water Department. He retired after being injured.

Mr. Shields was a member of St. Mary's Catholic Church and the Holy Name Society. Surviving, besides his wife, Mrs. Susan (Albright) Shields are a son, Robert L. Shields, here; a sister, Mrs. Susan Spicer, here and three grandchildren.

The body will be taken to the residence today.

Man Hospitalized After Street Fight

Two local residents were arrested Thursday night on disorderly charges, with one man being held in City Jail pending the outcome of injuries to another who is a patient in Sacred Heart Hospital.

Police are holding Leonard Mattingly, 308½ Franklin Street, while the hospital patient has been identified as William Lafferty, 972 Maryland Avenue.

Attaches, who reported Lafferty in "fair" condition, said he was being held for observation after sustaining a puncture wound in the back of the scalp.

The two men were arrested by Officers C. W. Thompson and Warren G. Brehm while fighting in the downtown area.

Mayor Roy W. Eves said virtually all of the coal is secured from dealers, but that the city wants to be sure Maryland coal is being used.

The Maryland Bureau of Mines, he said, is being asked to provide analyses of coal from this area to make sure that specifications set up by any institution can be met.

rett County. But Garrett County reported even a milder snowfall than Allegany County had.

G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for the State Roads Commission, said his crews ran into only "minor" trouble.

The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission urged motorists who had to travel to dig out their chains, which were a necessity in some sections east of here. Chains, however, were not needed in Western Maryland.

As the heavier snowfall continued late last night, there were reports of serious traffic tieups east of Cumberland. In the Annapolis-Baltimore-Washington area, for instance, there were several minor accidents, and at least one serious three-car smashup.

Mercury Hits 12 Degrees

The nor'easter, rare in Maryland, caused some freakish behavior in the weather. The thermometer slipped down to 12 degrees above zero yesterday morning at Thomas, W. Va., and at Deal, Pa., while Cumberland, which lay directly in the path of the approaching storm, had an official 22-degree reading. At the State Police barracks in LaVale, the mercury stood at 16 degrees.

In many sections, including Cumberland, the thermometer didn't rise above freezing all day. In other places, the snow fell, began to pile up, then melted as the temperature rose late in the day. A new drop in the temperature caused the melting slush to freeze into ice.

The snow stuck and drifted on sideroads in the eastern part of the state, and two busloads of school children were stranded for more than four hours in Kent County on the Eastern Shore.

Sheriff Batus O. Vickers' office reported the buses bogged down on a snow-drifted secondary road between Kennedysville and Locust Grove. Farmers in the area finally got the children aboard farm wagons and took them to their homes for the night.

Motorists Stranded

Motorists were stranded and stalled all over the Eastern Shore, but here were no reports of impassable main highways anywhere in the state.

Pennsylvania State Police at Bedford and Somerset said the Pennsylvania Turnpike had some nasty spots, but that it was "not extremely hazardous" anywhere on the western end.

Other roads in Bedford and Somerset counties, as in Garrett and Allegany counties in Maryland, had some icy spots, but no serious accidents were reported.

Phyllis Barncord To Become Bride Of William R. Maffett

Miss Phyllis Arlene Barncord, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Barncord, Vocke Road, LaVale, is to become the bride of William Rolandus Maffett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Maffett, R. D. 1, Oakland today.

The wedding ceremony is being solemnized at 2 p. m., in the LaVale Baptist Church with Rev. C. F. Frith officiating. Two large baskets of white chrysanthemums are being used in the decorations of the altar, and the pews are marked with wide satin ribbon bows.

Mrs. Ellwood Sanders, Oakland, will be the bride's matron of honor and Miss Gloria Jones and Miss Barbara Jones, Baltimore, cousins of the bride, her bridesmaids. Hugh Maffett, Oakland, is serving as his brother's best man while Ellwood Sanders and Owen Barncord, brother of the bride, are the ushers.

A prelude of romantic songs will be played by Miss Carolyn Smith for one half hour preceding the ceremony. During the ceremony Frank Byer is singing, "The Lord's Prayer," and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride, who is being given in marriage by her father, is wearing a waltz length gown of white nylon net and satin. The fitted bodice of Chantilly lace, over white satin, has a keyhole neckline with petal collar and is buttoned down the back with lace covered buttons. The long fitted sleeves tapering to a point at the wrist, are also buttoned with lace covered buttons. The nylon net skirt over satin is fashioned with a double peplum, appliqued with lace medallions.

Her scalloped edged, fingertip length veil of nylon net is held by a Juliette styled crown of Chantilly lace, bordered with mother of pearl sequins. Completing her costume, the bride is carrying a Testament with white orchid marker and satin streamers knotted with white rosebuds.

Mrs. Sanders' gown is gold satin, waltz length, and has a round neckline, cape sleeves, full skirt, and satin bustle bow. Her headdress is a half crown of gold satin and net and she is carrying a nosegay of fall flowers.

Miss Gloria Jones will be in cotillion blue and Miss Barbara Jones in plum. Their gowns are also waltz length and are nylon net over satin with a satin bodice. Their headdresses are curved headbands, matching their gowns and looped with pearls. They also are carrying nosegays of fall flowers.

Mrs. Barncord has chosen a mauve lace and crepe dress for her daughter's wedding. The square neckline is caught with two rhinestone clips and she is wearing a matching feather in her hair, and a corsage of yellow rosebuds. Mrs. Maffett selected a Navy blue suit with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses for the wedding.

The bride is a graduate of Allegany High School, class of 1949 and Memorial Hospital School of Nursing, class of 1952. Since last September she has been employed on the nursing staff of Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Oakland High School, class of 1947 and is engaged in dairy farming and poultry raising.

Mr. and Mrs. Barncord are entertaining with a wedding reception honoring their daughter and her bridal party in the church social hall, following the ceremony. Fall flowers are being used in the decorations and the bridal motif is being carried out in the tiered wedding cake, adorned with a miniature bride and bridegroom.

For their wedding trip through southern states, the bride has chosen for her traveling costume a gray knit suit trimmed with white angora, green reptile slippers and bag and a pill box hat of white angora and pearls, and will wear her orchid corsage.

Upon their return Mr. Maffett and his bride will reside on Route 1, Oakland.

Phyllis Barncord To Become Bride Of William R. Maffett

Miss Phyllis Arlene Barncord, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Barncord, Vocke Road, LaVale, is to become the bride of William Rolandus Maffett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Maffett, R. D. 1, Oakland today.

The wedding ceremony is being solemnized at 2 p. m., in the LaVale Baptist Church with Rev. C. F. Frith officiating. Two large baskets of white chrysanthemums are being used in the decorations of the altar, and the pews are marked with wide satin ribbon bows.

Mrs. Ellwood Sanders, Oakland, will be the bride's matron of honor and Miss Gloria Jones and Miss Barbara Jones, Baltimore, cousins of the bride, her bridesmaids. Hugh Maffett, Oakland, is serving as his brother's best man while Ellwood Sanders and Owen Barncord, brother of the bride, are the ushers.

A prelude of romantic songs will be played by Miss Carolyn Smith for one half hour preceding the ceremony. During the ceremony Frank Byer is singing, "The Lord's Prayer," and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride, who is being given in marriage by her father, is wearing a waltz length gown of white nylon net and satin. The fitted bodice of Chantilly lace, over white satin, has a keyhole neckline with petal collar and is buttoned down the back with lace covered buttons. The long fitted sleeves tapering to a point at the wrist, are also buttoned with lace covered buttons. The nylon net skirt over satin is fashioned with a double peplum, appliqued with lace medallions.

Her scalloped edged, fingertip length veil of nylon net is held by a Juliette styled crown of Chantilly lace, bordered with mother of pearl sequins. Completing her costume, the bride is carrying a Testament with white orchid marker and satin streamers knotted with white rosebuds.

Mrs. Sanders' gown is gold satin, waltz length, and has a round neckline, cape sleeves, full skirt, and satin bustle bow. Her headdress is a half crown of gold satin and net and she is carrying a nosegay of fall flowers.

Miss Gloria Jones will be in cotillion blue and Miss Barbara Jones in plum. Their gowns are also waltz length and are nylon net over satin with a satin bodice. Their headdresses are curved headbands, matching their gowns and looped with pearls. They also are carrying nosegays of fall flowers.

Mrs. Barncord has chosen a mauve lace and crepe dress for her daughter's wedding. The square neckline is caught with two rhinestone clips and she is wearing a matching feather in her hair, and a corsage of yellow rosebuds. Mrs. Maffett selected a Navy blue suit with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses for the wedding.

The bride is a graduate of Allegany High School, class of 1949 and Memorial Hospital School of Nursing, class of 1952. Since last September she has been employed on the nursing staff of Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Oakland High School, class of 1947 and is engaged in dairy farming and poultry raising.

Mr. and Mrs. Barncord are entertaining with a wedding reception honoring their daughter and her bridal party in the church social hall, following the ceremony. Fall flowers are being used in the decorations and the bridal motif is being carried out in the tiered wedding cake, adorned with a miniature bride and bridegroom.

For their wedding trip through southern states, the bride has chosen for her traveling costume a gray knit suit trimmed with white angora, green reptile slippers and bag and a pill box hat of white angora and pearls, and will wear her orchid corsage.

Upon their return Mr. Maffett and his bride will reside on Route 1, Oakland.

The only tragedy in being young is that you must depend on the common sense and far-sightedness of adults.

For when you're young, even though your heart cries out for opportunity, there are doors to which your parents hold the key.

One of these is the door to Faith. A child wants to believe. He needs religious teaching. God has implanted in his tiny body a growing, hungry soul.

But millions of America's little ones are being barred from the Church, starved of spiritual nourishment by unthinking parents. They are chained to unbelief, condemned to moral immaturity by fathers and mothers who have lost their own faith, and have ceased to care.

Do you know these parents? Are you, perchance, one of them? Remember Who it was who said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not." OPEN THE DOOR!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

The only tragedy in being young is that you must depend on the common sense and far-sightedness of adults.

For when you're young, even though your heart cries out for opportunity, there are doors to which your parents hold the key.

One of these is the door to Faith. A child wants to believe. He needs religious teaching. God has implanted in his tiny body a growing, hungry soul.

But millions of America's little ones are being barred from the Church, starved of spiritual nourishment by unthinking parents. They are chained to unbelief, condemned to moral immaturity by fathers and mothers who have lost their own faith, and have ceased to care.

Do you know these parents? Are you, perchance, one of them? Remember Who it was who said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not." OPEN THE DOOR!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Arsonist Held For Grand Jury

A 39-year-old Grafton man who was sentenced last year to a year in the Grant County (W. Va.) Jail on charges of setting two forest fires was transferred Wednesday to Tucker County (W. Va.) Jail to await action of that county's December grand jury on similar charges.

The man, Ivan Gale Taylor, was arrested last October by West Virginia State Police and confessed to setting the fires in both the area counties. Police claim he was responsible for at least eight forest fires in Tucker County alone, including one in the Monongahela Forest.

Authorities arrested Taylor after identifying the truck in which he traveled through the Grant-Tucker County section. Taylor, at the time of his arres., is said to have admitted to setting the fires because he "was mad when hunting season was closed."

Taylor was taken to the Parsons jail by Tucker County Sheriff Ronald L. Hockman and Constable Brock Kyle.

Authorities claim he will face federal action, after disposal of the Tucker County charges.

Life Termer Is Heart Victim

Noah Andrew Kolbfleisch, 48, who was serving a life term in the Maryland Penitentiary for the murder of his aunt, died Tuesday in the Spring Grove Hospital in Catonsville. He had been ill for the past six months with a heart condition.

Kolbfleisch shot to death Miss Ella Pysell, 60, sister of his deceased mother, as she was washing dishes in the kitchen of her home near McHenry on the night of November 6, 1935. The charge was fired from a shotgun through the window. Miss Pysell died on the way to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland.

He was arrested a short time later and lodged in the county jail where he maintained his innocence until the night before the trial was scheduled. He had previously confessed his crime to a Baltimore detective who had been placed in jail on a supposed charge of attempted holdup and highway robbery. His confession was overheard by Clarence Spear, sheriff at the time; J. W. Owens, deputy; and Neil C. Fraley, state's attorney. Kolbfleisch then confessed the crime to his attorneys the night before his scheduled trial and the trial on April 1, 1936, consisted in merely bringing the details of the murder before the court before sentence was passed. He was taken immediately to the penitentiary and had remained there since that time.

KEYSER — The Keyser Ministerium is working on behalf of the Church World Service Program here and the nearby area. The Church World Service Center, located at New Windsor, Md., serves the Interdenominational Overseas Relief Program of the Department of Church World Service and the National Council of Churches of the nation.

Clothing will be collected from all churches in this area and assembled at a collection depot. For the present time this collection will be located at the Church of the Brethren, South Main Street at Fort Avenue, until a more convenient place can be secured.

In the schedule for the relief truck to make the initial collection here a call will be made in Keyser on December 7. A regular schedule for collections will be started on Monday following the first Sunday in March, June and September.

Clothing for all age persons will be acceptable.

Any person or persons in the church congregation who are already affiliated in such work, including WSCS, WSWS or missionary society, are asked to consider a plan for work in conjunction with the Ministerium.

Miss Wanda Cunningham, 36 South Water Street, is serving presently as contact person. Anyone wishing further information are asked to call her.

Arsonist Held For Grand Jury

A 39-year-old Grafton man who was sentenced last year to a year in the Grant County (W. Va.) Jail on charges of setting two forest fires was transferred Wednesday to Tucker County (W. Va.) Jail to await action of that county's December grand jury on similar charges.

The man, Ivan Gale Taylor, was arrested last October by West Virginia State Police and confessed to setting the fires in both the area counties. Police claim he was responsible for at least eight forest fires in Tucker County alone, including one in the Monongahela Forest.

Authorities arrested Taylor after identifying the truck in which he traveled through the Grant-Tucker County section. Taylor, at the time of his arres., is said to have admitted to setting the fires because he "was mad when hunting season was closed."

Taylor was taken to the Parsons jail by Tucker County Sheriff Ronald L. Hockman and Constable Brock Kyle.

Authorities claim he will face federal action, after disposal of the Tucker County charges.

Life Termer Is Heart Victim

Noah Andrew Kolbfleisch, 48, who was serving a life term in the Maryland Penitentiary for the murder of his aunt, died Tuesday in the Spring Grove Hospital in Catonsville. He had been ill for the past six months with a heart condition.

Kolbfleisch shot to death Miss Ella Pysell, 60, sister of his deceased mother, as she was washing dishes in the kitchen of her home near McHenry on the night of November 6, 1935. The charge was fired from a shotgun through the window. Miss Pysell died on the way to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland.

He was arrested a short time later and lodged in the county jail where he maintained his innocence until the night before the trial was scheduled. He had previously confessed his crime to a Baltimore detective who had been placed in jail on a supposed charge of attempted holdup and highway robbery. His confession was overheard by Clarence Spear, sheriff at the time; J. W. Owens, deputy; and Neil C. Fraley, state's attorney. Kolbfleisch then confessed the crime to his attorneys the night before his scheduled trial and the trial on April 1, 1936, consisted in merely bringing the details of the murder before the court before sentence was passed. He was taken immediately to the penitentiary and had remained there since that time.

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners has authorized Earl Grim, superintendent of the County Infirmary, to purchase a new dish washing machine for $750.

An old machine formerly in use at the infirmary will be transferred to the County Home. The new machine is needed as the older one was not large enough to handle the volume of dishes, Grim reported.

Mrs. John E. Davin, Pearl Emerick, and Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Eaton requested the board to repair Bank Avenue in the Fairgo section. The request was turned over to J. Walker Chapman, roads supervisor, for investigation.

Peter V. Kirby, of Valley Road, appeared to ask the board to repair a small bridge over a stream between the Valley Road and the old road it replaced. The commissioners said they would furnish the lumber for the repairs if the resident affected would do the work.

A new trial motion in behalf of Dale Campbell of Mt. Savage was overruled in an opinion filed Wednesday in Allegany County Circuit Court by Associate Judge George Henderson.

Campbell was convicted October 20 by Judge Henderson on a charge of disturbing public peace and destruction of private property. Two days later, Attorney Edward J. Ryan moved for a new trial. Ryan and Assistant State's Attorney James S. Getty yesterday argued the motion.

The Mt. Savage soldier also was convicted October 23 by a Circuit Court jury of assaulting Ray Martz. He had appealed when Magistrate J. Milton Dick sentenced him to nine months in the Maryland House of Correction on the charge. Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris, who presided at this trial, has not yet passed sentence.

Garrett Countian Lodged In Jail Here

A Garrett County man has been arrested and is in custody in the county jail here in one of the most unusual cases handled in recent months by State Police.

Cpl. William F. Baker, criminal investigator for the State Police, said Cecil Savage, 32, of the White Rock, section near Friendsville, was taken into custody Wednesday night at his home.

As outlined by Cpl. Baker, the Garrett County man had purchased a large truck in August from a Grantsville dealer. On September 21, Savage reported to State Police that six large tires from the truck, the tubes and wheels were stolen while the machine was parked on Walnut Ridge near Oldtown. Savage had been using the truck on a lumber operation in that area.

Cpl. Baker has been investigating the case since that time. Wednesday evening the officer went to Savage's home and discovered four of the tires and wheels in a wood shed under some lumber, the other two tires and wheels were found in a back yard.

The officer said Savage admitted that he had gone to the Walnut Ridge section on Sunday, September 20, removed the tires and wheels and transported the articles to his home. The next day he then reported they had been stolen.

Savage also admitted collecting from an insurance company as a result of his alleged loss by theft. The tires and wheels were valued at $1,000. No definite charge has been placed against Savage pending a check of the entire case.

Infirmary Authorized Dish Washing Unit

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners has authorized Earl Grim, superintendent of the County Infirmary, to purchase a new dish washing machine for $750.

An old machine formerly in use at the infirmary will be transferred to the County Home. The new machine is needed as the older one was not large enough to handle the volume of dishes, Grim reported.

Mrs. John E. Davin, Pearl Emerick, and Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Eaton requested the board to repair Bank Avenue in the Fairgo section. The request was turned over to J. Walker Chapman, roads supervisor, for investigation.

Peter V. Kirby, of Valley Road, appeared to ask the board to repair a small bridge over a stream between the Valley Road and the old road it replaced. The commissioners said they would furnish the lumber for the repairs if the resident affected would do the work.

A $500 suit for property damage to an automobile sustained in a collision on Route 40 about seven miles east of Hancock was filed Thursday in Allegany County Circuit Court.

The suit was filed for George D. Keith, for his own use and the use of the Service Fire Insurance Company, against William A. Blizzard of Flintstone by the law firm of Cobey, Carscaden and Gilchrist. Judge Overrules New Trial Motion

A new trial motion in behalf of Dale Campbell of Mt. Savage was overruled in an opinion filed Wednesday in Allegany County Circuit Court by Associate Judge George Henderson.

Campbell was convicted October 20 by Judge Henderson on a charge of disturbing public peace and destruction of private property. Two days later, Attorney Edward J. Ryan moved for a new trial. Ryan and Assistant State's Attorney James S. Getty yesterday argued the motion.

The Mt. Savage soldier also was convicted October 23 by a Circuit Court jury of assaulting Ray Martz. He had appealed when Magistrate J. Milton Dick sentenced him to nine months in the Maryland House of Correction on the charge. Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris, who presided at this trial, has not yet passed sentence.

Garrett Countian Lodged In Jail Here

A Garrett County man has been arrested and is in custody in the county jail here in one of the most unusual cases handled in recent months by State Police.

Cpl. William F. Baker, criminal investigator for the State Police, said Cecil Savage, 32, of the White Rock, section near Friendsville, was taken into custody Wednesday night at his home.

As outlined by Cpl. Baker, the Garrett County man had purchased a large truck in August from a Grantsville dealer. On September 21, Savage reported to State Police that six large tires from the truck, the tubes and wheels were stolen while the machine was parked on Walnut Ridge near Oldtown. Savage had been using the truck on a lumber operation in that area.

Cpl. Baker has been investigating the case since that time. Wednesday evening the officer went to Savage's home and discovered four of the tires and wheels in a wood shed under some lumber, the other two tires and wheels were found in a back yard.

The officer said Savage admitted that he had gone to the Walnut Ridge section on Sunday, September 20, removed the tires and wheels and transported the articles to his home. The next day he then reported they had been stolen.

Savage also admitted collecting from an insurance company as a result of his alleged loss by theft. The tires and wheels were valued at $1,000. No definite charge has been placed against Savage pending a check of the entire case.

Septic Tank Work Must Be Inspected

Health Department sanitarians warned yesterday that septic tank installations must be inspected before completion certificates can be issued.

They said it has been necessary to require that three home sewage systems be uncovered this year so final inspections could be made.

By TED TROXELL

Neither a driving snowstorm nor the Elkins Tigers was able to stop the scoring attack of the Allegany Campers at Fort Hill Stadium last night, as the powerful eleven of Coach Roy Lester rolled to its seventh consecutive triumph of the season, 20-0.

Harry Hixenbaugh kicked off to start the contest, but the snow-covered ball slipped from the grasp of Tiger end Bob Erickson, and Fritz Hadra pounced on the elusive pigskin on the Elkins 38-yard line.

Joyce Makes First Score

After a 15-yard holding penalty set the Campers back to the 48, the determined gridders drove to the ten, where Eddie Joyce skirted around left end for the first score. Dick Rank's try for the point was good, and the Campers took the lead as the quarter ended, 7-0.

When the West Virginians gained possession of the ball, they once again found it "too cold to handle", and Jim Hoffman recovered Bill Wise's fumble on the Elkins 43.

The Campers drove to the four in ten plays with Fullback Freddie Wartzack capping the drive by scoring the locals' second TD of the evening. Rank's kick missed being good by a fraction as the ball hit the upright, and fell to the side.

Pass Produces TD

The winners' final tally came on a nicely executed pass play with Bob Kirtley heaving an end zone aerial to end Vernon Lowery, from the 12-yard line. Lowery, hefty 185-pound Senior, warded off several defenders to come up with one of the offensive highlights of the evening. This time, Rank's kick was accurate, and the Campers had their seventh win, 20-0.

The Tigers of Frank Wimer never once posed a serious threat as they did not even invade Alco territory until late in the last quarter as the final whistle found th ball resting on the Allegany 39-yard stripe.

Rank made an impressive showing in the Camper backfield along with Joyce and Kirtley, Allegany's two-time Player-of-the-Week selection. Lowery, Weller, and Hadra stood out along the forward wall.

Wise Best For Elkins

Bill Wise proved to be Elkins' best bet, being responsible for the main part of the invader's short-lived offensive drives. Erickson, Watring, and Wimer were the best linemen for the Orange and Black.

Notes Of The Game

The snowstorm proved to be a "headache" in more ways than one, as the yardline markers and stripes were completely covered by the crystals. . . Harry Hixenbaugh attempted a field goal for the Campers late in the second half from the forty-yard line, with the kick bouncing into the end zone. . . Rodney Breedlove, starting center, who recently shed a cast from his arm, suffered another injury last night, receiving a broken nose. Incidentally, that makes him the third one in the Alco camp with a broken sniffer. The injury occurred when Breedlove got the tackle, following Allegany's second kickoff after the touchdown. . . A small crowd, estimated at less than the thousand mark, witnessed the contest. . . The bands of both schools entertained at halftime, with Allegany's majorettes highlighting the show with their fire-twirling act.

As You Were

(This is the 170th in a series of sketches with pictures of well known sport personalities of the past from the album of the Cumberland News Sports Editor. See if you can identify them by their photo.)

This lad, a native of Elk Garden, W. Va., was on 17 years old when he made his debut with the famed Keyser Collegians basketball team.

The year was 1919 and the Collegians' roster included Dyke Shaffer, Art Slocum, Robert Gibson, Clem Montgomery and Floyd "Newt" Mills. Classy road quints of the calibre of the Coffey Club and the Second Story Morrys of Pittsburgh were met.

Probably the greatest thrill of his career came the night he went on a scoring rampage and chalked up 28 field goals in a game at Shepherdstown, W. Va.

The next two years (1920-1921) he played at Keyser Prep School (now Potomac State College). Among his teammates were "Red" Craver, Dave Ward, Trix Bright, George Bowlby and Carmen DiBacco, who later became the mayor of Thomas, W. Va., Paul Davis, now cashier of the National Bank of Keyser, was the Keyser Prep coach.

In 1922 this player took the place of Walter Hoyt at center for the Keyser Collegians and scored 10 field goals in a 57-26 victory over the Taylor A. A. of Cumberland.

He played basketball for Barton when Arthur P. Hoffa and Bob Smith, now deputy sheriff of Allegany county, organized an independent team there. He also was on "Mac" McKenty's Lonaconing quint.

When Blake "Spooks" Lytle was coaching baseball at Keyser Prep this lad was his catcher. The Prep nine met a number of leading road clubs, including Dick Guy's Pittsburgh Collegians and beat the Liberty A. C., one of Cumberland's top sandlot nines.

Since 1904 this former athlete has been a resident of Keyser where his father was employed by the Western Maryland Railway Company.

His basketball career actually began in his sophomore year at Keyser High School in 1918. Dr. Knight Reynolds, who later became a well known physician in Cumberland, Earl Groves, "Chicken" Avers and Wilbur "Bub" Wells, now employed by the Cumberland branch of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, were among his teammates.

This man's eldest son played high school football and basketball, college football, was in pro basketball last season and now coaches the sport. Another son plays junior high basketball.

Can you identify the athlete pictured here?

(Wayne, incidentally, was the hero in the first game he played with the Old Germans last December 3. His goal in the closing seconds of play beat the Broadway Clowns, 58-57, in the opening game of the 1952-53 season here.)

He is William "Willie" Boor, now an employe of the B.&O. Railroad at Keyser. He's the dad of Wayne Boor, who makes his bow as cage mentor at Fort Ashby High School this year. Wayne engaged in football and basketball at Keyser High and also played football at Tulsa University. Last season he was on the Old Germans basketball squad. His brother Billy is on the Junior high squad at Keyser. The photo of "Willie" Boor was taken when he was playing with the Collegians.

West Virginia's Top Class B Teams Meet In Romney At 2 P. M.

Two of the leading contenders for the West Virginia Class "B" football championship will come to grips today when Coach Ray Kelly's Farmington High School eleven, victorious in seven out of eight starts, including four shutouts, faces Romney High School's Pioneers in the latter's homecoming game at 2 p. m.

Four years ago Romney knocked off the Farmers from Marion County by the score of 32-6, the first time the schools tangled on the gridiron, and this victory put the Pioneers in line for a shot at the state title. Romney met Wirt High of Elizabeth at Parkersburg, December 3, 1949, and captured state Class "B" honors in a 20-19 battle. That win gave the Hampshire countians a 10-1 record for the season.

Both Boast Win Streaks

Romney is at present on an eight-game winning streak but this string is seriously threatened today by a Farmington aggregation that has bowled over seven successive foes after dropping the opener to Wellsburg. One of the Farmers' standout wins was scored at the expense of Fairmont West (39-7), a Class "A" School that holds a 37-13 decision over Elkins High which played Allegany last night.

Romney and Farmington will be meeting for the fourth time. The Pioneers win in 1949, Farmington finished on top in 1951 by the score of 6-0 and the teams battled to a 12-12 deadlock last year.

Today's game will be the first of two important battles for Romney on successive weekends as next Friday Coach Richard "Dick" McElwee's boys battle it out with Keyser High at Romney for the Potomac Valley Conference title.

Will Honor McElwee

Coach McElwee, who is completing his 10th season at the helm of Romney elevens, will be honored by Romney fans at today's game. A product of West Virginia University where he played on the varsity eleven in 1940, 1941 and 1942 and captained the Mountaineers in his senior year, McElwee made his debut as a high school mentor eleven years ago at Webster Springs in Webster county. In addition to coaching Romney to the state "B" grid crown in 1949, his Pioneers tied Moorefield for the P.V.C. crown in 1950 and last spring the Hampshire Countians finished as runner-up in the state baseball championship tourney.

Funds have been raised to purchase a gift which will be presented to McElwee at today's contest.

Canine obedience training classes, sponsored by the Upper Potomac Valley Kennel Club are scheduled to begin December 8, it was announced at the meeting of the club this week by Donald Prichard, chairman of the obedience committee.

Other members of the committee are Robert J. Boniece and Miss Margaret Neumann.

Classes will continue for a period of ten weeks and will be held indoors at a place to be announced at a meeting of the club December 1 in the Herman Room of the Queen City Brewing Company.

Plans for a point show next fall also were discussed. The date will be the day preceding the Mason-Dixon Kennel Club show at Hagerstown, giving those planning to show, two shows in a radius of 75 miles.

Persons interested in obedience desiring to join the class upon payment of a nominal fee automatically become members of the club. Obedience training has taken hold of all sections of the country and thousands of dogs are receiving the benefit of such courses.

Orioles Will Train At Yuma, Arizona

BALTIMORE, Nov. 6 (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles are going to stick with the committment of the St. Louis Browns and do their baseball training next spring in Yuma, Ariz., Art Ehlers, general manager, announced today.

Ehlers would prefer to have the new American League team train in Florida. He has decided to drop the idea for 1954.

The Browns, whom the Orioles are succeeding, besides agreeing to train in Arizona also had scheduled exhibition games with Cleveland, New York Giants and Chicago Cubs, who also practice there.

Ehlers also said he has had a telephone call in without success for two days to the St. Louis home of Marty Marion who has another year's contract as manager. Ehlers wants to arrange a meeting with Marion before deciding if he will continue as manager or be replaced.

Terps Favored To Capture 7th

Rules Four TD Choice Over Colonials Today

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—Maryland runs up against its neighbor, George Washington University, here tomorrow and despite some brave sounds from G.W. way, the unbeaten and untied Terrapins ruled a solid four touchdown favorite today.

The George Washington Colonials should test at least one thing: Can Maryland run at will against a stubborn defense?

The Terps have scored 31 touchdowns in seven games while piling up an astonishing total of 1,779 yards on the ground. G.W., on the other hand, has been very grudging against ground offensives, even though it has lost three of its six games.

If the Colonials contrive to stop the Maryland ground attack, Bernie Faloney and his playmates are likely to put hitherto unnecessary emphasis on their passing game.

Maryland has thrown 78 times, completed 36 for 749 yards. Its opponents' have done almost as well in yardage, gaining 628.

The Griffith Stadium contest, the latest in a rivalry dating back to 1907, begins at 2 p.m., EST.

Fort Hill High School is scheduled to play Franklin High School's Blue Jays of Johnstown, Pa., tonight at the local stadium at 8 o'clock but the game may be postponed until next weekend, Coach William P. Hahn announced last night.

"It doesn't make sense to play on a snow-covered or sloppy field if we can postpone the game until next Friday night," Hahn declared. It was snowing last night when Hahn made the announcement.

Hahn stated that the condition of the field this morning will determine whether the game will be played tonight. He will make an announcement after inspecting the field this morning.

The Pennsylvanians come here with a 6-2 record against Pennsylvania schools and would like to add the scalp of a Maryland team to their win column.

Franklin is coached by Milan Gjurich, former three sports star at St. Francis College, Lorette, Pa., where he played left halfback on the football team, guard on the basketball team and shortstop on the diamond aggregation.

After being graduated from St. Francis in 1941, Gjurich served as head basketball coach and assistant football coach at Johnstown Catholic High (1941-42); head football and basketball coach at Conemaugh High (1942-44); returned to Conemaugh after getting his discharge from the Navy and remained there until 1950. He has been coaching football, baseball and basketball teams at Franklin since 1950.

Tonight's engagement will be the second on the gridiron between the Blue Jays and Fort Hill, the Sentinels having copped last year's contest by the score of 27-6.

It will be Fort Hill's final game before the city championship tilt with Allegany High on Thanksgiving Day and is expected to attract a good-size crowd.

Auburn Tops Miami, 29-20

Final Quarter Spurt Decides Florida Game

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 6 (AP) — Auburn's two-platoon system paid off in the last quarter tonight as the Tigers broke out of a deadlock to beat Miami's Hurricanes 29-20.

Miami's young team, which has ranged from miserable to magnificent this season, fought Auburn to a 13-13 tie at the end of the third quarter and seemed on the way to ruining the Tigers' hopes of a Sugar Bowl bid.

But Auburn, alternating two teams of equal strength, at intervals of eight and seven minutes, overran a tiring Hurricane club for two touchdowns and a field goal in the early part of the final period.

A field goal by Joe Davis broke the tie four plays after the last quarter began and Bobby Duke ran three yards for the decisive touchdown after Frank D'Agostino had recovered a fumble on the Miami 16.

Miami	0	7	6	7	—20

Auburn scoring: Touchdowns, Duke 3, James. Conversions, Davis, Nardone. Field goal, Davis.

Miami scoring: Touchdowns, Rouviere, Bookman, Dorshimer. Conversions, Tassotti 2.

Terry May Land Managerial Job With Brooklyn

Visits Vero Beach, O'Malley Is There

VERO BEACH, Fla., Nov. 6 (AP)—Reports circulated in this baseball town today that Bill Terry, former New York Giants manager now a Florida business man, is the latest hot prospect as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The report was given credence by the arrival of Walter O'Malley, Dodgers' president, for an inspection tour of the club's big Vero Beach spring training camp. He was accompanied by Fresco Thompson, vice president.

"Is Bill Terry coming to see you while you're here?" O'Malley was asked.

"If he does I'll be glad to see him."

"Are you going to offer him the manager's post?"

"I have nothing to say about that," replied O'Malley.

Later inquiries at Dodgertown indicated that Terry was expected to check into one of the club's apartments near one occupied by O'Malley.

Terry managed the Giants to pennant victories in 1933, 1936 and 1937. At present he is an automobile dealer in Jacksonville, Fla., and owns an oil company in Memphis, Tenn.

His name came to the fore as prospective manager of the Dodgers after Pee Wee Reese, star shortstop and captain who was considered top choice, voluntarily bowed out of the picture. Reese said at Louisville last night that he wasn't interested.

"Maybe I have made a mistake," said Pee Wee. "I will know that in a couple of years."

Charley Dressen quit as manager in October when he was refused a long-term contract. He wanted a three-year term and appeared ready to accept two, but O'Malley declined to sign him for more than a year at a time. He now has a three-year contract to manage Oakland in the Pacific Coast League.

Bowl-Minded Teams Figure In Big Games

Illinois, Stanford And Oklahoma Face Tough Foes Today

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—A decisive step toward clarifying the football bowl situation was taken Thursday by the Southern Conference special events committee. Several other steps likely will be taken tomorrow by bowl-minded teams.

Four of the five major conference leaders which can qualify automatically for lucrative New Year's Day games by winning titles face opposition that could knock them out of contention. And for every one that might falter, there are a couple ready and willing to move in.

Would Lift Bowl Ban

The Southern Conference move was a committee recommendation that the ban on post-season games should be lifted. A full conference meeting will be required to act on this proposal, but it appears to be the first move toward clearing the way for West Virginia's participation in a bowl game.

West Virginia's status as one of four major teams still undefeated and untied isn't likely to be impaired by Virginia Tech tomorrow. The Mountaineers have been listed as likely recipients of bids from the Sugar Bowl or Cotton Bowl if the conference grants permission.

The other unbeaten-untied biggies are Notre Dame, the nation's No. 1 team and one which definitely isn't interested in bowl games; and Maryland and Baylor, which definitely are. Illinois, tied but undefeated and ranked fourth in this week's Associated Press poll, also is a bowl candidate.

The "automatic" bowl setup brings together the Big Ten and Pacific Coast champions in the Rose Bowl, the Atlantic Coast and Big Seven champions in the Orange Bowl—with certain exceptions—and sends the Southwest Conference champion against an invited outsider in the Cotton Bowl. The Sugar Bowl has no tieup, but usually aims for the Southeastern Conference champion.

Illinois, the Big Ten leader, has to get past one of its oldest and most dangerous rivals, Michigan, to stay on top. Stanford, unbeaten in the Pacific Coast Conference though a two-time loser, takes on Southern California. Michigan State and Ohio State (both 3-1) fight it out for second in the Big Ten. UCLA (4-1) is idle with Southern California (3-1-1) threatening.

Oklahoma can virtually wrap up the Big Seven end of the Orange Bowl by beating Missouri. Maryland, No. 2 nationally and tops in the Atlantic Coast Conference, meets George Washington of the Southern Conference. Baylor, leader of the anything-can-happen Southwest Conference, encounters runner-up Texas.

Notre Dame Is Choice

Notre Dame's game with Pennsylvania at Philadelphia stands out. As usual, Notre Dame is the favorite.

Elsewhere the conference picture is this:

Georgia Tech and Mississippi, one-two in the Southeastern, face outside opposition—Tech against Clemson and Mississippi against North Texas State. Duke goes outside the Atlantic Coast loop to tackle Navy. The princeton-Harvard game takes precedence in the Ivy group as Cornell, the leader, takes on its non-league neighbor, Syracuse.

Some of the other major games:

East — North Carolina State-Army, Wake Forest-Boston College.

South—Pittsburgh-Virginia, William and Mary-Virginia Military, Davidson-Washington and Lee, Chattanooga-Alabama, Louisiana State-Tennessee, Mississippi State-Tulane, Kentucky-Vanderbilt.

By TED TROXELL

Neither a driving snowstorm nor the Elkins Tigers was able to stop the scoring attack of the Allegany Campers at Fort Hill Stadium last night, as the powerful eleven of Coach Roy Lester rolled to its seventh consecutive triumph of the season, 20-0.

Harry Hixenbaugh kicked off to start the contest, but the snow-covered ball slipped from the grasp of Tiger end Bob Erickson, and Fritz Hadra pounced on the elusive pigskin on the Elkins 38-yard line.

Joyce Makes First Score

After a 15-yard holding penalty set the Campers back to the 48, the determined gridders drove to the ten, where Eddie Joyce skirted around left end for the first score. Dick Rank's try for the point was good, and the Campers took the lead as the quarter ended, 7-0.

When the West Virginians gained possession of the ball, they once again found it "too cold to handle", and Jim Hoffman recovered Bill Wise's fumble on the Elkins 43.

The Campers drove to the four in ten plays with Fullback Freddie Wartzack capping the drive by scoring the locals' second TD of the evening. Rank's kick missed being good by a fraction as the ball hit the upright, and fell to the side.

Pass Produces TD

The winners' final tally came on a nicely executed pass play with Bob Kirtley heaving an end zone aerial to end Vernon Lowery, from the 12-yard line. Lowery, hefty 185-pound Senior, warded off several defenders to come up with one of the offensive highlights of the evening. This time, Rank's kick was accurate, and the Campers had their seventh win, 20-0.

The Tigers of Frank Wimer never once posed a serious threat as they did not even invade Alco territory until late in the last quarter as the final whistle found th ball resting on the Allegany 39-yard stripe.

Rank made an impressive showing in the Camper backfield along with Joyce and Kirtley, Allegany's two-time Player-of-the-Week selection. Lowery, Weller, and Hadra stood out along the forward wall.

Wise Best For Elkins

Bill Wise proved to be Elkins' best bet, being responsible for the main part of the invader's short-lived offensive drives. Erickson, Watring, and Wimer were the best linemen for the Orange and Black.

Notes Of The Game

The snowstorm proved to be a "headache" in more ways than one, as the yardline markers and stripes were completely covered by the crystals. . . Harry Hixenbaugh attempted a field goal for the Campers late in the second half from the forty-yard line, with the kick bouncing into the end zone. . . Rodney Breedlove, starting center, who recently shed a cast from his arm, suffered another injury last night, receiving a broken nose. Incidentally, that makes him the third one in the Alco camp with a broken sniffer. The injury occurred when Breedlove got the tackle, following Allegany's second kickoff after the touchdown. . . A small crowd, estimated at less than the thousand mark, witnessed the contest. . . The bands of both schools entertained at halftime, with Allegany's majorettes highlighting the show with their fire-twirling act.

As You Were

(This is the 170th in a series of sketches with pictures of well known sport personalities of the past from the album of the Cumberland News Sports Editor. See if you can identify them by their photo.)

This lad, a native of Elk Garden, W. Va., was on 17 years old when he made his debut with the famed Keyser Collegians basketball team.

The year was 1919 and the Collegians' roster included Dyke Shaffer, Art Slocum, Robert Gibson, Clem Montgomery and Floyd "Newt" Mills. Classy road quints of the calibre of the Coffey Club and the Second Story Morrys of Pittsburgh were met.

Probably the greatest thrill of his career came the night he went on a scoring rampage and chalked up 28 field goals in a game at Shepherdstown, W. Va.

The next two years (1920-1921) he played at Keyser Prep School (now Potomac State College). Among his teammates were "Red" Craver, Dave Ward, Trix Bright, George Bowlby and Carmen DiBacco, who later became the mayor of Thomas, W. Va., Paul Davis, now cashier of the National Bank of Keyser, was the Keyser Prep coach.

In 1922 this player took the place of Walter Hoyt at center for the Keyser Collegians and scored 10 field goals in a 57-26 victory over the Taylor A. A. of Cumberland.

He played basketball for Barton when Arthur P. Hoffa and Bob Smith, now deputy sheriff of Allegany county, organized an independent team there. He also was on "Mac" McKenty's Lonaconing quint.

When Blake "Spooks" Lytle was coaching baseball at Keyser Prep this lad was his catcher. The Prep nine met a number of leading road clubs, including Dick Guy's Pittsburgh Collegians and beat the Liberty A. C., one of Cumberland's top sandlot nines.

Since 1904 this former athlete has been a resident of Keyser where his father was employed by the Western Maryland Railway Company.

His basketball career actually began in his sophomore year at Keyser High School in 1918. Dr. Knight Reynolds, who later became a well known physician in Cumberland, Earl Groves, "Chicken" Avers and Wilbur "Bub" Wells, now employed by the Cumberland branch of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, were among his teammates.

This man's eldest son played high school football and basketball, college football, was in pro basketball last season and now coaches the sport. Another son plays junior high basketball.

Can you identify the athlete pictured here?

(He is William "Willie" Boor, now an employe of the B.&O. Railroad at Keyser. He's the dad of Wayne Boor, who makes his bow as cage mentor at Fort Ashby High School this year. Wayne engaged in football and basketball at Keyser High and also played football at Tulsa University. Last season he was on the Old German basketball squad. His brother Billy is on the junior high squad at Keyser. The photo of "Willie" Boor was taken when he was playing with the Collegians.

(Wayne, incidentally, was the hero in the first game he played with the Old Germans last December 3. His goal in the closing seconds of play beat the Broadway Clowns, 58-57, in the opening game of the 1952-53 season here.)

West Virginia's Top Class B Teams Meet In Romney At 2 P. M.

Two of the leading contenders for the West Virginia Class "B" football championship will come to grips today when Coach Ray Kelly's Farmington High School eleven, victorious in seven out of eight starts, including four shutouts, faces Romney High School's Pioneers in the latter's homecoming game at 2 p. m.

Four years ago Romney knocked off the Farmers from Marion County by the score of 32-6, the first time the schools tangled on the gridiron, and this victory put the Pioneers in line for a shot at the state title. Romney met Wirt High of Elizabeth at Parkersburg, December 3, 1949, and captured state Class "B" honors in a 20-19 battle. That win gave the Hampshire countians a 10-1 record for the season.

Both Boast Win Streaks

Romney is at present on an eight-game winning streak but this string is seriously threatened today by a Farmington aggregation that has bowled over seven successive foes after dropping the opener to Wellsburg. One of the Farmers' standout wins was scored at the expense of Fairmont West (39-7), a Class "A" School that holds a 37-13 decision over Elkins High which played Allegany last night.

Romney and Farmington will be meeting for the fourth time. The Pioneers win in 1949, Farmington finished on top in 1951 by the score of 6-0 and the teams battled to a 12-12 deadlock last year.

Today's game will be the first of two important battles for Romney on successive weekends as next Friday Coach Richard "Dick" McElwee's boys battle it out with Keyser High at Romney for the Potomac Valley Conference title.

Will Honor McElwee

Coach McElwee, who is completing his 10th season at the helm of Romney elevens, will be honored by Romney fans at today's game. A product of West Virginia University where he played on the varsity eleven in 1940, 1941 and 1942 and captained the Mountaineers in his senior year, McElwee made his debut as a high school mentor eleven years ago at Webster Springs in Webster county. In addition to coaching Romney to the state "B" grid crown in 1949, his Pioneers tied Moorefield for the P.V.C. crown in 1950 and last spring the Hampshire Countians finished as runner-up in the state baseball championship tourney.

Funds have been raised to purchase a gift which will be presented to McElwee at today's contest.

Kennel Club To Name Indoor Site Dec. 1

Canine obedience training classes, sponsored by the Upper Potomac Valley Kennel Club are scheduled to begin December 8, it was announced at the meeting of the club this week by Donald Prichard, chairman of the obedience committee.

Other members of the committee are Robert J. Boniece and Miss Margaret Neumann.

Classes will continue for a period of ten weeks and will be held indoors at a place to be announced at a meeting of the club December 1 in the Herman Room of the Queen City Brewing Company.

Plans for a point show next fall also were discussed. The date will be the day preceding the Mason-Dixon Kennel Club show at Hagerstown, giving those planning to show, two shows in a radius of 75 miles.

Persons interested in obedience desiring to join the class upon payment of a nominal fee automatically become members of the club. Obedience training has taken hold of all sections of the country and thousands of dogs are receiving the benefit of such courses.

Twenty-two local dog owners enrolled in last spring's training class and twice that number are expected to enroll in the December class. Those interested are urged to be present at the December meeting of the club. Details can be had by contacting any member of the committee.

Orioles Will Train At Yuma, Arizona

BALTIMORE, Nov. 6 (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles are going to stick with the committment of the St. Louis Browns and do their baseball training next spring in Yuma, Ariz., Art Ehlers, general manager, announced today.

Ehlers would prefer to have the new American League team train in Florida. He has decided to drop the idea for 1954.

The Browns, whom the Orioles are succeeding, besides agreeing to train in Arizona also had scheduled exhibition games with Cleveland, New York Giants and Chicago Cubs, who also practice there.

Ehlers also said he has had a telephone call in without success for two days to the St. Louis home of Marty Marion who has another year's contract as manager. Ehlers wants to arrange a meeting with Marion before deciding if he will continue as manager or be replaced.

Terps Favored To Capture 7th

Rules Four TD Choice Over Colonials Today

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—Maryland runs up against its neighbor, George Washington University, here tomorrow and despite some brave sounds from G.W. way, the unbeaten and untied Terrapins ruled a solid four touchdown favorite today.

The George Washington Colonials should test at least one thing: Can Maryland run at will against a stubborn defense?

The Terps have scored 31 touchdowns in seven games while piling up an astonishing total of 1,779 yards on the ground. G.W., on the other hand, has been very grudging against ground offensives, even though it has lost three of its six games.

If the Colonials contrive to stop the Maryland ground attack, Bernie Faloney and his playmates are likely to put hitherto unnecessary emphasis on their passing game.

Maryland has thrown 78 times, completed 36 for 749 yards. Its opponents' have done almost as well in yardage, gaining 628.

The Griffith Stadium contest, the latest in a rivalry dating back to 1907, begins at 2 p.m., EST.

Fort Hill High School is scheduled to play Franklin High School's Blue Jays of Johnstown, Pa., tonight at the local stadium at 8 o'clock but the game may be postponed until next weekend, Coach William P. Hahn announced last night.

"It doesn't make sense to play on a snow-covered or sloppy field if we can postpone the game until next Friday night," Hahn declared. It was snowing last night when Hahn made the announcement.

Hahn stated that the condition of the field this morning will determine whether the game will be played tonight. He will make an announcement after inspecting the field this morning.

The Pennsylvanians come here with a 6-2 record against Pennsylvania schools and would like to add the scalp of a Maryland team to their win column.

Franklin is coached by Milan Gjurich, former three sports star at St. Francis College, Lorette, Pa., where he played left halfback on the football team, guard on the basketball team and shortstop on the diamond aggregation.

After being graduated from St. Francis in 1941, Gjurich served as head basketball coach and assistant football coach at Johnstown Catholic High (1941-42); head football and basketball coach at Conemaugh High (1942-44); returned to Conemaugh after getting his discharge from the Navy and remained there until 1950. He has been coaching football, baseball and basketball teams at Franklin since 1950.

Tonight's engagement will be the second on the gridiron between the Blue Jays and Fort Hill, the Sentinels having copped last year's contest by the score of 27-6.

It will be Fort Hill's final game before the city championship tilt with Allegany High on Thanksgiving Day and is expected to attract a good-size crowd.

Auburn Tops Miami, 29-20

Final Quarter Spurt Decides Florida Game

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 6 (AP) — Auburn's two-platoon system paid off in the last quarter tonight as the Tigers broke out of a deadlock to beat Miami's Hurricanes 29-20.

Miami's young team, which has ranged from miserable to magnificent this season, fought Auburn to a 13-13 tie at the end of the third quarter and seemed on the way to ruining the Tigers' hopes of a Sugar Bowl bid.

But Auburn, alternating two teams of equal strength, at intervals of eight and seven minutes, overran a tiring Hurricane club for two touchdowns and a field goal in the early part of the final period.

A field goal by Joe Davis broke the tie four plays after the last quarter began and Bobby Duke ran three yards for the decisive touchdown after Frank D'Agostino had recovered a fumble on the Miami 16.

Terry May Land Managerial Job With Brooklyn

Visits Vero Beach, O'Malley Is There

VERO BEACH, Fla., Nov. 6 (AP)—Reports circulated in this baseball town today that Bill Terry, former New York Giants manager now a Florida business man, is the latest hot prospect as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The report was given credence by the arrival of Walter O'Malley, Dodgers' president, for an inspection tour of the club's big Vero Beach spring training camp. He was accompanied by Fresco Thompson, vice president.

"Is Bill Terry coming to see you while you're here?" O'Malley was asked.

"If he does I'll be glad to see him."

"Are you going to offer him the manager's post?"

"I have nothing to say about that," replied O'Malley.

Later inquiries at Dodgertown indicated that Terry was expected to check into one of the club's apartments near one occupied by O'Malley.

Terry managed the Giants to pennant victories in 1933, 1936 and 1937. At present he is an automobile dealer in Jacksonville, Fla., and owns an oil company in Memphis, Tenn.

His name came to the fore as prospective manager of the Dodgers after Pee Wee Reese, star shortstop and captain who was considered top choice, voluntarily bowed out of the picture. Reese said at Louisville last night that he wasn't interested.

"Maybe I have made a mistake," said Pee Wee. "I will know that in a couple of years."

Charley Dressen quit as manager in October when he was refused a long-term contract. He wanted a three-year term and appeared ready to accept two, but O'Malley declined to sign him for more than a year at a time. He now has a three-year contract to manage Oakland in the Pacific Coast League.

Bowl-Minded Teams Figure In Big Games

Illinois, Stanford And Oklahoma Face Tough Foes Today

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—A decisive step toward clarifying the football bowl situation was taken Thursday by the Southern Conference special events committee. Several other steps likely will be taken tomorrow by bowl-minded teams.

Four of the five major conference leaders which can qualify automatically for lucrative New Year's Day games by winning titles face opposition that could knock them out of contention. And for every one that might falter, there are a couple ready and willing to move in.

Would Lift Bowl Ban

The Southern Conference move was a committee recommendation that the ban on post-season games should be lifted. A full conference meeting will be required to act on this proposal, but it appears to be the first move toward clearing the way for West Virginia's participation in a bowl game.

West Virginia's status as one of four major teams still undefeated and untied isn't likely to be impaired by Virginia Tech tomorrow. The Mountaineers have been listed as likely recipients of bids from the Sugar Bowl or Cotton Bowl if the conference grants permission.

The other unbeaten-untied biggies are Notre Dame, the nation's No. 1 team and one which definitely isn't interested in bowl games; and Maryland and Baylor, which definitely are. Illinois, tied but undefeated and ranked fourth in this week's Associated Press poll, also is a bowl candidate.

The "automatic" bowl setup brings together the Big Ten and Pacific Coast champions in the Rose Bowl, the Atlantic Coast and Big Seven champions in the Orange Bowl—with certain exceptions—and sends the Southwest Conference champion against an invited outsider in the Cotton Bowl. The Sugar Bowl has no tieup, but usually aims for the Southeastern Conference champion.

Illinois, the Big Ten leader, has to get past one of its oldest and most dangerous rivals, Michigan, to stay on top. Stanford, unbeaten in the Pacific Coast Conference though a two-time loser, takes on Southern California. Michigan State and Ohio State (both 3-1) fight it out for second in the Big Ten. UCLA (4-1) is idle with Southern California (3-1-1) threatening.

Oklahoma can virtually wrap up the Big Seven end of the Orange Bowl by beating Missouri. Maryland, No. 2 nationally and tops in the Atlantic Coast Conference, meets George Washington of the Southern Conference. Baylor, leader of the anything-can-happen Southwest Conference, encounters runner-up Texas.

Notre Dame Is Choice

Notre Dame's game with Pennsylvania at Philadelphia stands out. As usual, Notre Dame is the favorite.

Elsewhere the conference picture is this:

Georgia Tech and Mississippi, one-two in the Southeastern, face outside opposition—Tech against Clemson and Mississippi against North Texas State. Duke goes outside the Atlantic Coast loop to tackle Navy. The princeton-Harvard game takes precedence in the Ivy group as Cornell, the leader, takes on its non-league neighbor, Syracuse.

Some of the other major games:

East — North Carolina State-Army, Wake Forest-Boston College.

South—Pittsburgh-Virginia, William and Mary-Virginia Miltary, Davidson-Washington and Lee, Chattanooga-Alabama, Louisiana State-Tennessee, Mississippi State-Tulane, Kentucky-Vanderbilt.

Snowstorm Causes Postponement Of Laurel's $65,000 Race

Turf Classic May Be Staged On Wednesday

Today's Entire Card Called Off; Crafty Admiral Was Choice

LAUREL, Md., Nov. 6 (AP) — Laurel race officials tonight called off tomorrow's scheduled running of the track's dream race, the $65,000 Washington, D. C. International, because of a snowstorm which swept through Maryland today.

John D. Shapiro, president of Laurel Park, said it would be decided tomorrow morning just when to run the turf classic which has drawn ten horses from six countries.

May Run Wednesday

Shapiro had said earlier that if it had to be postponed it would probably be run next Wednesday, Armistice Day.

The track announced that it was postponing the entire card for tomorrow because of snow conditions.

The postponement was caused by a freak snowstorm which blustered through the state today and tonight. Three to five inches fell during the day and two to three more inches were forecast for tonight. The weatherman had said, however, that skies should be clear by tomorrow.

Today's races at Laurel were run despite the show and without casualty. Visibility was very poor, however, and the track became sloppy.

Officials had looked forward to a record crowd of more than 30,000 tomorrow for the race they had been planning for a year. The International was inaugurated last year at Laurel with the English horse Wilwyn galloping home first ahead of favored American entries.

This year's field includes two horses from England, two from France, two from Ireland, two from the United States, one foreign-bred United States horse, and one from Argentina.

Crafty Admiral Choice

Crafty Admiral, an American entry from Charfran stables, held a slight 5 to 2 edge in the odds tonight while officials debated whether to run the mile and a half race over Laurel's grass turf.

Preliminaries had gone ahead for the running tomorrow with post positions being drawn.

The luck of the draw put the two French horses, Ralph Strassburger's Worden and Paul Dubosc-q's Silnet, in the No. 1 and 2 post positions, respectively. The start will be a walk-up in deference to foreign horses who are not familiar with the American gate.

Wilwyn Won In 1952

Robert Boucher's Wilwyn, the English star who won the first Laurel International last year and may be second choice to Crafty Admiral tomorrow, is in the No. 3 post. Crafty Admiral is in No. 9, which may be a disadvantage because of the sharp turns on the grass course.

The appropriately named Iceberg II, bred in Chile and American-owned by W. Arnold Hanger, got No. 4. The others are Sunglow (U. S.), Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Brookmeade Stable, No. 5; Harwin (England), Thomas Robinson, No. 6; Chamier (Ireland), Mrs. F. L. Vickerman, No. 70 Thirteen of Diamonds (Ireland), Alfred L. Hawkins, No. 8; and Mister Black (Argentina), No. 10.

Kiely To Join Bosox

BOSTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Red Sox today received word that left-handed pitcher Leo Kiely had been discharged from the Army and the Boston club immediately asked that his name be added to the active list.

Kiely, from Hoboken, N. J., went into the service in October 1951, after spending half the season with the Sox, winning 7 and losing 7 games, while compiling a 3.53 earned run average.

AT THE TRACKS

Snow Halts Races At Garden State

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 6 (AP)—For the first time in the 12 year history of Garden State Park, racing was cancelled today.

Reason for the cancellation was a blinding showstorm which presented a hazard to both riders and horses. After viewing the condition of the track, with no apparent letup of the snow, the management felt that it was too dangerous to permit today's card to be run.

Racing at the course is scheduled to be resumed tomorrow, with a weather forecast of clearing and warmer, and the $50,000 added Trenton Handicap highlighting the program.

Will Race Monday

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 6 (AP)—Garden State Park ill have racing Monday.

Customarily, this is a "dark" day, but at the request of Hugh L. Mehorter, chairman of the New Jersey State Racing Commission, this open date is being used to fill in the day of racing lost due to Friday's snow storm.

The 25-day fall meeting ends Armistice Day, Wednesday, Nov. 11.

PETERSBURG, W. Va. Nov. 6—Keyser High's Golden Tornado defeated Petersburg's Vikings here today during a snowstorm by the score of 11-0 and tied Romney High for first place in the Potomac Valley Conference football race.

The victory was Keyser's fourth without a setback in the nine-school circuit and gave Coach Fred "Tack" Clark's outfit an overall record of 7-2. Petersburg closed out the season with a 4-3-1 overall mark and a 4-2-1 mark in the conference.

Romney and Keyser, both unbeaten in P.V.C competition clash for the championship Friday afternoon at Romney.

Keyser took a 4-0 lead in the second quarter as the result of a pair of safeties. The Vikings attempted to punt on their own 20 but the pass from center sailed over the head of Jimmy Kessel who trailed the ball into the end zone and fell on it for Keyser's initial two pointer. The other safety came when Roy Rumer was tackled in the end zone by a Keyser player.

The Mineral countians drove 60 yards for their lone touchdown in the third period with Ernie Courrier smashing off left tackle from the one on fourth down. He also kicked the point.

Late in the game Petersburg marched to Keyser's 12 but Jimmy Kessel's pass was intercepted on the 8, killing the scoring threat.

Keyser reeled off 12 first downs to the Vikings four but Petersburg outrushed the visitors, 118 to 113 yards, and completed four passes for 40 yards while KHS failed to connect in three tries.

Young Scores Over Giuliana

Paddy Registers TKO In 2nd At New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—Paddy Young, starting up the road toward a rematch with middleweight champion Bobo Olson, stopped Sammy Giuliani of Stamford, Conn., tonight on a technical knockout in 2:54 of the second round at St. Nicholas Arena.

Young and Giuliani each weighed 161.

Steelers Meet Browns Sunday At Cleveland

Baltimore To Play In Detroit Tonight

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP) — The three-way battle for first place in the Western Division of the National Football League gets hotter than ever this weekend. In the Eastern half of the league Cleveland's unbeaten Browns are expected to continue their runaway at Pittsburgh's expense.

In the bunched Western group the Los Angeles Rams are first with 5-1 followed by Detroit's defending champion Lions and the San Francisco 49ers with 4-2 each, and then the Baltimore Colts, 3-3. The four have it out among themselves Saturday night and Sunday.

The Lions meet the Colts in Detroit Saturday night in the second meeting of these two teams. Detroit had to go all out to whip the Colts 27-17 in Baltimore.

Rams Battle 49ers

The big game of the weekend sends San Francisco against the Rams at Los Angeles Sunday afternoon. The 49ers pinned the Rams with their only defeat, 31-30, and another San Francisco win plus a Detroit victory could find all three locked in a tie at 5-2 Sunday evening.

In the other Western game on Sunday, Green Bay's Packers (2-4) tangle with the Bears (1-5) at Chicago in a battle of also-rans. The Bears' only victory was racked up at Green Bay's expense, 17-13.

The Browns (6-0) are the only unbeaten club in the NFL. Pittsburgh (3-3), third in the East, doesn't figure to end the Brownies streak in the Clevelanders' park. This is the first meeting of the two teams this year.

Philadelphia's Eagles (3-2-1), runner-up to the Browns, play host to the New York Giants (2-4) in another first meeting. The other game in the east matches fourth place Washington (2-3-1) and the winless Chicago Cardinals (0-6) at Washington. The Redskins defeated the Cards, 24-13, in their previous game.

Colts Invade Detroit

The Saturday night Baltimore-Detroit will be telecast over an extensive Dumont Network while the Sunday Pittsburgh-Cleveland game will be telecast coast to coast. Other games will be telecast over regional networks by Dumont.

Snowstorm Causes Postponement Of Laurel's $65,000 Race

Turf Classic May Be Staged On Wednesday

Today's Entire Card Called Off; Crafty Admiral Was Choice

LAUREL, Md., Nov. 6 (AP) — Laurel race officials tonight called off tomorrow's scheduled running of the track's dream race, the $65,000 Washington, D. C. International, because of a snowstorm which swept through Maryland today.

John D. Shapiro, president of Laurel Park, said it would be decided tomorrow morning just when to run the turf classic which has drawn ten horses from six countries.

May Run Wednesday

Shapiro had said earlier that if it had to be postponed it would probably be run next Wednesday, Armistice Day.

The track announced that it was postponing the entire card for tomorrow because of snow conditions.

The postponement was caused by a freak snowstorm which blustered through the state today and tonight. Three to five inches fell during the day and two to three more inches were forecast for tonight. The weatherman had said, however, that skies should be clear by tomorrow.

Today's races at Laurel were run despite the show and without casualty. Visibility was very poor, however, and the track became sloppy.

Officials had looked forward to a record crowd of more than 30,000 tomorrow for the race they had been planning for a year. The International was inaugurated last year at Laurel with the English horse Wilwyn galloping home first ahead of favored American entries.

This year's field includes two horses from England, two from France, two from Ireland, two from the United States, one foreign-bred United States horse, and one from Argentina.

Crafty Admiral Choice

Crafty Admiral, an American entry from Charfran stables, held a slight 5 to 2 edge in the odds tonight while officials debated whether to run the mile and a half race over Laurel's grass turf.

Preliminaries had gone ahead for the running tomorrow with post positions being drawn.

The luck of the draw put the two French horses, Ralph Strassburger's Worden and Paul Dubosceq's Silnet, in the No. 1 and 2 post positions, respectively. The start will be a walk-up in deference to foreign horses who are not familiar with the American gate.

Wilwyn Won In 1952

Robert Boucher's Wilwyn, the English star who won the first Laurel International last year and may be second choice to Crafty Admiral tomorrow, is in the No. 3 post. Crafty Admiral is in No. 9, which may be a disadvantage because of the sharp turns on the grass course.

The appropriately named Iceberg II, bred in Chile and American-owned by W. Arnold Hanger, got No. 4. The others are Sunglow (U. S.), Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Brookmeade Stable, No. 5; Harwin (England), Thomas Robinson, No. 6; Chamier (Ireland), Mrs. F. L. Vickerman, No. 70 Thirteen of Diamonds (Ireland), Alfred L. Hawkins, No. 8; and Mister Black (Argentina), No. 10.

Kiely To Join Bosox

BOSTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Red Sox today received word that left-handed pitcher Leo Kiely had been discharged from the Army and the Boston club immediately asked that his name be added to the active list.

Kiely, from Hoboken, N. J., went into the service in October 1951, after spending half the season with the Sox, winning 7 and losing 7 games, while compiling a 3.53 earned run average.

AT THE TRACKS

Snow Halts Races At Garden State

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 6 (AP)—For the first time in the 12 year history of Garden State Park, racing was cancelled today.

Reason for the cancellation was a blinding showstorm which presented a hazard to both riders and horses. After viewing the condition of the track, with no apparent letup of the snow, the management felt that it was too dangerous to permit today's card to be run.

Racing at the course is scheduled to be resumed tomorrow, with a weather forecast of clearing and warmer, and the $50,000 added Trenton Handicap highlighting the program.

Will Race Monday

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 6 (AP)—Preliminaries had gone ahead for the running tomorrow with post positions being drawn.

Customarily, this is a "dark" day, but at the request of Hugh L. Mehorter, chairman of the New Jersey State Racing Commission, this open date is being used to fill in the day of racing lost due to Friday's snow storm.

The 25-day fall meeting ends Armistice Day, Wednesday, Nov. 11.

PETERSBURG, W. Va. Nov. 6—Keyser High's Golden Tornado defeated Petersburg's Vikings here today during a snowstorm by the score of 11-0 and tied Romney High for first place in the Potomac Valley Conference football race.

The victory was Keyser's fourth without a setback in the nine-school circuit and gave Coach Fred "Tack" Clark's outfit an overall record of 7-2. Petersburg closed out the season with a 4-3-1 overall mark and a 4-2-1 mark in the conference.

Romney and Keyser, both unbeaten in P.V.C competition clash for the championship Friday afternoon at Romney.

Keyser took a 4-0 lead in the second quarter as the result of a pair of safeties. The Vikings attempted to punt on their own 20 but the pass from center sailed over the head of Jimmy Kessel who trailed the ball into the end zone and fell on it for Keyser's initial two pointer. The other safety came when Roy Rumer was tackled in the end zone by a Keyser player.

The Mineral countians drove 60 yards for their lone touchdown in the third period with Ernie Courrier smashing off left tackle from the one on fourth down. He also kicked the point.

Late in the game Petersburg marched to Keyser's 12 but Jimmy Kessel's pass was intercepted on the 8, killing the scoring threat.

Keyser reeled off 12 first downs to the Vikings four but Petersburg outrushed the visitors, 118 to 113 yards, and completed four passes for 40 yards while KHS failed to connect in three tries.

Young Scores Over Giuliana

Paddy Registers TKO In 2nd At New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—Paddy Young, starting up the road toward a rematch with middleweight champion Bobo Olson, stopped Sammy Giuliani of Stamford, Conn., tonight on a technical knockout in 2:54 of the second round at St. Nicholas Arena.

Young and Giuliani each weighed 161.

Steelers Meet Browns Sunday At Cleveland

Baltimore To Play In Detroit Tonight

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP) — The three-way battle for first place in the Western Division of the National Football League gets hotter than ever this weekend. In the Eastern half of the league Cleveland's unbeaten Browns are expected to continue their runaway at Pittsburgh's expense.

In the bunched Western group the Los Angeles Rams are first with 5-1 followed by Detroit's defending champion Lions and the San Francisco 49ers with 4-2 each, and then the Baltimore Colts, 3-3. The four have it out among themselves Saturday night and Sunday.

The Lions meet the Colts in Detroit Saturday night in the second meeting of these two teams. Detroit had to go all out to whip the Colts 27-17 in Baltimore.

Rams Battle 49ers

The big game of the weekend sends San Francisco against the Rams at Los Angeles Sunday afternoon. The 49ers pinned the Rams with their only defeat, 31-30, and another San Francisco win plus a Detroit victory could find all three locked in a tie at 5-2 Sunday evening.

In the other Western game on Sunday, Green Bay's Packers (2-4) tangle with the Bears (1-5) at Chicago in a battle of also-rans. The Bears' only victory was racked up at Green Bay's expense, 17-13.

The Browns (6-0) are the only unbeaten club in the NFL. Pittsburgh (3-3), third in the East, doesn't figure to end the Brownies streak in the Clevelanders' park. This is the first meeting of the two teams this year.

Philadelphia's Eagles (3-2-1), runner-up to the Browns, play host to the New York Giants (2-4) in another first meeting. The other game in the east matches fourth place Washington (2-3-1) and the winless Chicago Cardinals (0-6) at Washington. The Redskins defeated the Cards, 24-13, in their previous game.

Colts Invade Detroit

The Saturday night Baltimore-Detroit will be telecast over an extensive Dumont Network while the Sunday Pittsburgh-Cleveland game will be telecast coast to coast. Other games will be telecast over regional networks by Dumont.

Churches Pioneer Suburbs, Country's Residential Frontier

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (AP) — The slim, white spire of a new church today rises above the skyline on Oklahoma City's northern edge—a product of faith and symbol of a nationwide religious challenge.

It represents an answer to what church authorities term one of the most critical problems facing American spiritual life. It is one of many churches that are pioneering the country's new residential frontier—the suburbs.

But many more are needed.

Unless they're built, said Dr. Conrad Hoyer, head of the National Lutheran Council's Division of American Missions, there is a "serious threat to churches as well as to the spiritual health of members."

In the last decade, millions of persons have moved to city outskirts, often miles from the nearest church. Federal census figures show the biggest gains in population are in newly developed suburban areas.

To provide churches in these new communities, said Thomas Chastain, head of the American Baptist Home Mission Society, is the "most crucial need of this generation."

"Unless we place churches where the people live, the people will die spiritually."

Denominations—and state and local church councils — have pressed intensive programs and strained their budgets trying to spur needed new churches. But the gap still looms large.

"If we all do our best we will not be able to do all that needs to be done to church our new America," Chastain said. "Pleas come from hundreds of communities where we can give no help."

But no official help was given, or asked, in the case of the new Oklahoma City church—the Nichols Hills Baptist Church. Its establishment offers an example of the solution church officials say is needed—initiative, work, will and belief.

One of Oklahoma City's leading ministers, Dr. Rupert Naney, left a big, influential downtown pulpit to heed the call of a long-time vision—to help bring the church to those beyond its reach.

"In city after city," he said, "churches have lost the field by not following the suburban population. You see these new communities growing up, rimming our cities with new homes, new families and children. This is the dwelling place of our younger generation—the heart of our land and its future. The church must be there, too."

During 22 years of ministry at Oklahoma City's downtown Olivet Baptist (Southern) Church, Dr. Naney had built it into a flourishing institution, with new buildings, a big budget, reserves and huge congregation.

Dr. Naney, a tall, spare, white-haired man of 60, left it all—to build new foundations.

"My work there was finished," he said in an interview in the study of the new, colonial-type suburban church.

Striking out alone, Naney first held services in an outlying theater auditorium. Then he set up Sunday School classes in homes and in offices of a lumberyard, donated for church use.

About 100 persons became charter members of the new church. They elected officers, raised enough money to buy vacant lots and begin work on temporary quarters.

Last month, after two years' work, the quarter-million dollar church was complete, its trim, white steeple rising like a beacon on the city's outskirts.

All but $60,000 of its cost already has been paid. Plans are being made for further expansion. Membership has swelled to about 400, an estimated 90 per cent of whom had not been regular church-goers.

That's the story of how one pastor—and one group of people—tackled the problem of recapturing the country's shifting population for the church. It's been repeated in many places, but, officials say, not enough of them.

Southern Newsprint Output To Rise Sharply Next Year

BOCA RATON, Fla., Nov. 5 (AP)—Newsprint manufacturing in the South, a young industrial giant created largely through the efforts of Southern Newspaper publishers, will increase next year by about 120,000 tons annually.

That's the potential output of a new mill under construction by the Bowaters Southern Newsprint Co. at Calhoun, Tenn.

A report on the Bowaters mill and a review of the campaign by the Southern Newspaper Publishers Assn. to develop close-to-home sources of newsprint highlighted a meeting here yesterday of the SNPA board of directors.

Peyton Anderson, publisher of the Macon, Ga., News and Telegraph and chairman of the SNPA Newsprint Mills Committee, said the target date for completion of the Bowaters mill is April, 1954.

It will be the third newsprint mill established in the South since the SNPA began a campaign some 15 years ago to create a manufacturing industry that could utilize the South's timber resources.

The first was Southland Mills at Lufkin, Tex., established through the joint efforts of timber interests and publishers. The second was the Coosa River Newsprint Co. at Coosa River, Ala., a joint venture of the Kimberly-Clark Co. and Southern publishers.

The Calhoun mill is being financed by Bowaters, a British concern, but Anderson said Southern publishers made it possible for this new industry to come South by committing themselves to purchase of its product.

Along with fostering the establishment of the newsprint mills, the SNPA has promoted forest conservation, development and utilization programs which have brought new wealth to owners of Southern timber lands.

SNPA President Richard Lloyd Jones Jr. of the Tulsa Tribune told the directors that other newsprint manufacturers are casting longing looks at the South and two have actually angled for SNPA encouragement.

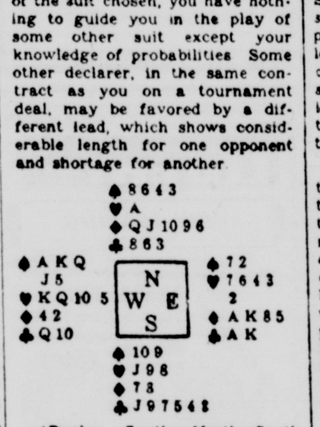
NOTHING TO GUIDE YOU

IF NEITHER defender had done any bidding, and the opening trick gave no particular information about the distribution of the suit chosen, you have nothing to guide you in the play of some other suit except your knowledge of probabilities. Some other declarer, in the same contract as you on a tournament deal, may be favored by a different lead, which shows considerable length for one opponent and shortage for another.



(Dealer South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥
Pass	4 ♥	Pass	6 ♥

Slightly different bidding brought that same small slam effort at another table, where South led the club 5. That gave East no clear message about the suit's distribution. North might have more or fewer clubs than South. In the play of the trump suit, therefore, East had to depend on abstract probabilities. He led to the K on the first round of hearts, losing to the A. On the second trump trick, he again led low and after South's 9, put up the Q. That established the J as the setting trick.

At the other table, South led the diamond 7. North's 9 forced the A. The heart 2 was led to the K and A, whereupon North returned the diamond Q. That caused East to read North for diamond length and South a doubleton. Short in diamonds, South was probably longer than his partner in any one other suit. So East, on the second round of hearts, finessed the 10 against the J, then dropped that card with the Q, assuring his contract.

Your Weekend Question

What influence should the sight of a strong long side suit in the dummy usually have upon the tactics of the defenders against a trump contract?

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK, (INS)—The young Air Force Sabrejet pilot spoke very casually. "I'm starting my dive now," he chatted. "I will keep you informed of my speed as I approach mach one . . . ah, there it is now." Simple as that.

Mach one is the speed of sound. Capt. Green, the speaker, was piloting an F-86F. He was breathing pure oxygen at 45,000 feet when he went into his dive. At 760 mph his 9-ton projectile shuddered as it reached a speed where air congeals into a stubborn and unyielding mass, and plunged through. His speed picked up, once he was throught the barrier.

On the ground at Eglin Air Force Base, Florida, members of the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference, there to witness a slab of our airpower, could not hear the roar of the captain's plane, or that of the three other F-86F's that followed him down his incredible roller coaster. Most of us could not see the planes at the height, nor would we have known they were there at all except for the captain's laconic voice coming out of nearby loudspeakers, and thin and delicate vapor trails against the blue dome of the sky.

But we knew soon enough. Suddenly, startlingly, the stands shook with a series of apparently nearby explosions. These were sonic booms, the world's newest sound. Man in his endless search for a better life has found a new way to break windows. But in doing so we developed in the Sabrejet the "superiority" plane of the Korean War. The professional and business leaders, on this indoctrination trip to various military installations, heard a lot about "superiority" craft during our brush with the Air Force.

If the MIG-15 had been the best plane in the air over Korea it could have chewed out the UN installations south of the 38th parallel, or shepherded bombers doing the same job. Instead, the F-86 gained superiority by a breathtaking margin of about 12 kills to one. So it is North Korea that is a desert of rubble today, not the uninvaded part of South Korea. It would be so in World War III, the Air Force told us. The owner of the "superiority" plane in that war will win the war, just as Britain won the Battle of Britain with the Spitfire. The Air Force takes this basic view of war and its consequences.

We saw much other stunning evidence of what the Air Force has been doing with your tax dollars. Four F-86 Thunderbirds, commanded by Maj. Richard Catledge of Memphis, demonstrated precision flying that had some of the spectators covering their eyes.

A variety of fighters flung bursts of screaming, blazing rockets at imaginary enemy bombers. An F-94C Starfire came past the stands at 50 feet (and 600 mph) and climbed faster than any homesick angel in recorded history, while the pilot told us — matter of factly — "five thousand . . . six thousand . . . seven thousand . . ." and so on up to 18,000 feet. He was actually climbing about 1,000 feet a second. I said a second. His "after-burner" flamed malevolently.

A roaring sweep of F-86s, spewing 50 calibre bullets and 20 mm. shells, instantly set four old parked B-24s afire in front of us. Four '86s charged a simulated factory at very low level and reduced it to a horrid inferno with napalm. Another '86, piloted by Maj. Bob Johnson, who recently flew 1,868 miles in a bit over three hours, singly wiped out a "command post," hitting it first with napalm, then 5-inch rockets, then with riddling 50 calibre fire, and finally blowing what was left of it apart with a couple of 100-pound general purpose bombs.

The incredible day ticked on with split-second timing. B-26s, looking archaic with their propellers, destroyed a "railroad marshaling yard," to the good-natured indignation of Fred G. Gurley, president of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, who was present. Sixteen F-84s, answering a realistic call from a trapped infantry unit, wiped out enemy gun emplacements. A sweptwing 600 mph (plus) B-47 slid over at 15,000 feet and dropped an "A-bomb"—actually a two-ton can of napalm.

An Army 'copter fanned down and scooped up a downed airman, while planes strafed the enemy away from him and it. An '84 "tossed" two bombs, letting them go during a jolting zoom from low altitude. The fighter was a couple of miles away before they exploded—and this may be the method of delivering small A-bombs to an enemy installation. And finally, while our bleachers shook and we all winced and marveled, an indescribably majestic B-36 spilled 500 pounders—one after the other—for what seemed to be miles of Florida terrain.

If what we saw at Eglin is a sample, one can understand more fully why the Russians don't want to order the full repast.

Municipal League To Meet Nov. 12-14

The Maryland Municipal League will hold its sixth annual convention at the Emerson Hotel in Baltimore, November 12-14, with city and town officials from every section of the state expected to attend.

Election of officers will be on the agenda Saturday, November 14. Mayor Roy W. Eves of Cumberland is serving as a council member-at-large for the league. Mayor Jesse F. Jacobs, Frostburg, is one of the league's vice presidents.

This year's fashions require a wardrobe of brassieres for perfect bosom accent and line!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

With smart silhouette emphasis placed on the upper torso and a rounded bosom line, the bra becomes first consideration in the composition of a foundation wardrobe. How many you need depend on your way of life and the size of your clothes budget.

It is a decided error to just go on buying the same style and size of brassiere year after year. Innovations in construction and style as well as slight changes in figure make it imperative that you have a fitting and the advice of someone who not only can determine your size requirements but knows what's new and best for you as well. The chances are that you can wear more than one size and several types—but the perfect fit and type give beauty of line.

Needed Varieties

A leading fashion authority gives the following as a basic, all-occasion wardrobe of bras: For everyday wear, two or more bandeaux in nylon or cotton; for late day and evening clothes, a strapless model; to wear under sweaters, jersey dresses and clinging clothes, a modified style to give a gentler, less obvious line; to wear with special occasion costumes and bouffant silhouettes, a strapless combination consisting of bra, waist nipper and garter belt.

Other styles that you may need depending on your figure and your clothes are a halter bra for halter tops, a long bra for the trim midriff fashions, a plunging neckline bra and elastic-band style.

Improvements In Strapless

The strapless bra is gaining rapidly in popularity as a year-round necessity. New improvements make it vastly more wearable than ever before. The new long styles that anchor at the waistline are especially wearable as they stay in place with greater security. To offset the tendency of strapless bras to somewhat flatten the bosom, the slightly padded versions are recommended, especially for A and B cup sizes.

A well-fitted bra never creeps up in back, crowds the separation line nor pulls on the straps. It allows for easy movement and contributes to a feeling of comfort by giving the support that prevents sagging lines.

If all of these benefits are not yours in the bras that you are wearing, you need the services of an expert fitter—now!

Three Area Men Join Armed Forces Here

Three area men were enlisted in the armed forces this week according to M/Sgt. Ralph W. Stewart, local recruiter.

Thomas R. Darr, 351 Bedford Street, and Thomas G. Hughes, Mt. Savage, were sworn into the U. S. Army for three years, and sent to Fort George G. Meade for processing.

Gladson D. Koontz, Star Route 1, Keyser, was enlisted in the Air Force for four years and was dispatched to Sampson Air Force Base, Geneva, N. Y., for basic training.

WASHINGTON — Our government's foreign aid program is undergoing a drastic change and there is every chance it will disappear from our tax bills before the next presidential election.

The big changes are:

1. Last year foreign aid was one-third military and two-thirds economic. This year the proportions were reversed, and the trend is toward greater reduction in economic aid. This means that when the free world is sufficiently armed against communism our aid can end.

2. We're beginning to get concrete results out of our money. The Eisenhower food program for Eastern Europe last summer cracked a huge hole in the iron curtain when people risked their lives to slip past border guards to pick up their food packages in West Berlin. And just last week we got Israel to call off a threatened war in the Holy Land when we suspended our aid to that country.

3. Real recognition has been given to agricultural products in the past year as an instrument of foreign aid. The food for Europe and the million tons of wheat sent to hungry Pakistan are examples. For too long our farmers were paying taxes along with the rest of us but their crops, of which they are always proud, were not in the limelight of our gift programs for our foreign neighbors.

These programs of giving away huge portions of America's wealth and production are a brand new concept in recent years. They have been the subject of a long and noisy political controversy and sometimes we forget that we have not always been engaged in them. But it was only since World War II, when war and the devastation of productive facilities everywhere except in America caused such a lack of balance, that we had to use our wealth to restore the standards of living of other nations.

Responding to the requests from Marylanders through my office, Conrad Wirth, director of the National Park Service, tells me a new historical handbook on Antietam National Battlefield is being prepared and soon will be available from the Government Printing Office.

On my calendar: This Friday Mrs. Hyde and I will attend the dedication dance at the invitation of the 121st Engineer Battalion at the National Guard armory in Ellicott City . . . Sunday I will be at the Briggs Baptist Church in Bethesda for the cornerstone laying, and later on at the dedication of the new American Red Cross headquarters in Montgomery County . . . Tuesday I've been asked to make a short talk to candidates for naturalization in the office of Federal Judge David A. Pine in Washington. That evening I'll be at the National Letter Carriers Association rally in Washington, and next Wednesday at the Republican fund-raising dinner in the Emerson Hotel in Baltimore, where Senate Majority Leader Knowland will speak.

Churches Pioneer Suburbs, Country's Residential Frontier

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (AP) — The slim, white spire of a new church today rises above the skyline on Oklahoma City's northern edge—a product of faith and symbol of a nationwide religious challenge.

It represents an answer to what church authorities term one of the most critical problems facing American spiritual life. It is one of many churches that are pioneering the country's new residential frontier—the suburbs.

But many more are needed.

Unless they're built, said Dr. Conrad Hoyer, head of the National Lutheran Council's Division of American Missions, there is a "serious threat to churches as well as to the spiritual health of members."

In the last decade, millions of persons have moved to city outskirts, often miles from the nearest church. Federal census figures show the biggest gains in population are in newly developed suburban areas.

To provide churches in these new communities, said Thomas Chastain, head of the American Baptist Home Mission Society, is the "most crucial need of this generation."

"Unless we place churches where the people live, the people will die spiritually."

Denominations—and state and local church councils — have pressed intensive programs and strained their budgets trying to spur needed new churches. But the gap still looms large.

"If we all do our best we will not be able to do all that needs to be done to church our new America," Chastain said. "Pleas come from hundreds of communities where we can give no help."

But no official help was given, or asked, in the case of the new Oklahoma City church—the Nichols Hills Baptist Church. Its establishment offers an example of the solution church officials say is needed—initiative, work, will and belief.

One of Oklahoma City's leading ministers, Dr. Rupert Naney, left a big, influential downtown pulpit to heed the call of a long-time vision—to help bring the church to those beyond its reach.

"In city after city," he said, "churches have lost the field by not following the suburban population. You see these new communities growing up, rimming our cities with new homes, new families and children. This is the dwelling place of our younger generation—the heart of our land and its future. The church must be there, too."

During 22 years of ministry at Oklahoma City's downtown Olivet Baptist (Southern) Church, Dr. Naney had built it into a flourishing institution, with new buildings, a big budget, reserves and huge congregation.

Dr. Naney, a tall, spare, white-haired man of 60, left it all—to build new foundations.

"My work there was finished," he said in an interview in the study of the new, colonial-type suburban church.

Striking out alone, Naney first held services in an outlying theater auditorium. Then he set up Sunday School classes in homes and in offices of a lumberyard, donated for church use.

About 100 persons became charter members of the new church. They elected officers, raised enough money to buy vacant lots and begin work on temporary quarters.

Last month, after two years' work, the quarter-million dollar church was complete, its trim, white steeple rising like a beacon on the city's outskirts.

All but $60,000 of its cost already has been paid. Plans are being made for further expansion. Membership has swelled to about 400, an estimated 90 per cent of whom had not been regular church-goers.

That's the story of how one pastor—and one group of people—tackled the problem of recapturing the country's shifting population for the church. It's been repeated in many places, but, officials say, not enough of them.

Southern Newsprint Output To Rise Sharply Next Year

BOCA RATON, Fla., Nov. 5 (AP)—Newsprint manufacturing in the South, a young industrial giant created largely through the efforts of Southern Newspaper publishers, will increase next year by about 120,000 tons annually.

That's the potential output of a new mill under construction by the Bowaters Southern Newsprint Co. at Calhoun, Tenn.

A report on the Bowaters mill and a review of the campaign by the Southern Newspaper Publishers Assn. to develop close-to-home sources of newsprint highlighted a meeting here yesterday of the SNPA board of directors.

Peyton Anderson, publisher of the Macon, Ga., News and Telegraph and chairman of the SNPA Newsprint Mills Committee, said the target date for completion of the Bowaters mill is April, 1954.

It will be the third newsprint mill established in the South since the SNPA began a campaign some 15 years ago to create a manufacturing industry that could utilize the South's timber resources.

The first was Southland Mills at Lufkin, Tex., established through the joint efforts of timber interests and publishers. The second was the Coosa River Newsprint Co. at Coosa River, Ala., a joint venture of the Kimberly-Clark Co. and Southern publishers.

The Calhoun mill is being financed by Bowaters, a British concern, but Anderson said Southern publishers made it possible for this new industry to come South by committing themselves to purchase of its product.

Along with fostering the establishment of the newsprint mills, the SNPA has promoted forest conservation, development and utilization programs which have brought new wealth to owners of Southern timber lands.

SNPA President Richard Lloyd Jones Jr. of the Tulsa Tribune told the directors that other newsprint manufacturers are casting longing looks at the South and two have actually angled for SNPA encouragement.

NOTHING TO GUIDE YOU

IF NEITHER defender had done any bidding, and the opening trick gave no particular information about the distribution of the suit chosen, you have nothing to guide you in the play of some other suit except your knowledge of probabilities. Some other declarer, in the same contract as you on a tournament deal, may be favored by a different lead, which shows considerable length for one opponent and shortage for another.

	♠ 8 6 4 3 ♥ A ♦ Q J 10 9 6 ♣ 8 6 3
♠ A K Q J 5 ♥ K Q 10 5 ♦ 4 2 ♣ Q 10	N W E S	♠ 7 2 ♥ 7 6 4 3 2 ♦ A K 8 5 ♣ A K
	♠ 10 9 ♥ J 9 8 ♦ 7 3 ♣ J 9 7 5 4 2

(Dealer South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥
Pass	4 ♥	Pass	6 ♥

Slightly different bidding brought that same small slam effort at another table, where South led the club 5. That gave East no clear message about the suit's distribution. North might have more or fewer clubs than South. In the play of the trump suit, therefore, East had to depend on abstract probabilities. He led to the K on the first round of hearts, losing to the A. On the second trump trick, he again led low and after South's 9, put up the Q. That established the J as the setting trick.

At the other table, South led the diamond 7. North's 9 forced the A. The heart 2 was led to the K and A, whereupon North returned the diamond Q. That caused East to read North for diamond length and South a doubleton. Short in diamonds, South was probably longer than his partner in any one other suit. So East, on the second round of hearts, finessed the 10 against the J, then dropped that card with the Q, assuring his contract.

Your Weekend Question

What influence should the sight of a strong long side suit in the dummy usually have upon the tactics of the defenders against a trump contract?

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK, (INS)—The young Air Force Sabrejet pilot spoke very casually. "I'm starting my dive now," he chatted. "I will keep you informed of my speed as I approach mach one . . . ah, there it is now." Simple as that.

Mach one is the speed of sound. Capt. Green, the speaker, was piloting an F-86F. He was breathing pure oxygen at 45,000 feet when he went into his dive. At 760 mph his 9-ton projectile shuddered as it reached a speed where air congeals into a stubborn and unyielding mass, and plunged through. His speed picked up, once he was throught the barrier.

On the ground at Eglin Air Force Base, Florida, members of the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference, there to witness a slab of our airpower, could not hear the roar of the captain's plane, or that of the three other F-86F's that followed him down his incredible roller coaster. Most of us could not see the planes at the height, nor would we have known they were there at all except for the captain's laconic voice coming out of nearby loudspeakers, and thin and delicate vapor trails against the blue dome of the sky.

But we knew soon enough. Suddenly, startlingly, the stands shook with a series of apparently nearby explosions. These were sonic booms, the world's newest sound. Man in his endless search for a better life has found a new way to break windows. But in doing so we developed in the Sabrejet the "superiority" plane of the Korean War. The professional and business leaders, on this indoctrination trip to various military installations, heard a lot about "superiority" craft during our brush with the Air Force.

If the MIG-15 had been the best plane in the air over Korea it could have chewed out the UN installations south of the 38th parallel, or shepherded bombers doing the same job. Instead, the F-86 gained superiority by a breathtaking margin of about 12 kills to one. So it is North Korea that is a desert of rubble today, not the uninvaded part of South Korea. It would be so in World War III, the Air Force told us. The owner of the "superiority" plane in that war will win the war, just as Britain won the Battle of Britain with the Spitfire. The Air Force takes this basic view of war and its consequences.

We saw much other stunning evidence of what the Air Force has been doing with your tax dollars. Four F-86 Thunderbirds, commanded by Maj. Richard Catledge of Memphis, demonstrated precision flying that had some of the spectators covering their eyes.

A variety of fighters flung bursts of screaming, blazing rockets at imaginary enemy bombers. An F-94C Starfire came past the stands at 50 feet (and 600 mph) and climbed faster than any homesick angel in recorded history, while the pilot told us — matter of factly — "five thousand . . . six thousand . . . seven thousand . . ." and so on up to 18,000 feet. He was actually climbing about 1,000 feet a second. I said a second. His "after-burner" flamed malevolently.

A roaring sweep of F-86s, spewing 50 calibre bullets and 20 mm. shells, instantly set four old parked B-24s afire in front of us. Four '86s charged a simulated factory at very low level and reduced it to a horrid inferno with napalm. Another '86, piloted by Maj. Bob Johnson, who recently flew 1,868 miles in a bit over three hours, singly wiped out a "command post," hitting it first with napalm, then 5-inch rockets, then with riddling 50 calibre fire, and finally blowing what was left of it apart with a couple of 100-pound general purpose bombs.

The incredible day ticked on with split-second timing. B-26s, looking archaic with their propellers, destroyed a "railroad marshaling yard," to the good-natured indignation of Fred G. Gurley, president of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, who was present. Sixteen F-84s, answering a realistic call from a trapped infantry unit, wiped out enemy gun emplacements. A swept-wing 600 mph (plus) B-47 slid over at 15,000 feet and dropped an "A-bomb"—actually a two-ton can of napalm.

An Army 'copter fanned down and scooped up a downed airman, while planes strafed the enemy away from him and it. An '84 "tossed" two bombs, letting them go during a jolting zoom from low altitude. The fighter was a couple of miles away before they exploded—and this may be the method of delivering small A-bombs to an enemy installation. And finally, while our bleachers shook and we all winced and marveled, an indescribably majestic B-36 spilled 500 pounders—one after the other—for what seemed to be miles of Florida terrain.

If what we saw at Eglin is a sample, one can understand more fully why the Russians don't want to order the full repast.

This year's fashions require a wardrobe of brassieres for perfect bosom accent and line!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

With smart silhouette emphasis placed on the upper torso and a rounded bosom line, the bra becomes first consideration in the composition of a foundation wardrobe. How many you need depend on your way of life and the size of your clothes budget.

It is a decided error to just go on buying the same style and size of brassiere year after year. Innovations in construction and style as well as slight changes in figure make it imperative that you have a fitting and the advice of someone who not only can determine your size requirements but knows what's new and best for you as well. The chances are that you can wear more than one size and several types—but the perfect fit and type give beauty of line.

Needed Varieties

A leading fashion authority gives the following as a basic, all-occasion wardrobe of bras: For everyday wear, two or more bandeaux in nylon or cotton; for late day and evening clothes, a strapless model; to wear under sweaters, jersey dresses and clinging clothes, a modified style to give a gentler, less obvious line; to wear with special occasion costumes and bouffant silhouettes, a strapless combination consisting of bra, waist nipper and garter belt.

Other styles that you may need depending on your figure and your clothes are a halter bra for halter tops, a long bra for the trim midriff fashions, a plunging neckline bra and elastic-band style.

Improvements In Strapless

The strapless bra is gaining rapidly in popularity as a year-round necessity. New improvements make it vastly more wearable than ever before. The new long styles that anchor at the waistline are especially wearable as they stay in place with greater security. To offset the tendency of strapless bras to somewhat flatten the bosom, the slightly padded versions are recommended, especially for A and B cup sizes.

A well-fitted bra never creeps up in back, crowds the separation line nor pulls on the straps. It allows for easy movement and contributes to a feeling of comfort by giving the support that prevents sagging lines.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Dorothy Manners

(Substituting for vacationing Louella Parsons)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 6 (INS) — For the third time, Frank Sinatra is out of "Waterfront." Frankie has been in and out of the Elia Kazan-Sam Spiegel picture almost as often as he's been in and out of his marriage to Ava.

Trouble seems to be over Spiegel and Kazan not keeping a promise to build up his role. Marlon Brando is the star.

He wants to be here when "Tights" rolls early in December.

After saying she'd had enough of Hollywood and flying to New York, something has changed Grace Kelly's mind. She's returning to do "Strategic Air Command" with Jimmy Stewart and June Allyson after all.

Her reversed decision will be of great interest in several quarters for personal reasons best understood by those concerned.

The Kelly girl, whose career in gossip columns started with a romance with Clark Gable, is at present at the Greenbrier in West Virginia with her parents. She'll fly from there to Hollywood.

San Francisco fans, "alerted" that Ava Gardner had slipped into town, will have to sit it out another week or ten days.

If Frank Rosenberg gets his way he'll have Gregory Peck, Bette Davis and Jane Russell in "The Lion," his first independent fling after winding up his contract at 20th with "King of the Khyber Rifles."

Frank just bought Eleanor De Lamater's short story from Cosmopolitan magazine. It's described as a hot love story set against the background of a wild animal compound.

P. S. Before RKO starts sounding of about any one producer even hoping to get Jane Russell, Frank, of course, will make his pitch for her via the loanout system.

Today, Joan Crawford received the following wire from Harry Brandt, head of independent theatre owners:

"Congratulations on being voted one of the top money actresses in the independent film journal poll. (signed) Harry Brandt."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Chata Wayne and Steve Cochran couldn't have been closer than when they drove up in front of La Rue in an MG the size of a postage stamp.

Oldtimers can't remember when a blase Hollywood audience ever let out such a yip of excitement as greeted Marilyn Monroe walking down the aisle at the "How to Marry a Millionaire" premiere.

Tyrone Power meets his agent in Philadelphia next week to sign for the "Lorenzo, the Magnificent" film in Italy in June. Meanwhile, he tours with "John Brown's Body" before reporting to John Ford for "The Long Gray Line" in February.

After the preem of "How to Marry a Millionaire," Mona Freeman and Greg Bautzer dropped by the Mocambo. There'll be big doings at the Mo next Tuesday, the opening night of Eartha Kitt.

And down the street at Ciro's, Jane Powell, June Allyson and Mitzi Gaynor have reservations for Johnnie Ray's debut same night.

Frank Lovejoy's playing of a newspaper man on "Four Star Playhouse" program was so good it may stretch into a TV series.

Another good TV special coming up. Helen Hayes in "Battle Hymn," the story of Harriet Beecher Stowe, on CBS Medallion Theatre.

That's all today. See you Monday.

We are mixed thoroughly into the alphabetical hassel in Trieste. Both sides are power-housed with American utensils.

So much so we may have to send a battalion of maintenance experts over to tool the repairs. Did you hep that Tito and Pella are running an excursion line of Patton tanks?

The old boy would have loved that. Every day seven hundred Patton go-carts leave on schedule in the only direction possible in the Alps. Uphill.

This war wasn't started to get rid of Army surplus. That's mostly canned goods, Paris guide books and an old colonel or two.

Troops are being ferried over Hannibal's shopping route in American trucks. They're armed with bazookas, powerful boing-boings and smokeless cookers.

While all this riveted parade is retreating in both directions our goodwill ambassadors are reporting progress. It's like the watchdog. You don't know whether to believe the barking or the wagging end.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

(Substituting for vacationing Louella Parsons)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 6 (INS) — For the third time, Frank Sinatra is out of "Waterfront." Frankie has been in and out of the Elia Kazan-Sam Spiegel picture almost as often as he's been in and out of his marriage to Ava.

Trouble seems to be over Spiegel and Kazan not keeping a promise to build up his role. Marlon Brando is the star.

He wants to be here when "Tights" rolls early in December.

After saying she'd had enough of Hollywood and flying to New York, something has changed Grace Kelly's mind. She's returning to do "Strategic Air Command" with Jimmy Stewart and June Allyson after all.

Her reversed decision will be of great interest in several quarters for personal reasons best understood by those concerned.

The Kelly girl, whose career in gossip columns started with a romance with Clark Gable, is at present at the Greenbrier in West Virginia with her parents. She'll fly from there to Hollywood.

San Francisco fans, "alerted" that Ava Gardner had slipped into town, will have to sit it out another week or ten days.

If Frank Rosenberg gets his way he'll have Gregory Peck, Bette Davis and Jane Russell in "The Lion," his first independent fling after winding up his contract at 20th with "King of the Khyber Rifles."

Frank just bought Eleanor De Lamater's short story from Cosmopolitan magazine. It's described as a hot love story set against the background of a wild animal compound.

P. S. Before RKO starts sounding off about any one producer even hoping to get Jane Russell, Frank, of course, will make his pitch for her via the loanout system.

Times - change-and-how - department:

Today, Joan Crawford received the following wire from Harry Brandt, head of independent theatre owners:

"Congratulations on being voted one of the top money actresses in the independent film journal poll. (signed) Harry Brandt."

It was this same Mr. Brandt, none other, who eight years ago headed his list of "poison at the box-office stars" with Joan Crawford!

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Chata Wayne and Steve Cochran couldn't have been closer than when they drove up in front of La Rue in an MG the size of a postage stamp.

Whether Peggy Lee and Jack Webb are romancing or not, her cigarette box plays the "Dragnet" theme song when the lid is lifted.

Oldtimers can't remember when a blase Hollywood audience ever let out such a yip of excitement as greeted Marilyn Monroe walking down the aisle at the "How to Marry a Millionaire" premiere.

Tyrone Power meets his agent in Philadelphia next week to sign for the "Lorenzo, the Magnificent" film in Italy in June. Meanwhile, he tours with "John Brown's Body" before reporting to John Ford for "The Long Gray Line" in February.

After the preem of "How to Marry a Millionaire," Mona Freeman and Greg Bautzer dropped by the Mocambo. There'll be big doings at the Mo next Tuesday, the opening night of Eartha Kitt.

And down the street at Ciro's, Jane Powell, June Allyson and Mitzi Gaynor have reservations for Johnnie Ray's debut same night.

Frank Lovejoy's playing of a newspaper man on "Four Star Playhouse" program was so good it may stretch into a TV series.

Another good TV special coming up. Helen Hayes in "Battle Hymn," the story of Harriet Beecher Stowe, on CBS Medallion Theatre.

That's all today. See you Monday.

If our intelligence departments has a copyright on the commodity why not sub-lease some of the stuff to the rest of the alphabetical agencies?

There has been some ivory-handled thinking in the long line of serried desks in the echelons of the mighty.

The administration fanfare of agricultural finessing is looking for the end of the rainbow in the beet soup.

The stark details colonize in the inescapable verdict that a Republican isn't much good past city line.

Then what did the Democratic Caesar plant that men called him great? Did his mail order catalogue have oiled hinges, weed destroyers and better gals on lumberyard calendars?

We have trailed this seasonal slump in the silos and we hand the wreath of parsley to the Democratic farm sequence.

by John Crosby

A Few Odds And Ends

"Nature's Half Acre," product of the Walt Disney Studios, was a magnificent movie short showing just how the birds and the bees and the flowers really operate. To the more sentimentally minded, it must have come as a shock.

John Crosby

The fact is that nature is a ruthless old lady, the big bugs eating the little bugs, the frogs eating the big bugs, the snakes eating the frogs and so on. Everyone eating everyone else. Now the Disney studio has come out with more of the same, a film called "Living Desert," a feature length film shot in the great American desert.

The desert, to my great surprise, is crawling with living things — toads, tarantulas, bugs, ground squirrels, wildcats — and, as in "Nature's Half Acre," everyone is on the prowl for everyone else. But there's a slight difference between the two pictures. In this new picture, the more cuddlesome little beasts—the ones you get real fond of — get away. The snake comes after the ground squirrel, all right, but the ground squirrel makes his escape. Nature has gone Hollywood. The happy ending has crept in. Disney has gone soft. The only things that get seriously hurt in this picture are a tarantula which loses a tough fight to a wasp and a rattlesnake who gets the business from a hawk. Villains, both of them.

Frankly, I thought "Living Desert" was a magnificent picture. I think all of Disney's forays with nature have been. My problem is simply this: I can't get interested in movies with people in them anymore. And I don't think it's just my problem either. A good many of my friends who have seen "Mogambo" have told me they find themselves infinitely more interested in the gorillas than in Ava Gardner. You know what I think? I think actors are on the way out.

There's another thing about "Living Desert" which should disturb the professionals in the game. This is the continuation of the trend toward amateurs. This started in Italy where movie producers started picking people off the street and pitching them into such pictures as "Open City" and "The Bicycle Thief." They're doing the same thing here. In the old days, when you wanted animals, you hired Rin Tin Tin at a fast $3,000 a week. Now they go out in the desert and grab the first tarantula that comes along. He isn't even a member of the Screen Actors Guild.

A man wrote me the other day about the rating systems. He has as high an opinion of ratings as I have which is to say, not very high. This chap had had a 15 minute sports show on a local station and, since it was sponsored, it got a rating. Then the show was dropped. But for three weeks thereafter, it got a rating anyhow, even though it was off the air.

"It wasn't a very good rating," the man explained apologetically. "And it kept going down every week. This leads me to suspect that you get better ratings when you're on the air than when you're off."

Well, I don't know about that. I think there are some shows whose ratings would go up if they went off the air, the George Jessel show, for example. A lot of people I know would tune to the Jessel spot for the sheer bliss of it not being there any more. This would be the negative rating, a test of how much people enjoy not seeing something.

Charges Dropped In Friendsville Shooting Case

Raymond Kahl, of Accident, and a 15-year-old Friendsville area youth arrested following the shooting October 23 of Robert Earl Friend, 17, of Friendsville, were arraigned before Trial Magistrate Karol Rush in Friendsville this week.

Kahl, charged wtih contributing to the delinquency of a minor, was dismissed after agreeing to pay doctor's fees incurred by Friend.

The 15-year-old youth, who was in company with Kahl at the time of the incident, was specifically charged with the shooting. It was shown that the shooting was accidental but Magistrate Rush placed the youth under court parole. The youth's name was not divulged under terms of a new Garrett county juvenile court law.

Friend, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd L. Friend, was admitted to Memorial Hospital here shortly after the shooting. He has been discharged after being treated for a .22 calibre bullet wound. The bullet penetrated his right arm and lodged in his left side, missing the spine and heart as it passed through his body.

Friend's physician decided not to attempt to remove the bullet, due to its proximity to the heart and the belief it would not cause complications.

According to authorities, Friend was picking pine and crow's foot branches near his home when he apparently was mistaken for game while wearing a gray shirt.

The shooting occurred on Bear Creek Hill near Friendsville.

A Few Odds And Ends

"Nature's Half Acre," product of the Walt Disney Studios, was a magnificent movie short showing just how the birds and the bees and the flowers really operate. To the more sentimentally minded, it must have come as a shock.

John Crosby

The fact is that nature is a ruthless old lady, the big bugs eating the little bugs, the frogs eating the big bugs, the snakes eating the frogs and so on. Everyone eating everyone else. Now the Disney studio has come out with more of the same, a film called "Living Desert," a feature length film shot in the great American desert.

The desert, to my great surprise, is crawling with living things — toads, tarantulas, bugs, ground squirrels, wildcats — and, as in "Nature's Half Acre," everyone is on the prowl for everyone else. But there's a slight difference between the two pictures. In this new picture, the more cuddlesome little beasts—the ones you get real fond of — get away. The snake comes after the ground squirrel, all right, but the ground squirrel makes his escape. Nature has gone Hollywood. The happy ending has crept in. Disney has gone soft. The only things that get seriously hurt in this picture are a tarantula which loses a tough fight to a wasp and a rattlesnake who gets the business from a hawk. Villains, both of them.

Frankly, I thought "Living Desert" was a magnificent picture. I think all of Disney's forays with nature have been. My problem is simply this: I can't get interested in movies with people in them anymore. And I don't think it's just my problem either. A good many of my friends who have seen "Mogambo" have told me they find themselves infinitely more interested in the gorillas than in Ava Gardner. You know what I think? I think actors are on the way out.

There's another thing about "Living Desert" which should disturb the professionals in the game. This is the continuation of the trend toward amateurs. This started in Italy where movie producers started picking people off the street and pitching them into such pictures as "Open City" and "The Bicycle Thief." They're doing the same thing here. In the old days, when you wanted animals, you hired Rin Tin Tin at a fast $3,000 a week. Now they go out in the desert and grab the first tarantula that comes along. He isn't even a member of the Screen Actors Guild.

A man wrote me the other day about the rating systems. He has as high an opinion of ratings as I have which is to say, not very high. This chap had had a 15 minute sports show on a local station and, since it was sponsored, it got a rating. Then the show was dropped. But for three weeks thereafter, it got a rating anyhow, even though it was off the air.

"It wasn't a very good rating," the man explained apologetically. "And it kept going down every week. This leads me to suspect that you get better ratings when you're on the air than when you're off."

Well, I don't know about that. I think there are some shows whose ratings would go up if they went off the air, the George Jessel show, for example. A lot of people I know would tune to the Jessel spot for the sheer bliss of it not being there any more. This would be the negative rating, a test of how much people enjoy not seeing something.

Charges Dropped In Friendsville Shooting Case

Raymond Kahl, of Accident, and a 15-year-old Friendsville area youth arrested following the shooting October 23 of Robert Earl Friend, 17, of Friendsville, were arraigned before Trial Magistrate Karol Rush in Friendsville this week.

Kahl, charged wtih contributing to the delinquency of a minor, was dismissed after agreeing to pay doctor's fees incurred by Friend.

The 15-year-old youth, who was in company with Kahl at the time of the incident, was specifically charged with the shooting. It was shown that the shooting was accidental but Magistrate Rush placed the youth under court parole. The youth's name was not divulged under terms of a new Garrett county juvenile court law.

Friend, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd L. Friend, was admitted to Memorial Hospital here shortly after the shooting. He has been discharged after being treated for a .22 calibre bullet wound. The bullet penetrated his right arm and lodged in his left side, missing the spine and heart as it passed through his body.

Friend's physician decided not to attempt to remove the bullet, due to its proximity to the heart and the belief it would not cause complications.

According to authorities, Friend was picking pine and crow's foot branches near his home when he apparently was mistaken for game while wearing a gray shirt.

The shooting occurred on Bear Creek Hill near Friendsville.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my dear son, Harry K. Wilson, who died 1 year ago, Nov. 7, 1952.
If God had asked me, I would say
"Lord, I love him, let him stay."
But He alone who knoweth best
Did ease his pain and give him rest.
Sadly missed by his Mother,
MRS. ELSIE MILLER

CHRYSLER
1952 Studebaker 4-Dr. Sedan
Would you like to own an 8 cylinder car that will average better than 20 miles to the gallon? This one-owner Commander sedan with light grey finish does just that and it was driven only 17,000 miles a year. You will not have to add any oil because chrome racing rings were put in at 10,000 miles and does not use a drop. The tires have deep grooved treads and the interior is clean. The equipment includes overdrive, radio, heater, defroster, side mirror and back-up lights. A fast and economical car that you will not have a repair bill on for months and the price only . . .
1949 Chrysler N. Y. 4-Dr. Sdn.
This one owner was a Celanese executive and only driven 13,000 miles per year. The owner kept this car in condition with regular check-ups. It was garaged every night. The gleaming light grey finish is contrasted by shiny chrome and you have all the safe driving devices as signal lights, back-up lights, 4 speed fluidmatic transmission with step down gear for passing on hills. A powerful 8 cylinder engine is in A-1 condition. The rest of the equipment includes heater, defroster, 8 tube radio, air foam seats, arm rests, plastic seat covers and the tires are new. Priced at only . . .

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my dear son, Harry K. Wilson, who died 1 year ago, Nov. 7, 1952.
If God had asked me, I would say
"Lord, I love him, let him stay."
But He alone who knoweth best
Did ease his pain and give him rest.
Sadly missed by his Mother,
MRS. ELSIE MILLER

CHRYSLER
1952 Studebaker 4-Dr. Sedan
Would you like to own an 8 cylinder car that will average better than 20 miles to the gallon? This one-owner Commander sedan with light grey finish does just that and it was driven only 17,000 miles a year. You will not have to add any oil because chrome racing rings were put in at 10,000 miles and does not use a drop. The tires have deep grooved treads and the interior is clean. The equipment includes overdrive, radio, heater, defroster, side mirror and back-up lights. A fast and economical car that you will not have a repair bill on for months and the price only . . .

1949 Chrysler N. Y. 4-Dr. Sdn.
This one owner was a Celanese executive and only driven 13,000 miles per year. The owner kept this car in condition with regular check-ups. It was garaged every night. The gleaming light grey finish is contrasted by shiny chrome and you have all the safe driving devices as signal lights, back-up lights, 4 speed fluidmatic transmission with step down gear for passing on hills. A powerful 8 cylinder engine is in A-1 condition. The rest of the equipment includes heater, defroster, 8 tube radio, air foam seats, arm rests, plastic seat covers and the tires are new. Priced at only . . .

KITZMILLER—Earl No. 2 mine of the Garrett Coal Corporation here closed as of November 1, it was announced by Robert Nethken, owner.

The mine employed about 45 men, and had been in operation since 1940.

Nethken said the shut-down was because of the high labor costs which made the product unable to compete with coal from other areas.

Season's First Snowstorm Hits Tri-State As Mercury Plunges

Most Highways In Mountains Icy But Clear

East End Of State Gets Brunt Of Storm

Western Maryland mountain highways were slick with ice and melting snow last night as the season's first snowstorm whipped in from the northeast. The Weather Bureau said it probably would clear up today.

Roads west of the Washington County line ranged from "fair" to "hazardous," according to Maryland and Pennsylvania state police. There were icy spots on U. S. Route 40 on Big Savage and Little Savage mountains in Garrett County, and on some slopes in nearby Pennsylvania.

Cumberland's hilly streets were dangerously slippery, and there was a lengthy tieup at the Henderson Avenue overpass after a car skidded and bumped another. Nobody was hurt, however. Two city policement straightened out the traffic jam while Street Department crews sanded the icy spots.

The Blue Ridge Transportation Company said some of its buses coming in from the east were more than two hours behind schedule as freezing slush turned the highway on Sideling Hill Mountain and other grades into a lane of ice.

West of here, however, traffic was not much disrupted by the light, powdery snow, which was melting as fast as it fell. Most of it—up to 10 inches—fell in the eastern part of the state.

The 10-inch snowfall was reported at Brunswick and at Harper's Ferry, W. Va. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the Western Maryland Railway were having no trouble maintaining schedules on their western divisions.

Storm Regains Strength

The storm abated after nightfall, but regained its strength a couple of hours later.

Cumberland had recorded only .3 of an inch of snow by 7:30 p. m., but the storm got its second wind shortly afterward and dumped another .4 of an inch—more than had fallen all day—to bring the total to .7 of an inch by 9:30 p. m.

Foresters in northern West Virginia reported one to 2½ inches of snow on mountain tops, but the snowfall was spotty. At Parsons, W. Va., for instance, it didn't snow all day. At nearby Thomas and Davis, the storm began at noon and snow began laying at 7:30 p. m. It started falling in Cumberland at about 1 p. m., but in Frostburg there were snow flurries before noon.

Chains Needed In Places

Cinder and salt crews were sent out by the State Roads Commission to fix some icy spots on highways in Washington County and in Gar-

GETS COMMISSION—William H. Leonard, son of Mrs. Lulu M. Leonard, 6 Decatur Street, was recently commissioned a second lieutenant following graduation from Officers Candidate School at the U. S. Army's Engineer Center, Fort Belvoir, Va. He entered the service in October 1952 and completed basic training at Camp Chaffee, Ark. Lt. Snow Fighting Equipment Is Ready For Action

Rock Salt, Cinders Have Been Stockpiled

The first snow of the season yesterday found the Street Department ready to swing into action.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, said crews will be sent out as soon as snow threatens.

The Street Department has been preparing for some time for the beginning of the winter season.

Some 80 tons of rock salt are on hand at the City Warehouse and more will be ordered as supplies diminish.

Two salt spreaders — trucks equipped to spread the salt—are kept waiting for the moment they must be dispatched.

Andrew Heller, street superintendent, said the snow removing equipment, five snow plows, two graders and a snow loader, are "ready to go."

Stockpiled at Central Avenue are about 150 tons of cinders.

Supplies of cinders are limited, and Mrs. Roeder said the city will have to depend chiefly upon sand to provide traction.

Schedules have been set up at the City Warehouse so crews can be called at all times to battle the ice and snow which is sure to hit the area this winter.

Extra men and equipment will be available in emergencies.

The city has made arrangements again, Mrs. Roeder said, to secure men and equipment from the Cumberland Contracting Company if any storm threatens to get out of hand.

Hearing Is Held On Furlough Of Park Worker

Civil Service Board To Give Decision

The Civil Service Commission last night held a hearing on the request of Local 812, Municipal Workers Union, for the reinstatement of one of its furloughed members.

On October 26 the union had asked the Mayor and Council to reinstate with pay James H. Thompson, who was furloughed September 11 from his job as a laborer at Constitution Park.

The union told the Mayor and Council Thompson was laid off while other workers with less seniority were retained, and said if the force had to be curtailed the cut should fall on those with the least seniority.

Wants Issue Settled

All members of the Civil Service Commission headed by Mrs. Leah Hafer, along with City Attorney Thomas B. Finan and Wallace G. Ullery, clerk of the board, were present.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property; Robert R. Golden, park superintendent; Thompson and the Local 812 committee, headed by Calvin Shipes, president, attended.

Mrs. Roeder said the department is anxious to get the matter settled and to "do what is right."

Golden explained to the board the current park budget allows him to keep two men for the winter and that Thompson was not capable of doing the heavy maintenance work required.

Golden said he explained the work situation to Thompson and that the latter was satisfied, saying he "wanted to take the winter off and rest up, and would have his health back by spring."

Golden said he told Thompson he realized he had seniority but that some of the work would be on scaffolds. He said Thompson was satisfied, and took his remaining nine days of vacation immediately.

The park superintendent added he realized the agreement should have been made in writing.

Thompson has been working for the city since 1945. During the early years he was classed as a seasonal employe, but has held status of a permanent employe for several years.

Shipes, who presented Thompson's appeal, said the worker has already lost $380 in salary, has a wife to support and asked that Thompson, the oldest laborer at the park, be reinstated.

To Give Decision

Thompson denied that he had discussed with Golden the type of work to be done at the park this winter, and that nothing was said, that he was "just furloughed."

In reply to a query by Finan, Thompson said he had raised no objection to Golden but had brought the matter up at the next meeting of the union October 6.

Shipes added that Thompson needs work and should be placed back on the payroll.

His furlough leaves a three man staff at the park, Golden, Thomas Hopwood and Clarence Day.

Mrs. Hafer promised that the Civil Service Commission will give a decision on the issue at a later date.

Judge Dismisses LaVale Water Company Suit

Rules Corporation No Longer Exists

A suit brought by LaVale Water Company for non-payment of water rent was dismissed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court by Associate Judge George Henderson who ruled that the company had no legal existence, having forfeited its charter.

The opinion was filed in the case which the LaVale Water Company had brought against John L. Twigg.

Judge Henderson's decision came on a motion made by Twigg's attorney, William L. Wilson, who contended the corporation had no legal existence.

The suit was docketed November 19, 1951, in Trial Magistrates Court, for water furnished to Twigg to October 1, 1950. The case was tried August 12, 1952, and there was a verdict for Twigg. The LaVale Water Company appealed promptly but no action was taken to try this and eight similar cases until a short time ago when the plaintiff moved for summary judgment and the defendant for dismissal.

Twigg's attorney noted that the charter of the water company had been forfeited October 31, 1952, and it has not been in legal existence since then. The plaintiff, through Attorneys George R. Hughes, Jr., and Charles Z. Heskett, contended that the company was in existence when the suits were brought.

"In case of forfeiture (of charter), the law requires former officers of the corporation to do what they should have done in the way of filing reports, paying the fees required by law, paying all taxes and penalties," Judge Henderson wrote in his opinion. "Only after these things have been done will the State Tax Commission revive the corporation. This court has no power to recognize such a corporation until the commission has validated its revival," he concluded.

Although the decision involves only one case, the same ruling apparently would be applicable to eight other civil appeals taken at the same time, court attaches said.

UMW Protests School Purchase Of Garrett Coal

Webster To Present Opinion To Board

Three United Mine Workers officials yesterday lodged a protest with Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster over the action of the Allegany County Board of Education in contracting to buy some Garrett County mined coal for county schools instead of insisting that all of it come from Allegany County.

Conferring with Webster were John T. Jones, president of District 16, United Mine Workers; John L. Mayo and John McAlpine, both UMW international representatives living here, and State Senator Robert B. Kimble. They were accompanied by Frank J. Powers, director of the State Bureau of Mines, who attended for the specific purpose of identifying mines from which the Board of Education is buying coal.

Miners Unemployed

The UMW representatives and Senator Kimble said they thought it regrettable that the Board of Education should buy coal mined in Garrett County when there is considerable unemployment among Allegany County miners.

Webster said that the board took two factors into consideration in awarding the contracts at the October 13 meeting. They are (1) whether the coal meets the analysis requirements and is approved by the Bureau of Mines and (2) whether it was the low bid.

Had the board insisted on Allegany County coal in all cases it would have meant paying an increase of at least 59 cents more per ton.

Seven different dealers, all from Allegany County, were awarded contracts to supply coal for certain schools in the county. Webster said that five of the seven are supplying Allegany County mined coal.

The suppliers are supposed to sell about 7,050 tons of coal to the Board of Education during the school year. One firm awarded contracts for 1,930 tons will provide Garrett County coal. Another, with contracts for 900 tons, is getting

A commission signed by Governor Theodore R. McKeldin naming Walter D. Moyer of Flintstone as a forest warden was received yesterday in the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court.

Education Week To Feature Various School Displays

National Education Week starts tomorrow and pupils in Allegany County public schools have made arrangements to give the citizens of the county an idea through displays of what goes on in the 34 schools.

Boys in the vocational industrial arts classes of Charles E. Watermann at Carver High School have been concentrating their efforts this fall on modern furniture. Watermann has selected some representative pieces and they are being displayed in the window of the Wilson Hardware Company on North Mechanic Street.

12 Photographs

A collection of some twelve 20 by 24 inch photographs has been assembled on a 14 by six foot board to illustrate typical activities in county schools. These photographs, taken by students of photography of Fort Hill High School, were assembled under the direction of the Department of Art Education. Theodore A. Foote is art education supervisor.

These photographs will be on display all through Education Week in one of the windows of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company office on Baltimore Street.

Included are a first grade reading circle, Hill Street School, Frostburg; woodshop scene, Beall High School, Frostburg; supervised play period, Barton School; first grade arithmetic center, Virginia Avenue School; biology project, Mt. Savage High School; typing class, Valley High School, Lonaconing; trigonometry project, Fort Hill High School; home economics, Bruce High School, Westernport; citizenship project, Allegany High School; primary science class, West Side School; fifth grade social studies, Cresaptown, and distributive education, Allegany High School.

Featured in the Carver High furniture display are three modernistic chairs which the boys have made for use in their own homes. Two brothers have constructed living room chairs out of blond maple wood with bright red upholstery and rubber cushion.

Joseph Lewis, the older of the brothers and a senior, has made the arm chair while Robert Lewis, a junior, has built a straight chair.

Commenting upon the practicability of the project, Watermann explained that with the expenditure of between $20 and $25, and some precise work the brothers have made chairs that probably could sell together for about $100.

Make Tables And Lamps

Another competent chair maker is Leo Beckwith, a Carver senior. His blond maple wood has been pickled with white mist paint and his upholstery is green. Spurgeon Washington, another senior at the Frederick Street school, has constructed a strikingly looking coffee table. It is maple, painted ebony, and is equipped with copper tips on its four legs.

Other articles in the Carver exhibit include modernistic lamps made by three juniors, Herman Washington, Frank Page and Lester Frazier. Then there are a hammer and screw driver which Robert Redman, a senior, has made from steel. Small pieces in the display are the work of eight and ninth graders.

One non-modern piece of furniture in the exhibit is an occasional table of pie-crust shape. This solid mahogany table was made last year by Roger Jones, who was graduated from Carver in June. Watermann said that Jones is seeking a job in which he can utilize his ability as a furniture maker.

Art students in county schools also have prepared two posters setting forth facts about the school system and they will be exhibited all next week in windows of the Liberty Trust Company.

"Good Schools Are Your Responsibility" is the slogan on one of the posters. This poster emphasizes that the county's total school budget for 1952-53 was $3,174,130. The funds came from three sources, 45 per cent from Allegany County, 54 per cent from the State of Maryland and one per cent from the United States government.

The other poster states that Allegany County has 15,846 pupils, 607 teachers and principals and 34 buildings. It also notes that there were 836 graduates from county public schools last June.

WTBO Operators Await FCC Rule On TV Station

Action Expected Sometime In Week

Maryland Radio Corporation, operator of Station WTBO here, now without a local challenger for television Channel 17, has adopted a policy of watchful waiting pending action by the Federal Communications Commission in Washington.

Charles E. Smith, manager of WTBO, said last night that his station was awaiting action on its application by the FCC. The action is expected sometime next week.

Both the Maryland Radio Corporation and Western Maryland Broadcasting Company, operator of Station WDYK, filed applications for Channel 17 when that channel was opened for Cumberland in June, 1952.

Thursday night the field was narrowed to one when stockholders and directors of WDYK decided to withdraw the application and concentrate on improving its radio operations.

Smith recalled last night that his station first made an application for a TV station eight years ago.

Also to participate will be Ali Ghan Shrine's flag unit, band, drum and bugle corps and patrol, comprising about 80 men.

Snow May End Fire Dangers

District foresters, who reported four forest fires yesterday morning, expressed a belief last night that the general snowfall probably would alleviate the danger of additional blazes for the time being.

The only one in District Forester William H. Johnson's Western Maryland district occurred about 6 a. m. yesterday near Twiggtown on the Brice Hollow Road. District 16 Volunteer firemen extinguished the blaze after it had burned about one acre.

There was a little more activity in Eastern West Virginia, where District Forester Tilden Norris at Romney reported three fires. The worst burned about 20 acres near Pinto in Mineral County. The others charred about two acres each near Scherr in Grant County and close to Martinsburg in Berkeley County. Patrols last night still were on the scene of the Mineral and Grant county blazes to see that they did not revive.

Season's First Snowstorm Hits Tri-State As Mercury Plunges

East End Of State Gets Brunt Of Storm

Western Maryland mountain highways were slick with ice and melting snow last night as the season's first snowstorm whipped in from the northeast. The Weather Bureau said it probably would clear up today.

Roads west of the Washington County line ranged from "fair" to "hazardous," according to Maryland and Pennsylvania state police. There were icy spots on U. S. Route 40 on Big Savage and Little Savage mountains in Garrett County, and on some slopes in nearby Pennsylvania.

Cumberland's hilly streets were dangerously slippery, and there was a lengthy tieup at the Henderson Avenue overpass after a car skidded and bumped another. Nobody was hurt, however. Two city policement straightened out the traffic jam while Street Department crews sanded the icy spots.

The Blue Ridge Transportation Company said some of its buses coming in from the east were more than two hours behind schedule as freezing slush turned the highway on Sideling Hill Mountain and other grades into a lane of ice.

West of here, however, traffic was not much disrupted by the light, powdery snow, which was melting as fast as it fell. Most of it—up to 10 inches—fell in the eastern part of the state.

The 10-inch snowfall was reported at Brunswick and at Harper's Ferry, W. Va. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the Western Maryland Railway were having no trouble maintaining schedules on their western divisions.

Storm Regains Strength

The storm abated after nightfall, but regained its strength a couple of hours later.

Cumberland had recorded only .3 of an inch of snow by 7:30 p. m., but the storm got its second wind shortly afterward and dumped another .4 of an inch—more than had fallen all day—to bring the total to .7 of an inch by 9:30 p. m.

Foresters in northern West Virginia reported one to 2½ inches of snow on mountain tops, but the snowfall was spotty. At Parsons, W. Va., for instance, it didn't snow all day. At nearby Thomas and Davis, the storm began at noon and snow began laying at 7:30 p. m. It started falling in Cumberland at about 1 p. m., but in Frostburg there were snow flurries before noon.

Chains Needed In Places

Cinder and salt crews were sent out by the State Roads Commission to fix some icy spots on highways in Washington County and in Gar-

Hearing Is Held On Furlough Of Park Worker

Civil Service Board To Give Decision

The Civil Service Commission last night held a hearing on the request of Local 812, Municipal Workers Union, for the reinstatement of one of its furloughed members.

On October 26 the union had asked the Mayor and Council to reinstate with pay James H. Thompson, who was furloughed September 11 from his job as a laborer at Constitution Park.

The union told the Mayor and Council Thompson was laid off while other workers with less seniority were retained, and said if the force had to be curtailed the cut should fall on those with the least seniority.

Wants Issue Settled

All members of the Civil Service Commission headed by Mrs. Leah Hafer, along with City Attorney Thomas B. Finan and Wallace G. Ullery, clerk of the board, were present.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property; Robert R. Golden, park superintendent; Thompson and the Local 812 committee, headed by Calvin Shipes, president, attended.

Mrs. Roeder said the department is anxious to get the matter settled and to "do what is right."

Golden explained to the board the current park budget allows him to keep two men for the winter and that Thompson was not capable of doing the heavy maintenance work required.

Golden said he explained the work situation to Thompson and that the latter was satisfied, saying he "wanted to take the winter off and rest up, and would have his health back by spring."

Golden said he told Thompson he realized he had seniority but that some of the work would be on scaffolds. He said Thompson was satisfied, and took his remaining nine days of vacation immediately.

The park superintendent added he realized the agreement should have been made in writing.

Thompson has been working for the city since 1945. During the early years he was classed as a seasonal employe, but has held status of a permanent employe for several years.

Shipes, who presented Thompson's appeal, said the worker has already lost $380 in salary, has a wife to support and asked that Thompson, the oldest laborer at the park, be reinstated.

To Give Decision

Thompson denied that he had discussed with Golden the type of work to be done at the park this winter, and that nothing was said, that he was "just furloughed."

In reply to a query by Finan, Thompson said he had raised no objection to Golden but had brought the matter up at the next meeting of the union October 6.

Shipes added that Thompson needs work and should be placed back on the payroll.

His furlough leaves a three man staff at the park, Golden, Thomas Hopwood and Clarence Day.

Mrs. Hafer promised that the Civil Service Commission will give a decision on the issue at a later date.

Snow Fighting Equipment Is Ready For Action

Rock Salt, Cinders Have Been Stockpiled

The first snow of the season yesterday found the Street Department ready to swing into action.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, said crews will be sent out as soon as snow threatens.

The Street Department has been preparing for some time for the beginning of the winter season.

Some 80 tons of rock salt are on hand at the City Warehouse and more will be ordered as supplies diminish.

Two salt spreaders — trucks equipped to spread the salt—are kept waiting for the moment they must be dispatched.

Andrew Heller, street superintendent, said the snow removing equipment, five snow plows, two graders and a snow loader, are "ready to go."

Stockpiled at Central Avenue are about 150 tons of cinders.

Supplies of cinders are limited, and Mrs. Roeder said the city will have to depend chiefly upon sand to provide traction.

Schedules have been set up at the City Warehouse so crews can be called at all times to battle the ice and snow which is sure to hit the area this winter.

Extra men and equipment will be available in emergencies.

The city has made arrangements again, Mrs. Roeder said, to secure men and equipment from the Cumberland Contracting Company if any storm threatens to get out of hand.

Judge Dismisses LaVale Water Company Suit

Rules Corporation No Longer Exists

A suit brought by LaVale Water Company for non-payment of water rent was dismissed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court by Associate Judge George Henderson who ruled that the company had no legal existence, having forfeited its charter.

The opinion was filed in the case which the LaVale Water Company had brought against John L. Twigg.

Judge Henderson's decision came on a motion made by Twigg's attorney, William L. Wilson, who contended the corporation had no legal existence.

The suit was docketed November 19, 1951, in Trial Magistrates Court, for water furnished to Twigg to October 1, 1950. The case was tried August 12, 1952, and there was a verdict for Twigg. The LaVale Water Company appealed promptly but no action was taken to try this and eight similar cases until a short time ago when the plaintiff moved for summary judgment and the defendant for dismissal.

Twigg's attorney noted that the charter of the water company had been forfeited October 31, 1952, and it has not been in legal existence since then. The plaintiff, through Attorneys George R. Hughes, Jr., and Charles Z. Heskett, contended that the company was in existence when the suits were brought.

"In case of forfeiture (of charter), the law requires former officers of the corporation to do what they should have done in the way of filing reports, paying the fees required by law, paying all taxes and penalties," Judge Henderson wrote in his opinion. "Only after these things have been done will the State Tax Commission revive the corporation. This court has no power to recognize such a corporation until the commission has validated its revival," he concluded.

Although the decision involves only one case, the same ruling apparently would be applicable to eight other civil appeals taken at the same time, court attaches said.

Traffic Light Is Damaged By Truck

A neon "Don't Walk" sign at the corner of Baltimore and North Mechanic streets was knocked out yesterday when it was hit by a piece of wood sticking out of a truck which was turning the corner.

Officer Ernest M. Powell said the truck, driven by James Russell Barley, 46, of Elyria, Ohio, was making the turn at 1:15 p. m. when a piece of lumber poked through the open stake-body of the truck bed and hit the light. No charges were filed.

UMW Protests School Purchase Of Garrett Coal

Webster To Present Opinion To Board

Three United Mine Workers officials yesterday lodged a protest with Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster over the action of the Allegany County Board of Education in contracting to buy some Garrett County mined coal for county schools instead of insisting that all of it come from Allegany County.

Conferring with Webster were John T. Jones, president of District 16, United Mine Workers; John L. Mayo and John McAlpine, both UMW international representatives living here, and State Senator Robert B. Kimble. They were accompanied by Frank J. Powers, director of the State Bureau of Mines, who attended for the specific purpose of identifying mines from which the Board of Education is buying coal.

Miners Unemployed

The UMW representatives and Senator Kimble said they thought it regrettable that the Board of Education should buy coal mined in Garrett County when there is considerable unemployment among Allegany County miners.

Webster said that the board took two factors into consideration in awarding the contracts at the October 13 meeting. They are (1) whether the coal meets the analysis requirements and is approved by the Bureau of Mines and (2) whether it was the low bid.

Had the board insisted on Allegany County coal in all cases it would have meant paying an increase of at least 59 cents more per ton.

Seven different dealers, all from Allegany County, were awarded contracts to supply coal for certain schools in the county. Webster said that five of the seven are supplying Allegany County mined coal.

The suppliers are supposed to sell about 7,050 tons of coal to the Board of Education during the school year. One firm awarded contracts for 1,930 tons will provide Garrett County coal. Another, with contracts for 900 tons, is getting

Education Week To Feature Various School Displays

National Education Week starts tomorrow and pupils in Allegany County public schools have made arrangements to give the citizens of the county an idea through displays of what goes on in the 34 schools.

Boys in the vocational industrial arts classes of Charles E. Watermann at Carver High School have been concentrating their efforts this fall on modern furniture. Watermann has selected some representative pieces and they are being displayed in the window of the Wilson Hardware Company on North Mechanic Street.

12 Photographs

A collection of some twelve 20 by 24 inch photographs has been assembled on a 14 by six foot board to illustrate typical activities in county schools. These photographs, taken by students of photography of Fort Hill High School, were assembled under the direction of the Department of Art Education. Theodore A. Foote is art education supervisor.

These photographs will be on display all through Education Week in one of the windows of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company office on Baltimore Street.

Included are a first grade reading circle, Hill Street School, Frostburg; woodshop scene, Beall High School, Frostburg; supervised play period, Barton School; first grade arithmetic center, Virginia Avenue School; biology project, Mt. Savage High School; typing class, Valley High School, Lonaconing; trigonometry project, Fort Hill High School; home economics, Bruce High School, Westernport; citizenship project, Allegany High School; primary science class, West Side School; fifth grade social studies, Cresaptown, and distributive education, Allegany High School.

Featured in the Carver High furniture display are three modernistic chairs which the boys have made for use in their own homes. Two brothers have constructed living room chairs out of blond maple wood with bright red upholstery and rubber cushion.

Joseph Lewis, the older of the brothers and a senior, has made the arm chair while Robert Lewis, a junior, has built a straight chair.

Commenting upon the practicability of the project, Watermann explained that with the expenditure of between $20 and $25, and some precise work the brothers have made chairs that probably could sell together for about $100.

Make Tables And Lamps

Another competent chair maker is Leo Beckwith, a Carver senior. His blond maple wood has been pickled with white mist paint and his upholstery is green. Spurgeon Washington, another senior at the Frederick Street school, has constructed a strikin looking coffee table. It is maple, painted ebony, and is equipped with copper tips on its four legs.

Other articles in the Carver exhibit include modernistic lamps made by three juniors, Herman Washington, Frank Page and Lester Frazier. Then there are a hammer and screw driver which Robert Redman, a senior, has made from steel. Small pieces in the display are the work of eight and ninth graders.

One non-modern piece of furniture in the exhibit is an occasional table of pie-crust shape. This solid mahogany table was made last year by Roger Jones, who was graduated from Carver in June. Watermann said that Jones is seeking a job in which he can utilize his ability as a furniture maker.

Art students in county schools also have prepared two posters setting forth facts about the school system and they will be exhibited all next week in windows of the Liberty Trust Company.

"Good Schools Are Your Responsibility" is the slogan on one of the posters. This poster emphasizes that the county's total school budget for 1952-53 was $3,174,130. The funds came from three sources, 45 per cent from Allegany County, 54 per cent from the State of Maryland and one per cent from the United States government.

The other poster states that Allegany County has 15,846 pupils, 607 teachers and principals and 34 buildings. It also notes that there were 836 graduates from county public schools last June.

WTBO Operators Await FCC Rule On TV Station

Action Expected Sometime In Week

Maryland Radio Corporation, operator of Station WTBO here, now without a local challenger for television Channel 17, has adopted a policy of watchful waiting pending action by the Federal Communications Commission in Washington.

Charles E. Smith, manager of WTBO, said last night that his station was awaiting action on its application by the FCC. The action is expected sometime next week.

Both the Maryland Radio Corporation and Western Maryland Broadcasting Company, operator of Station WDYK, filed applications for Channel 17 when that channel was opened for Cumberland in June, 1952.

Thursday night the field was narrowed to one when stockholders and directors of WDYK decided to withdraw the application and concentrate on improving its radio operations.

Smith recalled last night that his station first made an application for a TV station eight years ago.

Snow May End Fire Dangers

District foresters, who reported four forest fires yesterday morning, expressed a belief last night that the general snowfall probably would alleviate the danger of additional blazes for the time being.

The only one in District Forester William H. Johnson's Western Maryland district occurred about 6 a. m. yesterday near Twiggtown on the Brice Hollow Road. District 16 Volunteer firemen extinguished the blaze after it had burned about one acre.

There was a little more activity in Eastern West Virginia, where District Forester Tilden Norris at Romney reported three fires. The worst burned about 20 acres near Pinto in Mineral County. The others charred about two acres each near Scherr in Grant County and close to Martinsburg in Berkeley County. Patrols last night still were on the scene of the Mineral and Grant county blazes to see that they did not revive.
